Dems ax Lincoln County plan 30-22

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Senate Democrats axed Lincoln County legislation Wednesday, effectively killing efforts by Northwest suburbanites to secede from Cook County.

The legislation, sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was defeated 30-22.

Former Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones, originator of the Lincoln County campaign, said he was disappointed by the vote.

"It'S STATUS QUO in Cook County," he said. "The last dark continent of American politics remains dark because of the actions of the Democratic machine of Cook County. They don't want the people to be heard and that's the trouble with machine politics."

Both Jones and Regner said the defeat makes Lincoln County a dead issue this year. Regner, however, vowed to reintroduce legislation, though no referendum could be scheduled on the matter before 1980.

State Sen. Phil Rock, D-Chicago, the senate majority leader, directed opposition to the bill. He admitted that while he raised technical objections, he did not like the secession effort.

"I think Cook County is one of the strongest units of government in the state and I want to keep it that way. I just don't like the Lincoln County idea," Rock said.

ROCK, WHO represents a district that is split between Chicago and the western suburbs by a 60-40 margin, said he has not heard complaints from his constituents about a lack of service from Cook County government.

Rock objected to the fact that the bill would have changed the authority for reviewing petitions calling for a referendum on new counties and from the county board to the courts. He also complained about the provision that lowered the number of signatures needed to qualify for a referendum.

Rock said he had not conferred with Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne about the bill. Dunne and his legislative lobbyists have remained officially neutral on the bill.

Senate Democrats let the bill out of committee last month, raising the hopes of some Lincoln County proponents.

Regner, however, said he had been told Tuesday that the Democrats would line up solidly against the bill. He said this is the first time Lincoln County supporters had attempted to change state law regarding the formation of new counties.

SOME PUBLIC officials have been talking about seceding from Cook County for more than six years.

Jones and others have said area residents can operate a county government more efficiently and cheaply than the service provided by Cook County.

While most attention has been aimed at creating a separate county from Palatine, Hanover, Barrington,Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling township; Jones has proposed forming four separate counties in the area that includes the 30 suburban townships in Cook County.

Moluccans show force, stage hanging

ASSEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — South Moluccan gunmen holding more than 160 hostages staged a mock hanging Wednesday and forced captive children to shout "We want to live" to press their demands for independence for their homeland and freedom for jailed countrymen.

In what the government termed a "show of force," gunmen holding between 50 and 60 hostages aboard a hijacked train draped nooses around the necks of a man and a woman and forced them to jump to the tracks blindfolded and handcuffed.

Gunmen inside the train held tethers linked to the nooses as the pair stood rigidly for 45 minutes before climbing back aboard the train.

IT WAS THE second show of defiance by the Moluccans Wednesday. Earlier, gunmen holding 105 children and six teachers at an elementary school in Bovensmilde, about 15 miles south of the train, forced some of the youngsters to stand at an open window and chant, "We want to live, we want to live."

The incident occurred as a deadline set by the gunmen passed without incident. The Moluccans had warned they would start killing the hostages at 2 p.m. Wednesday (7 am. CDT) if the Dutch government refused to free their jailed Moluccan comrades and put them on a plane out of the country.

As the high-pitched voices of the children rang out, agonized parents watched the scene from a nearby library and one of the terrorists grabbed a bullhorn and shouted: "The police must get back."

HEAVILY ARMED police quickly jumped behind walls and hedges, out of sight of the school.

In coordinated raids, the Moluccans seized the train and the school Monday in the name of independence for the Molucca Islands in Indonesia.

A government spokesman said the train incident demonstrated the gunmen were "very unhappy" over government demands that all the school children be released before negotiations with the terrorists begin.

"Apparently they wanted to demonstrate that they did not want to release the children," the spokesman said.

Shortly after the 2 p.m. deadline passed, four of 21 jailed Moluccan terattempt by Premier Joop den Uyl to Bovensmilde, for "consultation" in an attempt b Premier Joop den Uyl to establish a "basis for negotiations."

After the train incident the four Moluccans were returned to prison.

ROBERT LeROY, a survivor of Nazi concentration camps, tells students at St. Viator High School about his experience to "make sure these horrendous crimes will never happen again." LeRoy came out of Auschwitz alive, but his family was killed there 33 years ago.

'Holocaust—it happened'

by DIANE GRANAT

Today is the 33rd anniversary of the death of Robert LeRoy's mother, father, two sisters and brother.

It was on this day on the Jewish calendar, in May 1944, that LeRoy and his family arrived at Auschwitz, the Nazi concentration camp.

On their arrival LeRoy, then 19, was sent to one line, the line for those who were young and strong. He would live.

HIS PARENTS, SISTERS and brother were sent to another line, a line that led to the gas chambers. They would die.

LeRoy, 52, whose name was Lefkovitz before he came to the United States, now lives in Elgin. He works as a building contractor in the Northwest suburbs.

He has a new life here. But his attempts to erase the horrors of the past, such as changing his name, are not successful.

The memory of his family still haunts him, along with the memory of six million Jews who were exterminated by the Nazis in World War II. It forces him to tell his story.

Leroy spoke Wednesday to 150 students at St. Viator High School, 1213 E . Oakton St., Arlington Heights. His talk culminated their study of the Holocaust in their literature and theology classes.

LEROY RECENTLY formed a group called "Witnesses to the Holocaust." Its purpose is to lobby for laws which would require the study of genocide in all public schools. He explained his motivation to the students.

"The reason I am here," he said, "is that in order to do anything about the tomorrow you must do something about the mistakes of yesterday."

With knowledge of the past, "I believe you people will make sure these horrendous crimes will never happen again," he said.

LeRoy's past began in Hungary. His family, along with 500 other Jews, lived quietly in a town of 5,000 persons until the late 1930s.

"The time came when we were forced to wear armbands and a yellow Star of David with the word 'Juden,' meaning Jew, stamped on that star," LeRoy

Community 'pillars' exploit kids for sex

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many adults exploiting youngsters for sex or pornography are pillars of the community rather than "sick, dirty old men," law enforcement officials said Wednesday.

Los Angeles Police Sgt. Lloyd Martin and Robert Leonard, head of the National Assn. of District Attorneys, said there is a steady supply of runaway children for what is becoming a big business, and the victims are reluctant to turn in their exploiters.

In testimony before a House Judiciary subcommittee, the officers urged new laws to block the rapid spread of child pornography and the growth of child prostitution rings.

LEONARD, PROSECUTOR in Michigan's Genesee County, said the problem is nationwide with "a new and pernicious dimension."

"We've always been looking for depraved degenerates, the sick dirty old men," he said. "But we have found a different type in many cases. Offenders often are wealthy, mobile, educated, sometimes very important members of a community."

He said such people "infiltrate organizations" such as the Boy Scouts or Big Brothers, and often set up camps, schools or other recreational facilities to attract children for sex while earning money at the same time.

Martin and Leonard said the victims most frequently come from the ranks of an estimated 1 million boys and girls who run away from home each year in a search for "attention and affection" and soon desperately need money.

To survive, Martin said bluntly, many "either pull up their dress or pull down their pants" for filmmakers and perverts — and then refuse to cooperate with police because the adults paying for the service "are often the child's best friend."

MARTIN SAID "because these victims are willing, they don't come forward."

Both Leonard and Martin predicted organized crime will be part of the "multibillion dollar industry" shortly. "They're already in it or they're going to get in it because there's tremendous profit in it," Leonard said.

American Civil Liberties Union lawyer Heather Florence told the panel the ACLU felt "it is perfectly proper to prosecute those who engage in sexual abuse of children and illegal action."

But she said persons who profit from it, such as publishers, "are not violating the law" and their activities must be "wholly protected" by the First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

Village to urge lake water options

Arlington Heights will urge both the DAMP and SHARE + 3 water commissions to conduct engineering studies on alternatives for bringing Lake Michigan water to their member communities.

Village board members at a special meeting Wednesdy night said the village should not decide how to obtain lake water until both commissions complete their studies.

SHARE + 3, composed of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove, favors hooking into the City of Chicago's water system at O'Hare Airport.

That route is considered the quickest method of tapping the lake water supply but is opposed by some communities who dislike the notion of dealing with the City of Chicago and prefer constructing a pipeline directly to the lake.

DAMP, WHICH IS composed of Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine, has said only that the most economical long-term route should be taken.

"We have felt that on a long-term basis, going directly to Lake Michigan will be less expensive, but we don't know if that situation has changed since our last engineering study," Donald Schoen, a DAMP commissioner, said.

Construction of a pipeline to Evanston, which has water filtration facilities, should also be considered, Arlington Heights trustees said Wednesday.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan suggested DAMP representatives ask other neighboring communities, such as Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling to participate in the

3 teens charged in 6 burglaries

Arlington Heights police Wednesday arrested three teen-age boys who allegedly committed at least six burglaries and attempted 25 unsuccessful break-ins in the village. Police said the two 15-year-olds and one 16-year-old were arrested after two of them were seen fleeing the scene of a burglary Wednesday morning. The third youth was arrested on his way home from Arlington High School Wednesday afternoon. Police said the youths burglarized between 6 and 10 homes in Arlington Heights since early April, and attempted between 25 and 30 unsuccessful burglaries. The youths who looked for empty houses and unlocked doors, stole an undetermined amount of money, radios, cameras and electronic calculators, police said.

Johnson resigns from Dist. 59

A principal in financially strapped Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 has resigned his post to accept a similar position in Glenview Dist. 34. Bruce Johnson, 29, said he resigned as principal of Marshall School, Elk Grove Village, because "I'm concerned about the effect Dist. 59's budget limitations could have on the quality of the educational program here. Dist. 34 is in a little better financial condition and there is more that can be done here." The Dist. 59 Board of Education has set a goal of trimming $1 million from the district's $16.5 million budget.

5 acres purchased for library

The Indian Trails Public Library board is purchasing five acres of land on south Schoenbeck Road for construction of a new library. The board has offered to purchase the site from Our Savior Free Church, 300 S. Schoenbeck Rd., for $132,000. The board will pay $13,000 in earnest money and $44,700 on Dec. 1, the time of closing. The remaining money will be paid in installments. Library trustees are considering a fall referendum to finance construction of the new building. The library is outgrowing its current building at 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling, officials say.

Pretrial hearings for Timothy Draut, charged with the traffic death of an Arlington Heights patrolman, have been continued to June 15 in Cook County Circuit Court. Draut, 23, of 746 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, must appear in the Evanston branch of circuit court on charges a car he was driving struck and killed Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo July 18, 1976. Draut is free on $50,000 bond while awaiting trial.

Led by 'Rocky,' couple to sell all to win Pa. lottery

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Inspired by the movie "Rocky" — in which a struggling fighter takes on the odds against the champ — a husband and wife plan to spend their life's savings on a chance to hit it big in the Pennsylvania Lottery.

State Revenue Sec. Milt Lopus said Thomas and Philomena Drake of suburban Pittsburgh plan to buy $20,000 worth of instant lottery tickets at $1 a ticket. The winner of the millionaire drawing receives $1,000 a week for life.

Even with the $20,000 investment, however, the Drakes' chances of winning the lottery are only one in 1,750. Thirty-five million tickets must be either sold or given away as prizes before the drawing is held, probably in late August or early September.

LOTTERY DIRECTOR Lynn Nelson said he cautioned Drake, 30, that the lottery is intended for discretionary betting and not for someone's savings.

Nelson said Drake's response was: "I'm over 21 and we know what we're doing. We were inspired by the movie 'Rocky.' "

Drake's 26-year-old wife worked for U.S. Steel Corp. but quit her job because of ill health. The couple is selling everything, including their three-acre property, to purchase the lottery tickets.

The couple bought the first block of 500 tickets Monday and plan to buy the rest as they sell their possessions.

Drake said Rocky in the movie "gave it one big shot and I'm gonna give it the same shot.

"I DON'T HAVE anything against working, but we're both doing work we don't like. I'm locked up in real estate. We're on each other's back and our marriage was breaking up," he added.

"We're either going to win big or go bankrupt. We can both start from scratch again. What we're shooting for is that $1,000 a week for the rest of our lives."

If they win, Drake said, "We'll get into harness racing as a leisure profession. We'll do what we want to do for the rest of our lives instead of killing ourselves making a living."

Nixon: 'agony of trial' option to pardon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A defiant Richard Nixon said Wednesday he considered rejecting Gerald Ford's pardon as an unjustified "admission of guilt" and accepting "the agony of a trial" instead.

Calling some of his critics "trash" and describing his enforced retirement as a fate worse than death, Nixon said he accepted the pardon only because he was physically and emotionally "beaten" and could not have received a fair trial on the "false charges" against him.

Nixon, battling to the end, concluded his fourth interview with David Frost with the words:

"I don't know what the future brings, but whatever it brings I'll still be fighting."

NIXON ALSO suggested Spiro Agnew committed no intentional crime and merely was following "common practice" in accepting kickbacks, but was forced to resign the vice presidency because an "ambitious" Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson wanted his neck — and his job.

The former president also disclosed he originally promised to pardon his top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, if they "got a bad rap" and were convicted of Watergate offenses.

That promise, he said, was nullified because his own resignation preceded their trial, and he rejected their last-minute pleas for pardons before he left office.

Alternating between emotional highs and lows in this appearance, Nixon referred to Washington Post Watergate reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein as "trash" and said he has "nothing but utter contempt" for their best-selling book on his downfall, "The Final Days."

HE SUGGESTED a reading of that book might have contributed to the stroke Mrs. Nixon suffered last year and concluded, "I will never forgive them. Never."

He also said public figures slandered by the press, as he claims to have been, "ought to come back and crack 'em right in the puss." And he said it was Henry Kissinger, not himself, who first broke down and cried in the celebrated resignation-eve prayer meeting between the two recountered in "The Final Days."

But he also reflected sadly on what resignation has done to him, calling it "a life without purpose, not having anything to live for . . .

"No one can know how it feels to resign the presidency of the United States," he told Frost. "Is that punishment enough?" he asked, and, in an apparent philosophical concession to his enemies, concluded: "Oh, probably not."

BUT NIXON TOOK a tough line in his recollection of the full pardon Ford granted him a month after he resigned the office. He said he made no deals with his successor to get it, and called the decision to accept it "almost as difficult as resigning."

He said he told his lawyer at the time, " 'Look, if I accept the pardon, I'm in . . . in effect admitting guilt that I evaded my income taxes, that I raised the price of milk because of contributions from the milk producers; that I sold ambassadorships; that I took campaign contributions and put a million dollars into my house; that I engaged in illegal activities including everything from obstruction of justice to abuse of agencies, to wiretapping, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera . . .'

"I said, 'I'd just as soon go through the agony of a trial and, so that we can scrape away, at least, all the false charges, and fight it out on those in which there may be a doubt, and, I'll take whatever the consequences are.' "

He said his lawyer prevailed by persuading him that, "in his legal opinion there was no chance whatever that I could get a fair trial." Nixon said even Leon Jaworski, the Watergate special prosecutor at the time, held that view.

Recalling the nationwide furor the pardon provoked, Nixon said he called Ford to say he was "sorry he was receiving such criticism.

"He said, 'You know,' he says, 'I don't give a damn about the criticism. I did it because it was right.' That's the way he is."

The 90-minute interview was one of a series for which Nixon is reportedly getting a $600,000 fee and a percentage of the profits.

Man, 28, held for grand jury in heiress death

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A judge ordered Manuel Lee Robinson held for the grand jury Wednesday in the slaying and robbery of an eccentric heiress on the testimony of two other suspects that he showed up with a bonanza he said "Came from the house of an old lady outside Indianapolis."

Marion County Municipal Court Judge Frank Harlor ordered Robinson, 28, bound over to criminal court in the slaying of Marjorie V. Jackson, 66, widow of the former president of Standard Food Stores, and in the robbery believed to have been the largest in U.S. history.

Annie K. Young, 22, Robinson's girlfriend, and John A. Williams, 38, testified that Robinson appeared early in May with large amounts of money which he said "couldn't be traced."

MRS. JACKSON was found shot to death in her nine-room brownstone ranch house May 7 by firemen summoned to put out a fire later determined to be arson. She died of a .22-caliber gunshot wound in the stomach.

Investigators found more than $5 million in the house and they believe the widow kept at least $8 million stashed there. Investigators said she had withdrawn $9 million from a trust account when she discovered an embezzlement of funds by a bank vice president.

Miss Young and Williams also implicated two other suspects held in Arizona on fugitive warrants — Howard R. Willard, 38, alias Billy Joe Willard, and Marjorie L. Pollitt, 48, his former wife. The pair left Indiana after Mrs. Jackson's body was discovered and were caught Friday after they tried to pay cash for a travel home at Tempe, Ariz.

Editor puts monkey on her back

Lunch with spittin' image of Kong

by LUISA GINNETTI

It was, to say the least, a challenging assignment.

The Hoxie Brothers Circus was coming to the Palatine Mall Wednesday and promoters of the event, doing their job in the best and flashiest way they know how, suggested several story possibilities.

"This might be a good one," my city editor said with a snicker. "Have lunch with the gorilla."

Have lunch with the gorilla? I mean, I know I'm known in the office as an animal lover, but even that goes only so far. And how far is a reporter expected to go in search of a story?

APPRENTLY, AS FAR as the editor thinks.

So Wednesday at noon Dave Tonge, my lucky photo companion, and I stood face to face in a 30-foot semi-trailer truck cage with Mongo, a 400 pound, lowland gorilla who likes fried chicken and pizza for lunch.

Roger Boyd, manager of the circus's sideshow and one of Mongo's favorite humans, proceeded to feed the ape his lunch-time diet of bananas, carrots, apples and two gallons of milk. (He had fried chicken Tuesday.)

"Sweet potatoes are his favorite but what he really loves are Mr. Goodbars," Boyd said. "We get the big one-pound bars for him and he eats them up in one bite."

Mongo appeared very comfortable with his visitors, even though Dave and I stepped cautiously into the vacant compartment of his cage, avoiding his nine-foot armspan.

BOYD SAID THE 13-year-old gorilla is just maturing and has been traveling with the circus for two years. He is part of the sideshow and is the only touring gorilla in the country.

"We think of him as our pet and not an animal," Boyd said, completely serious. "He's just another member of the show."

Mongo is not a trained gorilla, Boyd said, but he goes on display half an hour before show time in his cage, an air-conditioned compartment divided by an iron gate.

When one-half of Mongo's cage is being cleaned, he stays on the other side. The truck, which cost $40,000 to renovate for its hairy resident, is kept at a constant 75 degrees and 50 per cent humidity because gorillas are very susceptible to disease, Boyd said.

"GORILLAS HAVE A bad reputation," Boyd said, a fact I kept repeating to myself as Mongo continued his nasty habit of spitting at his guests. "They're really very tame, gentle animals and they rarely would attack you. The only problem is they don't know their own strength."

Mongo, however, seemed to know his and he appeared to be trying to let us know, too. He would back into a corner and leap full force against the gate separating us.

"Has he ever opened the gate (separating the two sides)," I asked half joking, as Mongo tugged at the latch. "He never has so far," Boyd responded, needling me.

"Gorillas are intelligent animals and Mongo has a sense of humor," Boyd said. "He likes to play and be tickled and he likes to outsmart us."

Mongo eats 40 pounds of food and four gallons of milk a day, at his twice-a-day meals, Boyd said.

And now it was my turn to do the honors.

"WHY DON'T YOU take a carrot," Boyd said. "It's longer." No arguments from me.

"Now just put it in his mouth when he opens it and he'll take it from you."

I called Mongo from the back of his cage and while Dave stood by focusing (there might only be one chance for a shot), I did it.

He took it gently and in the best tradition of Emily Post, clutched the carrot, gave a spit and and ran to the back of his cage.

He let out a few growling sounds, which Boyd assured us meant he was content, and came back for more. I gave him another carrot and decided that I'd better not press my luck any further.

We climbed out of the cage and left Mongo to finish his meal.

DAVE CLEANED HIS camera lens and we both cleaned ourselves as we thanked Boyd for his courtesy and made our way back to Dave's car.

"Take care of Mongo," I said.

"Don't worry, we will," Boyd answered.

As we left, I couldn't help thinking that Mongo probably believes it's the other way around.

THE NAZI PERSECUTION in Hungary and the rest of Europe mounted. Eventually the Lefkovitz family was rounded up with the other Jews in their town. They began their journey in cattle cars to Auschwitz.

When they arrived at the death camp the selections were made. LeRoy said he tried to go with his family but he was pulled back.

"That was the last time I have seen my parents," he said. "The people who went their way were immediately exterminated, gassed, then their bodies burned. Their ashes were used to make soap out of. Their gold teeth used to enrich the Nazi hierarchy.

"The smell of burning flesh is still vivid in my mind," Le Roy said. "Today the smell of something burning still brings this back."

AFTER A WEEK IN Auschwitz, LeRoy was chosen to go to Bunzlu, a work camp. There he worked 16 hours a day, struggling to stay alive.

"I never hesitated to feed myself even at the expense of going to the garbage can," he said. "Once I was unloading a food truck and I was caught stealing a loaf of bread. For that I was put in a bunker, 4 feet high and 4 feet wide. I was there three days and three nights." He was saved because of the compassion of a German officer.

Around his neck today he wears a 25-cent piece on a chain. It is the money he had when he came to this country. With that start, he rebuilt his life.

LeRoy was silent for many years. He said he wanted to forget, and he wanted to shield his children from the ugly past.

But when Arthur Butz, associate professor of electrical engineering at Northwestern University, Evanston, recently wrote a book denying the mass extermination of Jews during World War II, LeRoy said he had to speak out.

IN MARCH, LeROY organized "Witnesses to the Holocaust" to make sure the true story is taught to every child in this country. He said he wants to enlist the help of school boards, teachers' unions and other citizens to bring this issue to the legislature.

"I want to make sure when this issue comes up they can't vote against it," LeRoy said. "If they say no to this, they say yes to bigotry."

He hopes to help this cause by telling his story, particularly to impressionable young people.

"I walk through the sand dunes and I leave my footsteps in the sand," he said. "It will have to be a huge windstorm before those footprints are diminished."

Witness says he fears for his life

The key prosecution witness in the unsuccessful murder trial of a reputed crime syndicate "hit man" said Wednesday his life is in danger. The accused mobster, Harry Aleman,37, was found innocent Wednesday by Cook County Criminal Court Judge Frank J. Wilson because of "impeachments" in the testimony of Robert D. Lowe, 28. Lowe, who testified he saw Aleman use a shotgun to murder a Teamster official four years ago, told reporters from a secret telephone, "I'm afraid for my life. I haven't been able to eat or sleep since I heard the verdict."

Lowe, his wife and four children, have been promised a new identity and a new life in another state. But Lowe sounded as if he had little hope. "I've got nothing to look forward to," he said. "I can't lead a normal life." Lowe was incredulous at the judge's verdict and his refusal to believe his testimony.

"It was a shock ... a slap in the face," Lowe said. "I would like the judge to prove me a liar ... It's a personal attack on my integrity."

Ashline to aid Windgate probe

Special education has grown in Illinois without adequate supervision and more supervisors are needed, state schools Supt. Joseph N M. Cronin said Wednesday. Cronin made his remarks while announcing the appointment of Nelson Ashline, his deputy, to work with Gov. James R. Thompson's task force investigating charges of child abuse at the Windgate Home in Woodstock, McHenry County.

Cronin said the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services licensed the school and state education officials supervised the instruction programs. "But special education has grown like Topsy and without adequate monitoring," Cronin said. "Very little state funds go into supervision of such programs," noting that only one staff member visited some 400 private facilities. Cronin said at least two more staff members were needed for inspections.

Involuntary teacher moves OKd

The Chicago Board of Education Wednesday approved, 10 -1, a faculty desegregation plan that will involuntarily transfer 2,212 teachers to meet federal racial quotas. Mrs. William L. Rohter, who voted against it, called the plan a "design for disaster." Under the plan, 1,686 regularly assigned teachers and 526 full-time substitutes, all to be chosen on the basis of race and experience, will be transferred to other school districts whether they want to move or not.

The Board's Committee on Faculty Intergration prepared the plan after months of negotiations with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. HEW had charged the board violated the 1964 Civil Rights Act in assigning black and other minority teachers to schools that have mostly minority student enrollment and it threatened to withhold $74.5 million in federal aid.

Blacks pay higher housing costs

Blacks pay more than whites for comparable housing in Chicago, the Chicago Urban League said Wednesday in announcing the results of a study. Dr. James W. Compton, the league's executive officer, said on the average blacks pay $1,160 more than whites in buying similar homes and $18 a month more in rent. The study made this year based on 1970 census figures showed that blacks who move to white areas tend to have higher incomes than the whites who live there. He said the study also showed the movement of whites to the suburbs do not provide more housing for blacks because the white and black markets remain separate.

Stateville sick-in continues

Acting Illinois Corrections Director Charles Rowe said Wednesday half the captains and lieutenants at Stateville Penitentiary called in sick again in their protest of the suspension of four command officers. Prisoners were quiet and were being released from their cells for recreation Wednesday, he said. Full programming will resume Thursday, he said. Rowe said 1 captain and 5 lieutenants reported for work Wednesday, when 3 captains and 11 lieutenants were scheduled to work. He said there were no unusual absences among guards. A lockup was imposed Tuesday after the sick-in began. The sick-in followed notification of the suspension of guard Maj. Donald E. Cartwright and three lieutenants. They were accused of beating seven to eight inmates Jan. 15-16 as the prisoners were moved to other correctional facilities.

Illinois briefs

Court of claims post still unfilled

Wanted by Gov. James R. Thompson: Somebody to hand out state money — and you would be paid to do it. Democrats may apply. The governor, beseiged by job-seekers since November, is nonetheless having a hard time finding qualified candidates for an Illinois Court of Claims opening. He appealed Wednesday for applicants for the $19,000-a-year, part-time post.

The Court of Claims decides if the state pays bills whose validity is challenged by state agencies. Thompson said anybody who wants to get in the running should submit applications by June 6 to Kenneth C. Prince, 222 S. Riverside Plaza, Chicago. Prince heads the hunt for a Court of Claims judge. Prince said four or five persons will be recommended "without regard to race, color, sex or political affiliation."

FAA unit to rebuild dead woman

The Federal Aviation Administration is going to try to help identify the body of a woman who was shot to death more than one year ago, DeKalb County Sheriff Wilbur Scott said Wednesday. The body was to be shipped to Oklahoma City, Okla., today so the FAA disaster unit can rebuild it to show the woman's appearance before death, Scott said. That way police will have a better chance of identifying it, he said. An autopsy and an artist's conception show the woman apparently was about 20 years old. She had been shot three times. Two boys found the body on an abandoned farm near Sycamore Sept. 20. The woman had been dead at least four months before the body had been found.

Seniors' license plate bill fails

The Illinois Senate Wednesday defeated a measure that would have allowed senior citizens to buy license plates at half price. Opponents argued the bill, which would have cost the state $6 million, was not needed because if seniors can afford cars, they can afford plates.

3 Arlington teens held in house burglary case

Police Wednesday arrested three Arlington Heights teen-agers, breaking up what investigators said was a burglary ring responsible for at least six break-ins and 25 burglary attempts in the village.

Det. Mike Hogan of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said three boys, two 15 and one 16, were arrested after two youths were seen fleeing from a burglary scene Wednesday morning. All three youths are students at Arlington High School, he said.

The youths were charged in a delinquency petition for burglary, and were taken Wednesday to the Audy Juvenile Home, Chicago.

THEY ARE TO appear at 9 a.m. today at a custody hearing in the Juvenile Division of Cook County Circuit Court.

Hogan said Paul Pierson, 308 N. Patton Ave., Arlington Heights, was parking his car in his driveway at 10:40 a.m. Wednesday when he heard a door slam and saw two teens running from his house. He called police.

Detectives Patrick Kennedy and Gerald Besenhofer caught two of the boys near Kaspar Avenue and Campbell Street after the pair allegedly tried to elude police by running through backyards.

Police confiscated 6-inch and 5-inch knives from the two youths, who implicated the third youth during questioning in the police station, Hogan said. The knives were used to slit open screen doors, he said.

The third boy was arrested while walking home from school Wednesday afternoon.

HOGAN SAID THE youths admitted they had unsuccessfully tried to burglarize two other houses before entering Pierson's home.

They told police they went from house to house, checking to see if anyone was home, Hogan said.

The youths said they entered Pierson's house through an unlocked side door but were frightened away when Pierson drove up, Hogan said.

The teens also admitted they had committed between six and 10 burglaries in Arlington Heights over the past 1½ months, and unsuccessfully had tried to enter between 25 and 30 houses, Hogan said. The youths took police Wednesday afternoon to the homes they allegedly burglarized and told investigators what had been taken.

They went after money, Hogan said, but also stole radios, cameras and electronic calculators.

Right-of-way payment to railroad ruled down

The Village of Arlington Heights does not have to compensate the Chicago and North Western Ry. for property taken for railroad crossings, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne ruled Wednesday.

The six-year-old right-of-way dispute, however, apparently has not ended because C&NW attorneys plan to appeal Dunne's decision and ask that the question be heard by the Illinois Supreme Court.

"Since it does involve constitutional issues with a great public interest, we probably will seek to transfer it up to the state Supreme Court. I think the village agrees that the principle is an important one," said Stuart Glassner, attorney for Chicago and North Western Transportation Co.

THE DISPUTE BETWEEN the C&NW and the village began in 1971, 1½ years after the Illinois Commerce Commission ordered the railway company to install a railroad grade crossing to connect Ridge and Walnut avenues. That crossing was finished last August after the village agreed to put the $16,500 demanded by the railway company into an escrow account until the controversey was settled.

The right-of-way disagreement apparently will continue to delay final construction of a crossing at McKinley Avenue, which will link Northwest Highway and Davis Street. It is considered important for emergency vehicles traveling north and south on the east side of Arlington Heights because there now is no crossing between Central Road in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights Road — a distance of about two miles.

The village has finished its portion of the work at the McKinley Avenue crossing but its completion was delayed indefinitely in January when the ICC granted an extension to the railway company until six months after a court ruling on the right-of-way dispute.

JACK M. SIEGEL, village attorney, argued before Judge Dunne that Arlington Heights should not be required to compensate Chicago and North Western because the crossing was ordered by the ICC and such payments are not regular parts of grade-crossing agreements.

Gassner argued that the ICC order that a grade crossing be installed at Walnut Street did not automatically grant an easement to the village.

"The question is whether the ICC's order should allow a brand new crossing to be put in without compensation for a reduction in our property value," Gassner said.

Gassner said the railway company has not had similar disputes with other municipalities.

"In 99 per cent of the cases we sit down with them and reach a settlement and in the rest it is decided through condemnation proceedings," he said.

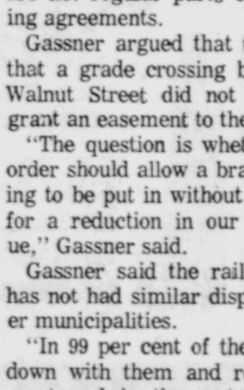
The railway company's appeal to Dunne's ruling will be filed in the Cook County Circuit Court of Appeals within two weeks, Glassner said.

Dist. 59 principal quits, protests finance crisis

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The principal of Marshall School in Elk Grove Village has resigned, citing a concern that Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's financial problems could harm its education program.

Bruce Johnson, the principal, also said he wanted to broaden his professional opportunities by taking a new job in another district.



Bruce Johnson

Johnson, 29, has accepted a principal's job in Glenview Dist. 34. He has been principal of Marshall, 711 Chelmsford Ln., for 2½ years. Before that he was a teacher in Fargo, N.D.

"I'm concerned about the effect Dist. 59's budget limitations could have on the quality of the educational program here," he said. 'Dist. 34 is in a little better financial condition and there is more that can be done there."

DIST. 59 HAS made no budget cuts, but has set a goal of trimming $1 million from it's $16.5 million budget.

"The board is trying to cut noninstructional areas, but no decisions have been made yet," he said. "They are not going to get a $1 million figure solely out of noninstructional areas."

Johnson said a principal has only so many resources to deploy in a way most productive to students and that if these resources are cut, the principal becomes less effective and efficient in meeting the needs of the children.

Paul Kucharski, chairman of the board's finance committee, said Johnson's resignation is "premature" if it is based on a concern about budget cuts hurting education in the district.

"Whatever we do, the end result will be aimed at improving education in the district," he said. "Any cuts we make will be in the best interest of the education of our children."

KUCHARSKI SAID Dist. 59 principals are going to have to understand that budget cuts are one of the "pragmatic realities" which must be faced.

"There's no othere way to get our financial house in order," he said. "I personally feel the cuts are long overdue."

Aside from concerns about the district's financial condition, Johnson said he is leaving Dist. 59 to "broaden" his professional background.

"I'm an upwardly mobile person and am looking beyond a building principalship," he said. "The experience of working with teachers and administrators in another district will be helpful in giving me added perspective."

cost of DAMP's engineering study.

"We need an area-wide study of all of the alternatives. It should reflect concern for the whole area, rather than just Arlington Heights," Ryan said.

The board did not take action on a proposal by Public Works Director Gene Willroth that lawn sprinkling in Arlington Heights be restricted to Tuesdays and Thursdays between 7 to 10 a.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

The village's current ordinance allows sprinkling on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays with no time restrictions.

Several trustees agreed that sprinkling should only be allowed two days per week but said they prefer Tuesday and Saturday times.

"Check the savings and you'll see why it pays to ask about generic drugs."

At Medicare Pharmacies you can save up to 50% on some prescriptions if your doctor specifies a generic instead of a brand name drug.

Many drugs are sold two ways: by a generic name, which is the product's chemical name, and by a brand or trade name.

Many people don't know about generic drugs. More important, they don't know that generics cost less — up to 50% less than some brand name drugs. The reason brand names cost you more to buy is because they cost drug companies more to sample and promote.

Not all brand name drugs have a generic equivalent. But Medicare Pharmacies now stock some 160 different generic products.

Next time you need medication, ask your doctor if he will prescribe a generic drug. Then come in or call any Medicare Pharmacy and see how much you can save. Of course, there may be a reason why you need a particular brand name. LET YOUR PHYSICIAN BE YOUR GUIDE.

PRESIDENTIAL ENERGY Adviser James Schlesinger said Wednesday the Saudi Arabian government is holding to its policy of allowing only "moderate" oil price increases. Schlesinger told Congress' Joint Economic Committee both the U.S. and Saudi governments recognize "their joint interest in making the transition . . . from an age in which oil supplies were sufficient."

Hunt truck guards in $288,000 theft

A widespread search was launched Wednesday for two armored truck guards and $288,000 looted from their vehicle, found abandoned near an Arizona ghost gown. No trace was found of the guards when a helicopter spotted the truck, parked close to some beehives in a wash near the ghost town of Bumblebee, 36 miles north of Phoenix, Wednesday morning. The truck had been reported missing when it failed to show up at its first delivery point Tuesday on a 96-mile trip to Prescott.

Charles Stapleton, a spokesman for the Phoenix FBI office, said about $40,000 in coins was found scattered inside the locked van. He said approximately $288,000 in bills was missing, based on an audit supplied by the Purolator Security Co., which owned the truck. An unfired shotgun was found in the van and tracks of another vehicle were visible nearby, according to agents. Stapleton said several possibile witnesses were being questioned in an effort to determine what happened to the guards.

Probe cholesterol-lowering drug

Cholesterol-lowering drugs taken by more than 1 million heart patients appear to be of little value and one in particular may be causing gall bladder disease, Ralph Nader's Health Research Group said Wednesday. The group, in a petition filed with the Food and Drug Administration, singled out the prescription drug Atromid-S, whose general name is clofibrate. It said a recent study published by the New England Journal of Medicine showed there was a 54 per cent increase in gall bladder disease among men who had heart attacks and later were given the drug. An FDA spokesman said the study Wolfe referrred to has just been published and the FDA was in the process of evaluating the information.

Carter fires GOP U.S. attorney

President Carter has fired a Republican U.S. attorney who refused to turn in a resignation form when the new administration took over, the Justice Department said Wednesday. In Detroit, Philip Van Dam, 34, called the President's action "a sham" and threatened to challenge his ouster in court. In a letter dated May 23, Carter cited the federal law authorizing him to fire U.S. attorneys and told Van Dam he was "hereby removed from the Office of United States District Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan . . ." "I think there is some legitimate question as to the meaning of the letter," Van Dam said. "I have to determine whether or not I want to put it to the test (in court). I'll have to weigh the needs of the office against what a protracted legal battle might mean."

Reveal intelligence budget: panel

The Senate Intelligence Committee recommended on a 9-8 vote Wednesday that, for the first time ever, the total annual budget of all U. S. intelligence agencies be made public. Committee chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, told reporters after the closed-session vote that he expects the Senate to move on the recommendation June 15 when the committee makes its report. Inouye said he expects the Senate's vote to be, like the committee's, "very close." All but two committee Republicans present voted against disclosure, and all but one Democrat in favor of it. Unofficial estimates of the total budget for the CIA, National Security Agency, Pentagon and other intelligence operations have ranged from $4 billion to as much as $8 billion a year.

Young, British to compare notes

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young said Wednesday his 16-day African trip had convinced him "it is very hard" to persuade black African leaders to abandon armed struggle for independence. Young arrived in London from Khartoum for an overnight stopover to "compare notes" with British Foreign Secretary David Owen. They scheduled a breakfast discussion before Young leaves for New York Thursday. The ambassador told reporters he thought he had at least persuaded leaders of black independence movements in southern Africa that armed sturggle is not the only road to freedom. He visited the Ivory Coast, Liberia, Ghana, Gabon, Mozambique, South Africa, Zambia and The Sudan.

"I don't think I dissuaded them . . . to give up the armed struggle. But I did try to help them see that the negotiations by the (British) foreign office and the U.S. were certainly a viable alternative that could be even more productive than the armed struggle," he said. "I think it is very hard to tell the liberation leaders to give up the armed struggle, bearing in mind what they have been through."

Criminal code nears passage in compromise

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — The deadlock over major changes in the state criminal code ended Wednesday night when the Illinois Senate Judiciary II Committee maneuvered compromise legislation on a tough new criminal code toward passage.

The compromise came after a series of private negotiating sessions and in the shadow of threats of vetoes and a special legislative session by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The compromise involves taking many of the Republican governor's criminal justice proposals and tacking them on to a Democratic sponsored bill calling for life sentences for persons convicted of a third felony.

WHILE EXPRESSING confidence that negotiations would be successful, Thompson told a morning press conference if politics became the determining factor for passage of the criminal justice legislation, he might veto all of the anticrime measures, with the exception of restoring the death penalty, and force a special legislative session to deal strictly with criminal justice bills.

The governor's threat, however, seemed to pale as a compromise activity emerged late in the evening.

The compromise basically includes creation of Thompson's Class X felonies, with mandatory prison sentences for certain types of heinous crimes; increases prison sentences for some classes of felonies; changes in parole requirements; requires state's attorneys to file written reports in cases where plea bargaining is used; and estabished a special commission to study flat-time sentencing.

THE COMMITTEE compromise came over the objections of the panel's chairman, State Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago, who complained about the committee voting to approve the compromise without written copies of the proposal.

State Sen. Robert Egan, D-Chicago, the proponent of the compromise, noted the Senate's Friday deadline for acting on the measures required the unusual action.

Netsch termed the maneuvering "a disasterous course of action."

In less than an hour, both Democrats and Republicans on the committee agreed to sidetrack nearly two dozen bills in an effort to concentrate on the compromise.

Watergate team to close shop after 4 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate Special Prosecution Force announced Wednesday it will close up shop next month after four years of dealing with the scandals that drove Richard Nixon from the White House and sent some of his aides to jail.

Charles Ruff, the fourth man to serve as chief prosecutor, said his final major case was wrapped up Monday when the Supreme Court refused to hear the appeals of convicted Watergate coverup conspirators John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

"Though some investigations and prosecutions . . . remain," Ruff said, "the attorney general and I have agreed that these responsibilities do not require the continued existence of this office.

ACCORDINGLY, before the middle of June, we will close the special prosecution force. All remaining matters will be referred to the Justice Dept. for disposition and the files will be placed in the National Archives."

Ruff said he is preparing a final report on the office's operations during the 20 months since its last report was issued in October, 1975. He said it will be published before the office closes.

The force, created May 25, 1973, has prosecuted an array of Nixon administration officials and others on coverup charges, conspiracy and making illegal campaign contributions.

ONE UNFINISHED case involves Claude Wild, former Gulf Oil Co. executive who is to be tried on charges of making an illegal $2,500 campaign contribution. Ruff may be used as a "special consultant" in that case.

Ruff's last publicized action was his decision to investigate accusations of campaign law violations against President Gerald Ford during the 1976 presidential campaign, and his announcement clearing Ford of wrongdoing.

In 1973 the prosecution force became the center of a political storm when Nixon, seeking to dominate the Watergate investigations, demanded the Justice Dept. fire Archibald Cox, the first special prosecutor.

The firing triggered resignations of Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, who refused to carry out Nixon's order. Solicitor General Robert Bork did the firing, saying he wanted to avert total collapse of the Justice Dept. command, and became acting attorney general.

Cox was followed in the job by Leon Jaworski, Charles Ruth, then Ruff.

Plan to allow Concorde to land blasted by Mikva

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, Wednesday blasted a proposal to allow the French Concorde supersonic transport to land in Chicago and St. Louis to commemorate the flight of Charles A. Lindberg from New York to Paris 50 years ago.

The proposal was offered last week by U.S. Rep. Paul Findley, R-20th, when the world observed the 50th anniversary of the first transatlantic flight. Findley, of Pittsfield, Ill., said permitting the jet to land at Lambert International Airport, St. Louis, and O'Hare International Airport would be a "commendable gesture of goodwill" toward France.

The Concorde has created a storm of protest in New York where residents are attempting to prevent the plane from making regular flights.

MIKVA SAID PERSONS living around O'Hare Airport have to put up with enough noise.

"The noise level of the Concorde is 100 per cent higher than the noisiest of our planes. We need more noise at O'Hare Airport like we need another headache," Mikva said.

Mikva wrote Findley, saying the plane should be routed over his district before it lands at Chicago and St. Louis.

"MAY I SUGGEST that if such a proposal is undertaken, the maiden voyage be routed over Litchfield, Pittsfield, Alton, Quincy, Springfield and other peaceful and quiet towns in your 20th District," Mikva said. "If, after the first encounter with the SST, your constituents agree that your magnanimous proposal is commendable, the appropriate Midwest officials could seriously consider the idea of regular SST flights."

Mikva said he received volumes of mail from residents in the western part of the 10th District, which borders on O'Hare Airport, who complain about the current noise levels. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Glenview, Niles and Park Ridge are most affected by the noise.

"Their eardrums have been pummeled and their lifestyles been altered to compensate for the daily din of aircraft," Mikva said. "France's white elephant should not be allowed to land on Americans' eardrums."

Finke resigns as Muir principal

Jim Finke has resigned as principal of Muir School, Drake Terrace and Oak Street, Prospect Heights.

Finke, 33, has been the principal of Muir for eight years. He previously was a science teacher at MacArthur Junior High School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

"I've spent 11 years in education and am at the point in my life where I would like to try some other areas I have talent and potential in," Finke said. "I'm leaving with a lot of fond memories and no negative feelings." He said he has no specific plans.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Edward Grodsky, said Finke is one of the most outstanding superintendent principals in the district.

"We're very sorry to lose him," he said. "I spent two hours trying to talk him out of resigning, but he wants to get out of education and there's nothing I can do about it."

Grodsky is interviewing candidates for the post at Muir.

Arlington Hts. Boys' Football

LAST SIGN-UPS

Sat., May 28 and June 11

It's time to sign up for boys' football in Arlington Heights! The season doesn't start until mid and late August, but the Arlington Heights Youth Athletic Association will hold its last two regular registrations on May 28 and June 11. Boys in grades 5 through 8 are eligible.

The May 28 sign-up will be held at Frontier Park between 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. The June 11 sign-up is scheduled at Pioneer Park, and will also be held from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Boys will see major improvements in the 1977 program. Junior League teams will have new jerseys and helmets. Other leagues will have equipment in most cases only one or two years old.

Older boys are eligible to try out for traveling teams. Other boys participate in the house league, and all boys play, regardless of ability.

The Arlington Heights program offers instruction by coaches who have attended seminars on accident prevention, conditioning and football skills. While competitive in nature, emphasis is placed on instruction and participation.

A parent or guardian must accompany the boy to the registration. The fee is $29, which covers all equipment except shoes.

For more information, call the AHYAA at 392-0975 or Art Gollberg, 398-4711.

Columbo trial to pick up Friday

The murder trial of Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca has been recessed until Friday because a juror was hospitalized late Tuesday after complaining of chest pains.

The juror, a 48-year-old Chicago man, was reported in good condition Wednesday at Columbus Hospital, Chicago, after he was admitted for tests and observation.

The juror is one of 12 hearing the case of Miss Columbo, 20, and DeLuca, 39, who are charged with the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents and 13-year-old brother in Elk Grove Village.

Miss Columbo and DeLuca are being tried in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Earlier this week an alternate juror, a Streamwood woman, was dismissed after she said details of the killings disturbed her sleep and upset her emotionally.

In other developments Wednesday, William P. Murphy, one of three assistant Cook County public defenders for Miss Columbo, filed a motion for a mistrial because of what he called "diliberate misrepresentations" about evidence by prosecutors.

At issue was a crime laboratory report on a strand of hair recovered from the body of Miss Columbo's brother, Michael.

Pincham denied the motion.

True use of school land hinges on missing deed

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

It's tough to get to the bottom of a legend.

Descendants of a prominent Arlington Heights settler are learning that quickly.

They are trying to prove that the property just south of North School in Arlington Heights was intended to remain a children's playground forever. Evidence, however, is scarce.

The deed to the property, given to school officials in 1870 by William Dunton, apparently was lost in the Chicago Fire of 1871. Restrictions the deed may have placed on the land's use now are only legend.

STILL, THE RELATIVES of Dunton, which the village was called before the name was changed to Arlington Heights, have hired an attorney to check into the matter before the land and North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., are auctioned off by Arlington Heights Dist. 25 on June 4.

The relatives, who live in Kansas, Utah and California, were spurred to action by members of the Arlington Heights Historical Society who told them the land was dedicated to the schools with the provision that no building ever was to be erected on it. If the land were sold, it was to revert to William Dunton's heirs, they said they were told.

Having heard the same legend, Dist. 25 officials had the Chicago Title Insurance Co. do a complete title search on the property. The search showed there are no restrictions on the land's use.

"There's no existing document that we or they know of that says the land can only be used as a playground," Supt. Donald Strong said. "It's one of the old legends that just isn't substantiated."

VIRGIL HORATH, president of the historical society, disagrees. He refers to Daisy Paddock Daniels' book "Prairieville, U.S.A." to substantiate the legend.

The book, a history of Arlington Heights, states that the block of land in question was "dedicated by William Dunton for a playground with the provision that no building would ever be erected on it, and it should forever be a playground."

The problem is that Mrs. Daniels has died since the publication of the book and no one is sure whether she wrote this passage after seeing a copy of the original deed or after hearing stories from long-time village residents. If she did have a deed, it is missing.

"If she wrote it in a book I imagine she had something authentic she could refer back to," Horath said. "A copy of the deed could be piled in the volumes of papers we have, but who knows where."

Dave Poster, manager of the Chicago Title Insurance Company's Arlington Heights office, said the deed could be "in an old box in someone's attic" because it's customary to give deeds to the person who had them recorded.

"THE FACT IS, though, that we've been able to find no copy of the deed conveyed to the district in 1870 by William Dunton," he said. "Without the deed it's impossible to say whether there were any restrictions placed on the land or not."

The only clue in the mystery is a recording in the title company's tract book that says the land was deeded to school officials in 1870 by William Dunton, he said. Restrictions that may have been placed on the use of the land are not noted and would be found only on the deed, which apparently was lost in the Chicago Fire, Poster said.

Even if restrictions had been stipulated, they could have been enforced for only 40 years according to statutes, Poster said.

Still, William Dunton's heirs are searching deeper for proof of their claim to the land. Their attorney, Joseph Grayson, said he plans to check the minutes of village and school meetings to see if they contain conditions involved in the property transfer.

"As a Dunton I want to know if I have an interest in the land or not," Mildred Riggs Rumsey, great-grandniece of William Dunton, said from her Hill City, Kan., home.

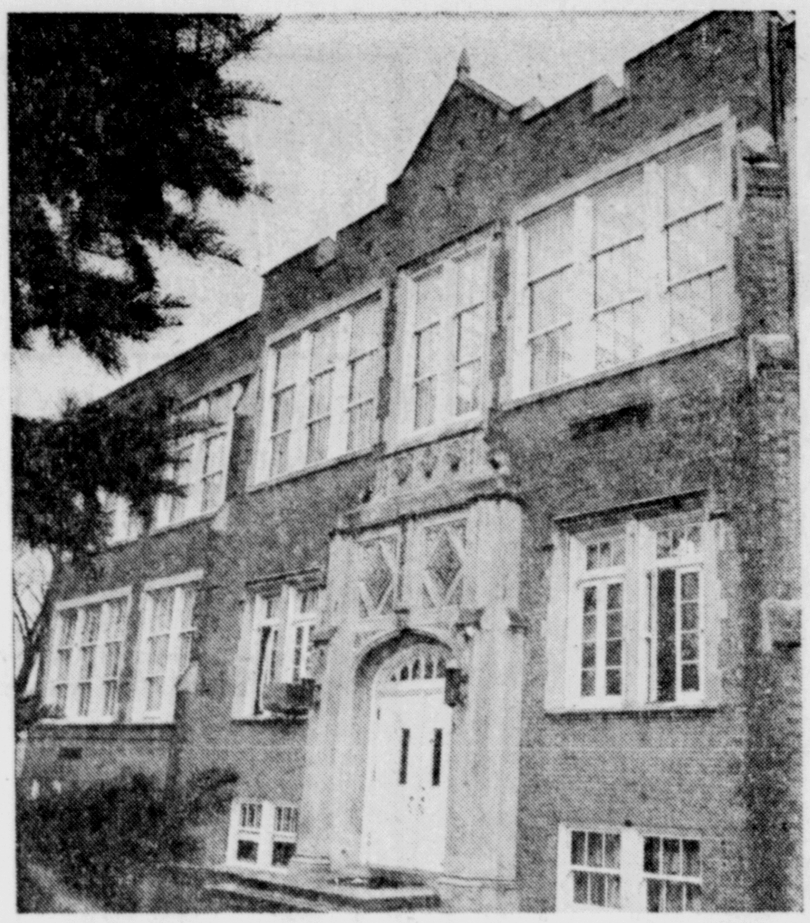
Horath said he is so sure the land was intended to remain a playground or revert to the heirs that he would be willing to sign an affadavit to that effect.

"UNCLE AL VOLZ, who was a walking dictionary and lived to be 100, told me the story so I know it's true," he said.

Horath said Dist. 25 has no more proof that the legend is not true than he has that it is.

"They claim the records were burned up in the Chicago Fire so if enough people say the land was to stay a playground I don't know why the word of the school board is any better than the word of the people," he said.

Meanwhile, North School and the adjoining property are still to be auctioned off at 10 a.m. June 4. The school has been closed since last June because of declining enrollment and dwindling district finances.



NORTH SCHOOL and the land surrounding it in Arlington Heights are the focus of a land controversy — is there a clause in the original deed stating the land can only be used for a children's playground and so cannot be auctioned off by the school district? So far, nobody knows for sure.

New view of sexuality in report

by KURT BAER

A controversial report on human sexuality prepared for the Catholic Theological Society of America discards old categories of "moral" and "immoral" sex acts, but does not endorse sexual promiscuity, one of the authors of the report said Wednesday.

The unpublished study, called "Human Sexuality: New Directions in American Catholic Thought," proposes that sexual decisions be based on personal and social guidelines, rather than on doctrine.

"It may actually be a more restrictive code," said William Carroll, a Catholic layman and a professor at John Marshall Law School who was one of five persons, including two lay persons, two priests and a nun, to write the report.

"IN THE PAST, the tendency has been to look up sexual behavior in a book to find out if it's a "do" or a "don't". Now the individual is burdened with one heck of a lot more responsibility. He can't just rely on labels to tell him whether the act is right or wrong," Carroll said.

Sexual activities traditionally forbidden by Catholic teaching, such as contraception, homosexuality, extramarital sex, masturbation, sterilization, artificial insemination and child-free marriages reportedly are liberally dealt with in the report.

"It doesn't list right or wrongs, in fact it tries to avoid a handbook or catechism approach," said Carroll.

The new view of sexual morality suggests that every sex act should be self-liberating, other-enriching, honest, faithful, socially responsible, life-serving and joyous.

CARROLL SAID THE book is a scholarly work intended for theologians and academics, as well as family and sex counselors. It is not an official statement of the Catholic church and has not been adopted by the Catholic Theological Society of America, he said.

"It is novel in the sense that it has made an attempt to review 2,000 years of Christian tradition in the area of human sexuality," Carroll said. "But it stands by itself as a scholarly work. It doesn't presume to be the official product of the church."

The Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago said it would have no comment on the report until sometime after it is published in New York June 20.

Another author of the report, Sister Agnes Cunningham, a professor at St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, could not be reached for comment.

Carroll said the study has generated "tremendous interest" among Catholic scholars and he predicted criticism "from those who start out with different basic assumptions."

"Theologians working in this area are very aware of the conclusions and practical aspects of the report that justify some of the advice suggested in the study. We have articulated for the first time a lot of generalized thinking that has been going on for some time."

Sex education bill defeated

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Despite pleas proper sex education would help reduce problems like teenage pregnancy, the Illinois Senate Wednesday soundly defeated a bill requiring all school districts to offer sex education courses.

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northbrook, said his bill (S298) would have allowed school boards to decide when to start sex education and would have given parents the right to keep their children out of the classes.

"Society ought not turn its back on this problem" of teen-age pregnancies, Glass said. He said the problem is rife in rich as well as poor neighborhoods.

SEN. EARLEAN COLLINS, D-Oak Park, said sex should be talked about openly. The belief sex is still a closed-door topic, she said, "is just as antiquated as believing storks deliver babies."

Sen. John Knuppel, D-Virginia, said sex should be taught in school so all children know about it. "I learned down behind the barn," Knuppel said.

Parents are not doing an adequate job of teaching their children about sex, said Sen. Vivian Hickey, D-Rockford. She quoted Ann Landers as saying children experiment with sex with or without the facts and "that's dangerous."

BUT SEN. LeROY Lemke, D-Chicago, said he feared abortion would be discussed. "I'm not going to let any of these women's libbers teach my kids about abortion," he said.

Sen. Kenneth Hall, D-East St. Louis, said parents should stay home and teach their own chilren about sex rather than using schools as baby-sitters.

Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, said the legislature should not force schools to teach sex education without paying for the program. "We have mandated all kinds of things like bilingual education and special education we always seem to come up short on funding," Rock said. The bill was defeated, 14-40.

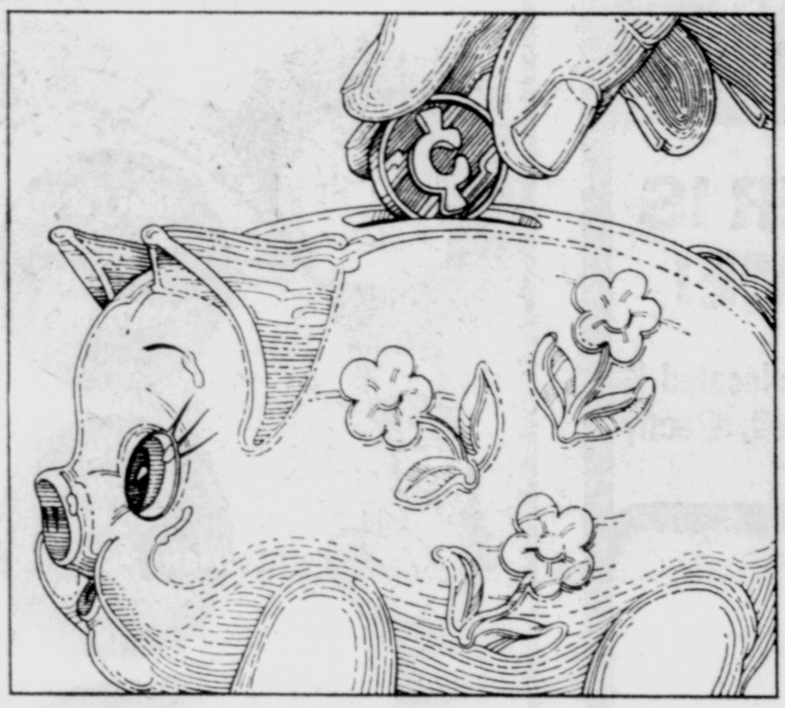
If we don't restore phone service to your home within 12 hours, ask for a credit.



Chances are, your home telephone service will never fail you. But if it ever does, getting it fixed is as easy as calling Illinois Bell's Repair Service.

Just dial 611 in Chicago and most suburbs. (Elsewhere, the number is in the front pages of your phone book.)

We have over 5,000 repair people working for you, so you can normally expect prompt service. And there's no extra charge as long as the equipment is Bell's and the damage was not caused by abuse or neglect.

Occasionally, though, repair orders do get bunched up. So if you still can't make or receive calls at your home 12 hours after you've notified Repair Service, you can ask for a credit for the time you were without service.

Just call your Business Office at the number listed on your phone bill and in the phone directory. Your Service Representative will look into it for you and determine what credit is due, based on your monthly service charge. (For example, on a monthly charge of $12, a one-day refund would be 40¢.)

How to get credit for an out-of-service phone is one of the many money-saving facts and ideas you'll find in our new booklet, "Consumers' Guide: Home Telephone Service."

Singlaub view of Korea troop strength unchanged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, fired by President Carter as U.S. chief of staff in Korea, told Congress Wednesday he still believes it would be dangerous for the United States to withdraw its ground forces from South Korea.

Singlaub testified he was not challenging his commander-in-chief's decision to bring home more than 30,000 U.S. troops in Korea over the next five years. And he said he was "naive" to let himself by quoted by a reporter as saying that Carter's plan could lead to another Korean war.

But he made it clear he still believed — as he originally told The Washington Post reporter — that "flat out, unequivocably" the South Koreans felt that when U.S. ground troops are withdrawn, "Kim Il-Seung will attack. And I told him that purely militarily, I agreed."

HE WAS SUBSEQUENTLY ordered to the White House and removed personally by Carter from his South Korean post.

Defense Sec. Harold Brown flatly disagreed with Singlaub's assessment, telling a National Press Club luncheon, "I believe that withdrawals of U.S. ground combat forces from Korea can be safely accomplished over the period 4 to 5 years under the conditions we have publicly declared, namely the maintenance of U.S. air and logistic support, continued strengthening of South Korean military forces, and the full commitment of the United States to the security of Korea."

Singlaub's superiors told him of the new policy weeks before he talked to the Post reporter. "It's because he knew, and directly expressed an opinion contrary to that policy, that it really became impossible for him to serve in that spot," Brown said.

The general gave the House Armed Services investigations subcommittee an alarming picture of growing North Korean military strength he said Seoul could not match for another eight years.

He said recent intelligence disclosed the North Koreans have built up their tank force from 500 to 2,000, added Chinese-built MIG19 jetfighters and heavy troop transports, increased their armored vehicles and built missile boats and submarines.

THE NORTH Korean submarines "bother the Republic of Korea most seriously. They are of Soviet design but of North Korean manufacture," he said.

He said China and the Soviet Union restrain North Korea's President Kim from attacking the south because they do not want a confrontation with American forces.

"Remove those forces and that element of restraint would also be removed," Singlaub said.

A U.S. mission headed by Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Philip C. Habib, undersecretary of state for political affairs, met for nearly four hours in Seoul Wednesday with South Korean President Park Chung-Hee to reassure him the U.S. pullout would not be allowed to disturb Korean security.

Singlaub, wearing full uniform with nine rows of decorations, admitted he had not told the Post reporter the briefing was on background. "I failed to do that and that is why I characterize my conduct at that time as naive."

Singlaub, 55, said he did not intend "to take issue with our stated national security policy" in the interview.

GEN. MATTHEW B. RIDGWAY, left, who 26 years ago replaced the fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur, center, as allied commander in the Korean War, says President Carter was "entirely within his rights" in relieving Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, right, for criticizing Carter's Korea policy. Ridgway says the proposal to withdraw American ground forces goes back at least two to three years.

Korea pullout draws military fire

by ROBERT C. MILLER

HONOLULU (UPI) — Despite Carter administration policy, America's top military brass in the Pacific are practically unanimous in opposing any pullout of U.S. troops from South Korea.

Before President Carter ordered a clampdown on comments opposing the administration's plan to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea, the top U.S. commanders in the field spoke freely about their fears of the effect of a pullout on possible aggression by North Korea.

Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., commander of U.S. forces in Korea, said last month: "In my view, the withdrawal of all American ground troops would raise the probability of war in Korea."

Others in Commander-in-Chief Pacific Command agreed.

"The statements of both Vessey and Gen. John Singlaub reflect the views of practically the entire Pacific Command," a field grade officer at the headquarters in Hawaii said. "But if you ask for my official reaction, it will be 'no comment.' We've gotten the message up here: 'Shut up.' "

SINGLAUB WAS recalled to Washington and relieved of his post as chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea after he continued to criticize the administration decision to withdraw troops.

Vessey told reporters in Seoul late in April he believed the presence of the 33,000 Americans in South Korea was more of a deterrent to a North Korean invasion than the prospect of American use of atomic weapons.

"We are here to prevent a war, not to fight one," Vessey said.

"The presence here of two well-armed, highly-trained American divisions is more of a psychological deterrent on the North Koreans than either nuclear weapons or Air Force contingents."

Vessey's deputy commander, Air Force Gen. John J. Burns, said the entire command was worried about the effect an American pullout would have.

"We are very concerned," Burns said, "that there be no miscalculation by North Korea of the United Nations strength in South Korea which might tempt the North Koreans to attempt another invasion."

$5 billion price tag on Korean action

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — The United States assured President Park Chung-hee Wednesday that it would withdraw 33,000 American troops from South Korea without weakening Korean security. The South Koreans put a $5 billion price tag on the pullout.

South Korean officials said President Carter's plans to withdraw U.S. troops would cost $5 billion to make Korea's 600,000-man army strong enough to resist invasion from Communist North Korea. They said Korea could put up $2.5 billion and the United States would be asked for the other $2.5 billion.

A U.S. statement said, "The United States also confirmed the American government will support the military buildup of the Republic of Korea commensurate with the withdrawal and that the U.S. Air Force will continue to remain." No cost figures were mentioned.

The statement came after the United States told South Korea the 33,000 U.S. ground troops would be withdrawn from Korea in four to five years in a way that will not disturb Korean security. South Korea said definite security measures must precede the pullout to ensure peace.

ICC grants Illinois Bell 8.1% of rate hike request

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Wednesday gained approval of business and residential service rate hikes that will net the utility an estimated $8,965,000 in additional annual income.

But the Illinois Commerce Commission action sparked criticism from Illinois Bell Pres. Charles Marshall and State Rep. Ellis Levin, D-Chicago, a utility critic. Noting the rate increase package amounts to 8.1 per cent of the requested $110 million in additional revenues, Marshall said the phone company will ask the ICC for a rehearing to review its decision.

"THE ILLINOIS COMMERCE Commission's decision leaves us far short of the money we need. We are profoundly disappointed," Marshall said.

Icc chairman Marvin Lieberman said Chicago area customers who rarely use the telephone may save money under the new rate plan. In the low-user "Measure Zero service," customers pay a flat $3.50 monthly fee and a charge of 5¾ cents for each outgoing call.

The biggest chunk of the rate increases granted by the ICC approximately $3,588,000, will be rate increases for coin telephone calls within the Chicago area. Local coin telephone calls will remain 20 cents.

Other rate increases include WATS service, Centrex systems, key telephone systems and selective calling services.

THE COMMISSION also allowed Illinois Bell to boost its monthly service rates in basic business and residence service for East St. Louis, Belleville, Edgemont, Granite City, Lebanon, New Athens and O'Fallon. The Downstate rate increases will amount to $440,000 in revenue.

The ICC declined to order a $15 million rebate to customers, for excess phone company earnings. The commission had ordered Illinois Bell to show why the overcharges should not be refunded to customers two years ago, but Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said the ICC had no authority to order the refund.

"I think Illinois Bell did not deserve any kind of rate increase," said State Rep. Ellis Levin, D-Chicago. Although he praised the ICC for the low-user rate reduction and the relatively small rate increases granted to Illinois Bell, Levin said the commission's consideration of the $15 million rebate was a "cruel publicity hoax."

Levin has participated in several Illinois Bell cases before the ICC, acting as an intervenor. A $42 million Bell rebate case has remained before the ICC since 1973, Levin said.

Levin said the commission "failed to take the opportunity to scrutinize the operations of Illinois Bell to determine what the service really costs." He said state legislation should be developed to require cost-of-service studies and an annual review of utility rates of return.

MARSHALL SAID the consumer price index has increased 87 per cent since 1966, but the telephone company rates have risen 28 per cent in the same period.

"We asked for only a 6 per cent increase in basic revenues — with no increases in most basic residence and business rates," Marshall said. "Our basic service rates have not changed for 3½ years."

Illinois Bell is allowed an 8.95 per cent rate of return on total capital. According to company spokesman Mernie Miller of Arlington Heights, the utility believes a 10 per cent rate of return is necessary.

Illinois Bell has 5,544,807 residential customers and 1,996,885 business customers in Illinois.

Roberts found guilty of mail fraud scheme

by TONI GINNETTI

The owner of a defunct Des Plaines mail order business was found guilty Wednesday of using the mails in a $1.7 million scheme purporting to sell digital watches.

Dennis L. Roberts, 45, was found guilty on all 50 counts of mail fraud in connection with the operation of his firm, Teltronics Ltd.

The jury of eight women and four men deliberated 2½ hours before reaching their decision. U.S. District Court Judge John P. Crowley set July 15 for sentencing.

Roberts faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $1,000 fine on each count.

ROBERTS SAT impassively as the verdict was read late Wednesday. His wife, Abigail, seated beside defense attorney Allan Peters of Arlington Heights, dabbed tears from her eyes as Judge Crowley polled the jury on the verdict.

The verdict came after government and defense lawyers presented closing arguments Wednesday morning. Government prosecuters called Roberts "a con man who sold a bill of goods" to everyone associated with him.

In closing arguments, prosecutors compared Roberts to the con men portrayed in the movie "The Sting," characterizing him as a man who devised an elaborate, million-dollar scheme to defraud persons who sought to buy digital watches from Teltronics.

But attorneys defending Roberts, told jurors their client was "an honest" businessman who "got caught in a business deal that outraced him."

"DENNIS ROBERTS might just be a victim," Arlington Heights attorney William Tomlinson said.

"Something like this could conceivable happen to anyone in this country."

The closing statements came Wednesday following nearly two weeks of testimony.

Roberts, of Lake Forest, has been charged with 50 counts of mail fraud stemming from the operation of Teltronics, a firm which allegedly collected $1.7 million dollars from the mail order sale of digital watches for $16.95 and $17.95 each.

THOUSANDS OF purchasers across the country complained in December to Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott when they failed to receive their watches after their checks had been cashed. The complaint prompted a state and federal investigation which led to the freezing of the business and to Roberts' subsequent arrest.

Wednesday, Roberts sat, as he has throughout the trial, fidgeting with a pen and notepad as Assistant U.S. Atty. Bob Stephenson told the jury "not to be conned" by defense arguments which attempted to show Roberts as a well-intentioned businessman whose plans went awry.

Stephenson said Roberts, who used the names John and Jack Rodine, planned a detailed scheme of fraud, establishing a "legitimate front" and then "selling a bill of goods to everyone he talked to from August to December, 1976."

Assistant U.S. Atty. James Streicher labeled Roberts operation as "fraudlent from beginning to end This is a big scheme," he added. "We're talking about $1.7 million. There's not one thing honest about his business operation."

Flights to Cuba stopped after bombing of office

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The president of a small airline dropped plans Wednesday to become the first domestic carrier to resume flights to Cuba because "thugs" — probably Cuban exiles — bombed a company office.

The regional marketing office of Mackey International Airlines suffered minor damage from a bomb explosion just after midnight Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

The blast shattered windows and blew a hole at the base of a wall.

POLICE CAPT. Charles White said the bomber used a "medium powerful explosive (which) appeared to be well placed." The FBI said it had joined the investigation into the explosion.

An anonymous caller telephoned UPI in Miami less than one hour after the blast and claimed responsibility in the name of a dead anti-Castro leader.

"Several bombs have been placed at the offices of Mackey International Airlines by the Pedro Luis Boitel Commandoes. The rights of the Cuban people are being violated," said the caller, whose voice appeared muffled as if the telephone had been covered with a handkerchief.

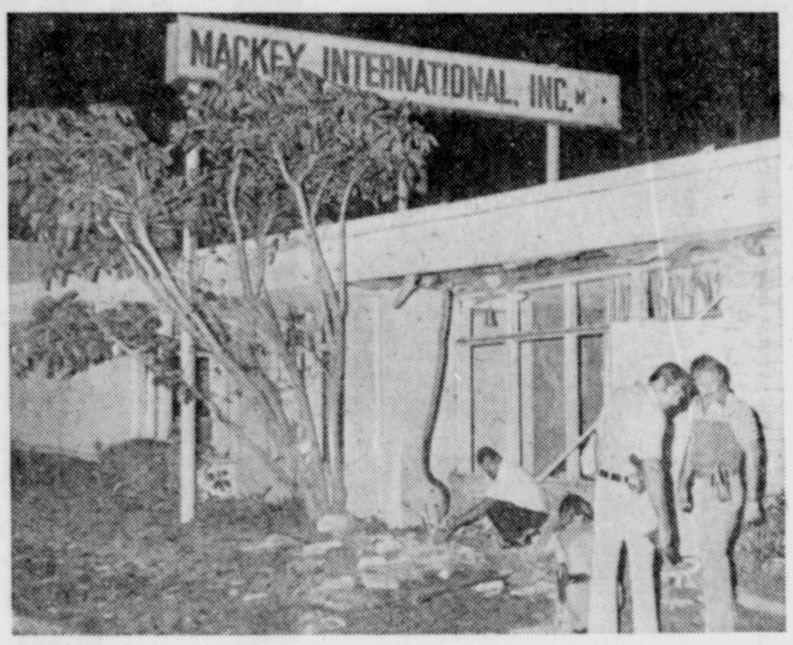
Col. Joseph Mackey, president and founder of the airline, said employes, local police and fire departments checked company facilities and all aircraft, but turned up no other bombs. He said operations were normal except for delays on all flights.

"IT'S NOT MY nature to give in to thugs, but when I have people's health involved I have no other choice," Mackey said. "We're dropping all possible operations (to Cuba), including charters.

"It makes my tongue bleed from biting . . . but I have no other way. If they achieved their mission, they'll probably leave us alone."

The small airline serving the Bahamas and British West Indies has run charter flights to Havana in recent months, and Mackey had hoped to begin regularly scheduled service in a few weeks.

Boitel, a poet and anti-Castro student leader at the University of Havana, was imprisoned in 1960 when he ran for student body president. During the next 12 years of incarceration, he staged 18 hunger strikes. He died during a hunger strike in 1972 at age 41 and has become a symbol for some Cuban exiles.



FORT LAUDERDALE police sift wreckage outside Mackey International airlines after bomb blast. An anonymous caller told UPI several bombs had been planted at the building. The airline's president later dropped plans to resume flights to Cuba.

Want a finer lawn and landscaping now and pay as you live and play on it?

Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. will arrange through the Landscaper and Garden Supply Dealer of your choice, to sod and landscape your lawn. You can take up to several years to pay as you enjoy your home and its landscaped surroundings.

Your Landscape Contractor will plant only the finest trees, plants, shrubbery and sod. The sod he will be planting will be BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass and other fine bluegrasses developed by Warren' research who grow for you the finest lawns available today. Here is why:

Research facilities, established nearly a third of a century ago by Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc., have under observation over 1,000 strains and species of lawn grasses. Several of these new grass discoveries have had excellent ratings from universities who are doing turfgrass research. They have no financial interest in the sale of these new grasses.

One of these grasses is BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass which outranks all other bluegrasses in most of the categories studied and tested. For example:

BenSun (A-34) is rated the most shade tolerant of any bluegrass.

BenSun (A-34) is the only grass to receive an excellent rating for wear tolerance.

BenSun (A-34) is rated near the top in disease resistance.

BenSun (A-34) has been under observation for twenty-five years and has been performance proven on hundreds of thousands of lawns, athletic fields and golf courses for the past eighteen years. No other recent bluegrass development has had such a long experience of successful ratings and performance.

BenSun (A-34) thrives in hot and cold climates, high and low altitudes and does well on good or poor soil.

BenSun (A-34) is the most hardy bluegrass available. When injured it springs back quickly, healing the injury in a very short time.

BenSun (A-34) was the only grass to remain green during the recent drought in England, Scotland and France. Tees at St. Andrews Golf course planted with BenSun (A-34) remained green even when not watered regularly.

So why wait . . . do it now and enjoy the rest of the summer doing the things you and your family enjoy most. Simple maintenance instructions your Landscape Contractor and Garden Supply Dealer will provide, will keep your home looking beautiful for many years.

If you want to do the work yourself, contract the Landscape Contractor or Garden Supply Dealer of your choice and purchase your sod and landscaping from him. Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. will finance your new lawn and landscaping.

Israel says Arabs broke Sinai accord

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel accused Egypt Wednesday of violating the Sinai interim agreement by moving extra troops and shoulder-fired SAM-7 missiles onto the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The military command said Israel is demanding the "removal of the forbidden Egyptian forces and weapons."

According to the announcement, Egypt now has 538 personnel in excess of the 8,000 it is allowed to keep east of the Suez Canal under the terms of the U.S.-mediated Sinai pact.

THERE ARE 17 shoulder-launched, surface-to-air Strella missiles on the east bank of the waterway and one such missile on the western bank, the announcement said.

It said a U.N. inspection has validated the Israeli charges.

Reports about alleged Egyptian violations of the Sinai accord were rife before the May 17 elections.

There was no immediate explanation from either the military command or diplomatic sources as to the timing of the Israeli complaint.

Earlier, President Ephraim Katzir said a peace agreement with the Arabs will be the "prime and central concern" of any Israeli government.

HIS COMMENT came as doctors reported right-wing leader Menahem Begin, whose Likud bloc won the recent election, was recuperating from an inflammation of the membrane around his heart. Doctors said Begin will be able to go to Washington soon for talks on a possible Middle East peace settlement.

"It's our belief that he will be released in a few days and he will not be limited in the capacity to perform the duties of prime minister because of this episode," said Dr. Shlomo Laniado.

Begin's allies worked to put together a coalition government. Spokesmen said they reached agreement on foreign affairs, defense matters and the question of new Jewish settlements in territory seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

Anti-parole law an over-reaction

The Illinois House of Representatives, caught up in the current cry to "get tough on criminals," has over-reacted in its move to totally eliminate parole in favor of fixed sentences for criminal offenses.

The House, by an overwhelming vote, has given its approval to the legislation which grew out of a proposal made two years ago by then-Gov. Daniel Walker. State Rep. L. Michael Getty, D-Dolton, was the bill's chief sponsor, guiding it through his judiciary committee on adult corrections.

The bill has yet to be presented to the Senate. When it reaches that body, legislators there should attempt to modify the proposal.

As passed by the House, the bill would not only "get tough" on criminals but also on the state corrections system.

The bill would provide for not only the abolition of parole but would double the maximum penalty for habitual offenders, increase prison terms for murder and create a 10-member prison review board to consider requests for gubernatorial pardons.

That combination could spell disaster for the state prison system, which already is being taxed to the limit financially and physically.

Acting Corrections Dir. Charles J. Rowe has said if bills such as Getty's are all passed, the state prison population of 10,050 could double within three years. That prediction holds alarming prospects.

In addition to creating overcrowding problems, eliminating parole would abolish a valuable tool prison officials now have for maintaining order in penal institutions. "Good time" served in prison counts toward parole, and inmates know this. The parole system thus serves as an incentive for good prison behavior.

Dealing with society's problem of crime and punishment is no easy task, and the lawmakers are to be commended for their current efforts toward reform.

But the step they have taken in regard to parole is not only too drastic, but misdirected. Statistics compiled by the John Howard Assn. recently showed that Illinois' success rate for parole has been a consistently high 80 per cent, well above the national average.

Instead of abolishing a system which can boast that kind of success, the legislature would do better to work toward its continuation and improvement toward the 100 per cent level.

Right action on scandal

The outcome of the case of Buffalo Grove Village Engineer Carl W. Rapp, who is accused of attempted extortion of a village developer, will be decided by the federal courts.

But it is clear that officials of Buffalo Grove and Louis P. Shassian, the developer in the case, are to be commended for their actions thus far.

Buffalo Grove officials promptly suspended Rapp without pay after he was arrested last week by FBI agents and accused of trying to extort $100,000 from Shassian in exchange for speeding up approval of a proposed single-family home development.

In addition, the village board has hired an outside consultant to review that project and other projects handled by Rapp in recent months. Those actions should reassure Buffalo Grove residents that their officials are guarding village interests.

Shassian has, by reporting the alleged bribe to federal officials, placed determination of his own credibility in the hands of the court. He has also focused attention clearly on the fact that it takes two persons who are willing to act dishonestly for extortion plans to succeed.

The scandal in Buffalo Grove contains the elements of human tragedy that are often present in such cases. Rapp, a young, respected engineer, stands in jeopardy of losing his career and reputation as a result of the charge.

The case will not be a black-eye on the entire village, whatever the outcome, because of the exemplary way Rapp's fellow officials have reacted.

Israelis tend to follow zealots in times of crisis

Paul Greenberg

If any party in the world deserved to lose an election, it was Israel's Labor party. In power for thirty years, it seemed unable to offer more than recurrent scandals, indecisive leadership and ruinous inflation. Between ubiquitous bureaucrats, paralyzing labor unions and one of the most complacent old-boy networks in the world, Israel's old idealism was sinking from view, as though it had been reserved for emergency use only. In Israel, it was past time for a change. The Labor party got what it deserved.

But do the Israelis deserve Menahem Begin as prime minister? His party might be able to shake Israel out of its domestic stupor, but in foreign affairs Begin might simply shake Israel. His position on any territorial compromise on the West Bank and Gaza is Against. He sounds about as flexible and far-seeing as Nguyen Van Thieu, and might yet prove as successful.

To those with long memories, and in the Middle East memories tend to be longest, Menahem Begin cannot escape his past as a terrorist and apologist for terror. No longer do such lead only the Arab countries in the Middle East. The moral distance between Israel and its adversaries has been narrowed by Begin's election. How can Israel refuse to treat with Yasser Arafat on moral grounds with Menahem Begin at the head of its own government?

"I DO NOT LOOK for scapegoats," the leade of Israel's Labor party, Shimon Peres, said after the election. It's the kind of comment politicians make preparatory to looking for scapegoats, and up near the top of Peres's list of explanations for losing was the Israeli public's not being "sure what we are up against in the United States." He may have a point. Jimmy Carter's Mideast policy, as expressed during the campaign and on those intermittent occasions when he has been able to inflluence it, is not to pressure Israel into concessions but rather to influence Israel into them through generous support.

Yet between the Arabists in the State Department and the oilier strategists in Defense, the Israelis were given reason to fear the new American administration. And fear is how hardliners like Menahem Begin get elected.

During the past few months, "technical" difficulties arose in the delivery of American arms to Israel. The American cluster bombs promised by the last administration were refused Israel, though they would have been a powerful deterrent against another surprise attack dependent on hardened missile bases. Jerusalem was discouraged from establishing its own aircraft industry by an American objection to the sale of Israeli planes to Ecuador. And for a time, the Israelis were told that their arms requests in general would be given a lower priority than those from various other American friends and allies, including Japan and New Zealand.

WHEN PRESIDENT CARTER realized the import of that decision, he rescinded it immediately and, in a report reminiscent of Harry Truman's battles with the State and Defense departments over Mideast policy, Jimmy Carter was quoted as saying he had been misled by lower-level advisers.

But by that time, it may have been too late to affect the large undecided vote in the Israeli elections. If Washington was going to pressure Jerusalem even when it adopted a moderate line, then why not go with the hardest liner around? Namely, Menahem Begin. So that in a curiously self-fulfilling characterization, those in Washington who always had said that Israel was intransigent may have played a pivotal role in making it so.

Optimists, an endangered if not extinct species in the Mideast, may see things differently. Perhaps Menahem Begin will succeed in forming a government-of-national-unity from far Left to far Right that will give Israel the unity necessary to make concessions that will not endanger her security.

BEGIN IS NOT A prophet without honor in his own country, having last left such a government in protest against the cease-fire with Egypt in 1970. It was the immediate violation of that agreement by Cairo that made its Yom Kippur onslaught possible. Under Begin's leadership. Israel's case may be presented with a forcefulness and coherence it has lacked. And the strong showing of Israel's new party (the Democratic Movement for change, which is just that); may prove a moderating force on Begin's foreign policy while helping him reform its economy and government.

Back in reality, it's more likely that Begin will have to form a government only with his own party and a small group of religious zealots. That might only provoke Arab riots on the West Bank, another war in the region, and another nuclear confrontation beyond it. There is a dangerous tendency in Israel's history to go with zealotry at crucial times, a tendency that can be traced back to the days when the adversaries were Roman and, before that, Babylonian. (Jeremiah was a moderate at the time and his counsel lost out.)

Begin's victory is not a happy augury. Unless one can believe that an old terrorist who has been denied power for 30 years will, on winning it his ninth time out, prove magnanimous and far-sighted. Only in a part of the world where history is intertwined with the miraculous can one hope for that.

What breed rooster is he?

Does Carter lack fight or is he wise?

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK
(Commentary)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eugene McCarthy, who always has been able to fricassee the pretensions of every politician except one, began yet another career recently with a slice and fry job on Jimmy Carter worthy of Julia Child.

The former senator, former Democrat, former independent presidential candidate and newly launched newspaper columnist, reviewed the president's first months in office as the posturing of an immature rooster, brandishing his spurs at everything within sight, but too uncertain to actually attack anything.

McCarthy supported this thesis by citing Carter's several retreats from what were supposed to be firmly held positions. His description of Carter as the nervous cockerel flexing his claws as if to do battle over the $50 tax rebate and then withdrawing without striking the first blow was first class ridicule.

LIKE GOOD political cartooning, satirical writing demands a special black and white view of the world. The master, Art Buchwald, once said the last thing he wanted to know was all the detals of what went on in government. Seeing the gray areas ruins the comic contrast of simple appearances.

So McCarthy, who as an independent presidential candidate last year, asked the public to look below the surface realities of the two-party system, was perfectly justified as a journalist this year in ignoring the subtleties of the presidential-congressional relationship.

Still, something ought to be said for the way Carter is operating. That something could be "learning."

Carter came to town with less first hand knowledge about the way things are done in Washington than any president since Woodrow Wilson. Every other new president since 1920, including Dwight Eisenhower, had in some way been involved in the Realpolitik of the national capital before moving into the White House.

IF HIS ELECTION campaign was any clue, Carter is a man who tries to thoroughly study any problem before he attempts to deal with it. He does not always accept the conventional wisdom — witness his campaign appeals to patriotism and morality at a time when both were supposed to be passe — but he usually knows and weighs the options available before acting.

On the basis of the record, Carter also is not afraid to back off if he has made a mistake or finds himself in a fight he can't win. He did it on "ethnic purity" and the Playboy interview during the campaign and he did it on the tax rebate when he became president.

True, he concocted an excuse that was supposed to make the rebate backdown look like a voluntary decision, but that is in the same political category as such statements as "I'm delighted to be here in West Armpit."

In any case, it has yet to be established that Carter is going to be a reluctant rooster for the rest of his term. The energy issue may show us whether he learned something from his experience on the tax rebate.

In the meantime, there is something columnist McCarthy ought to remember about young fighting cocks who charge boldly into the pit to destroy their opponent with a single blow. Many of them never grow old.

He defends family farm

We are all aware of the exorbitant costs of food commodities, and we question the rationale for such rapid, frequent increases in costs. It appears as though another price increase occurs before the ink is dry on the previously marked product. What factor(s) contributes to these spiraling costs other than our standard alibi — inflation. Maybe we need to thoroughly investigate the impact of large agribusiness corporations and their influence on high costs. Many of us are probably not aware of the silent social struggle that is now beginning to occur over food production and land ownership.

It appears as though there is corporate land speculation presently under way by large domestic and multi-national corporations. These corporations invest in prime agricultural lands and then lease it on a cash-rent, share crop basis. Many hire manager-operators to work their lands. Because of the land speculation problem it has contributed to land cost increases of 25-30 per cent per acre, thus many family farmers are forced from their lands by well-capitalized agribusiness corporations.

The small farmer is forced to pay high prices to the highly monopolistic input supply industries such as seed, feed, fertilizers and machinery and sell cheaply to the equally monopolistic output corporations that process, market and retail what the farmer has produced. Thus we find that the small farmer can't afford to produce food and the urban consumer cannot afford to buy it.

It is estimated that 25 per cent of U.S. food production is controlled by nonfarm interests (U.S. Agriculture Dept. figures). Agribusiness concerns are purchasing prime agricultural land running into millions of acres. The land value inflation prevents starting or expanding upon a family farm. Somehow there needs to be a balance in order to encourage the family farm. If there isn't a balance then the agribusiness corporations will "move in" and control more of our lives. This we don't need!

What business do Standard Oil of Indiana, Greyhound and major banks have in farming other than an extreme profit motive and control. They should be out of the farm business. It might lead to reduction of food costs.

'R-films draw youth'

A couple of years ago my sons wanted to see the movie "Aloha Bobby and Rose." I had to go along with them because the movie showing with it was 'R' rated and they were too young to get in alone. The price of the admittance was outrageous and a double rip off since I had to go with them!

I never saw 'X' or 'R' rated movies before and I assumed that the 'R' movie could not be too bad. Wow! Was I ever wrong! The whole movie was nothing but sex, nudity and mass murder, supposedly our National Pastime in the year 2000. Adolph Hitler looked like a saint compared to the stars in this very sick exploitation of nude women and barbarous human slaughter, Rated 'R.'

Extremely sadistic, and degenerate were the morons that made that movie, but that did not upset me. What truly disgusted me was that I was in the Rolling Meadows Theater, only a few blocks from my house — and I was the only one in the audience over 20 years old! The theater was filled with kids mostly under 16 years old.

My alderman has decided to fight censorship of the Rolling Meadows Theater. I voted for him two elections in a row, I won't make that mistake a third time!

Worthy of note

I have always been impressed with the high quality teaching that I have witnessed in Schaumburg Twp. School District 54. I feel that nowhere is my tax dollar returned to me in the form of high quality service than from this school district.

Last night this impression was further fortified by Mr. Kurgan, the gymnast teacher at Churchill school as I witnessed a performance of his young students. Never have I enjoyed a performance more.

I wish to publicly applaud him for his dedication and fine teaching ability. I hope the leadership of Dist. 54 realizes what a fine teacher they have in this person.

'Rebel' galleries showcase art at fair, anti-establishment prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Painters and sculptors have complained for generations that a clique of international dealers determines price levels and which artists will receive recognition.

Now, helped by a growing popular interest in art, American artists are doing something about it.

Independent galleries are springing up around the country, making art available to the general public at prices that assure artist and gallery a profit and giving exposure to the newcomer.

Sculptor Rhys Caparn of Newtown, Conn., a past president of the American Federation of Modern Painters and Sculptors, says the best estimate is that these "rebel" galleries presently have annual sales of $20 million to $25 million handling the works of 1,200 artists.

The sales price range is wide. "The Madison Avenue-57th Street Establishment dealers," Miss Caparn said, "price too much good work out of the reach of even the fairly well-to-do."

At the new galleries, the artists customarily get two-thirds of the gross but because many are unknown, they also pay part of the gallery overhead, which cuts their net share to less than 60 per cent.

The galleries came into being, Miss Caparn said, because first rate American artists, both young and matured, believe they are being crowded by the establishment galleries and because many persons who want to buy paintings and sculpture think establishment dealers have inflated prices beyond reason.

Most of the rebel galleries are in the South and Southwest, a few in the East and some on the West Cost. There are successful operations in such diverse locations as Katonah, N.Y., Beverly Hills and Pasadena, Calif., New Orleans, Porter, Ind.; Houston, Salt Lake City, Detroit, Minneapolis, Raleigh, N.C., Memphis and Miami and Palm Beach, Fla.

Miss Caparn, a practicing sculptor for 47 years, whose work is in some of the world's great museums, played an important role in the establishment of one such gallery at Bethel, Conn., where she is exhibiting.

THE BETHEL GALLERY, called the Opera House, was created when architect Rolf Vigmostad refurbished an 1848 theater of the type that was called an "opera house" in so many Eastern and Midwestern communities.

Nancy Whitney Lutz, granddaughter of the founder of New York's Whitney Museum, and painters Robert Andrew Parker and Sperry Andrews also played important roles.

The Bethel gallery has had four shows so far. Its first of the works of the late Rockwell Kent was financially successful. Parker and Andrews each sold between 50 and 60 works at the next shows at the Opera House.

Miss Caparn said that among the new rebel galleries scattered all over the country, several already have sales of $1 million a year or more. Among them are the Martin Schweig Gallery in St. Louis, which shows the works of Will Talbot; the Henri Gallery in Washington where painter Alice Barker exhibits; Chicago's Gilman Gallery showing the works of painter Frank Gallo and the Petersen Sculpture Gallery in Beverly Hills, Calif.

The Katonah Gallery, in suburban New York, one of the oldest of the rebels, will not disclose its sales but they are known to be substantial. It has backers who have been associated with New York's Whitney Museum and has shown the works of prominent artists as well as comparative newcomers.

Even the smaller rebel galleries do well, Miss Caparn said. The Peel Gallery at Denby, Vt., did about $60,000 worth of business last year with operating costs of under $15,000.

Farm equipment sales to stay same

The Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute of Chicago, which earlier this year predicted a 4 per cent increase in retail dollars sales, is backing off and estimating total farm equipment sales will be the same as in 1976. The zero-increase projection came in a "State of the Industry" report by Harry Lusk, general manager of the sales and marketing division of the Allis-Chalmers Corp., at a recent FIEI marketing and management conference in Washington, D.C. He blamed the drop in projected overall sales on a variety of factors, including anticipated inflation rates higher than increases in farm prices, the FIEI said. Other factors that may deter sales in 1977 were rising world grain stocks and an excellent world crop outlook, the drought in western states, relatively low market prices for wheat and corn and "lack of export emphasis in policy," the report said. However, a number of positive factors could boost sales, including the possibility of stronger domestic and foreign economies. Other factors were the large acreage in production by U.S. farmers, improved moisture in many areas, high levels of exports, stable farm income and increased 1977 loan rates.

Car sales down 5.2% in mid-May

The nation's "Big Four" automakers reported a 5.2 per cent decline in mid-May domestic car sales and cited buyer uncertainty stirred by President Carter's gas guzzler tax and small car rebate plan. Industry sales for the May 11-20 period totaled 294,770, down from 310,869 during the same span in 1976. Only Ford Motor Co. reported a sales gain. Ford Vice President Bennett E. Bidwell said the overall industry decline was due to "low stocks in several lines and some buyer indecision about the size of car to buy." Ford sales amounted to 82,211 units, a 9.2 per cent increase over the 75,289 cars sold a year ago. General Motors sold 165,556 cars, down 8.6 per cent from the 181,053 delivered during the 1976 period. Chrysler Corp. sales, at 41,197, were off 10.4 per cent from 45,989 last year and American Motors, the small car specialist, slipped to 5,806, a 32 per cent drop from 8,538 in 1976.

Sale priced items easier to find

Items on special sale at Walgreen Drug Stores will be easier to find from now on. The Federal Trade Commission announced this week that Walgreen Co., Deerfield, has signed a consent order settling an FTC complaint that accused the nationwide chain of not stocking sale items and of selling merchandise at prices higher than advertised. Under the agreement, Walgreen will use shelf signs to locate specials, mark each item clearly with the advertised price and sell specials at or below the price mentioned. Items offered at sale prices will be stocked adequately and consumers will be given rain checks when those supplies run out, the FTC said.

Wabash earnings up in 1976

Wabash Inc., Palatine, has reported earnings for the year ending Dec. 31, 1976 at $3,055,032 or $1.81 a share on sales of $53,052,945. During 1975, the company earned $1,329,912 or 80 cents a share on sales of $33,016,179. Fourth quarter results included sales and earnings of Palatine-based International Products and Manufacturing Co. which Wabash acquired from Avnet, Inc. in October.

Dow falls 9.16 in active trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average skidded to a 16-month low Wednesday in the stock market's fifth consecutive loss after an early rally atempt fizzled. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow average, up more than two points at the outset, fell 9.16 points to 903.24, the lowest level since it finished at 898.69 on Jan. 7, 1976 when the market was on the way up toward the 1,000 level.

The Dow's five-day loss totaled 38.67 points and put the closely watched average 101.41 points down from its New Year's Eve close of 1,004.65. Analysts said a Dow slide below 900 could create selling in the same vein as the average attracted buying last year when it went through 1,000. "It's a psychological thing," one analyst said.

THE NYSE COMMON stock index lost 0.49 to 52.95 and the average price a common share decreased by 29 cents.

Declines routed advances, 1,068 to 400, among the 1,898 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 20,710,000 shares, up from the 20,050,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all exchanges and in the over-the-counter market at 4 p.m. totaled 22,655,688 shares, compared with 22,378,628 Tuesday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 0.57 to 112.66 and the average price of a common share shed 8 cents. Declines topped advances, 387 to 163, among the 865 issues traded. Volume at 4 p.m. totaled 2,000,000 shares compared with 2,010,000 Tuesday.

Carter energy plan premature panic

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Could it be that President Carter's energy program missed both ends of the boat?

The program already has been roundly criticized for failing to encourage private U.S. energy production — the only authentic solution on the supply side, unless you believe that the Post Office can deliver the goods.

But practically everybody has conceded the necessity for the kind of stringent conservation the President suggested, even if some of his specific methods of restricting consumption looked silly even to Congress.

NOW, HOWEVER, a restricted analyst has surfaced with the conclusion that all the President's men panicked — that the administration's proposals are "needlessly complex, probably unnecessary, and — if fully implemented — quite possibly harmful to the entire economy."

Robert L. Marks, of the economic and investment counseling firm Siff, Oakley & Marks, Inc., takes direct aim at the Carter program's expressed goal of "a 2 per cent energy growth rate."

The New York analyst is convinced that this is about what would happen to energy growth anyhow — without all the governmental posturing and talk about "the moral equivalent of war."

"In our opinion," Marks says, "domestic energy demands are apt to grow only 2 to 2¼ per cent on average through the mid-1980s without the Draconian measures now being advanced."

MARKS' VIEW, moreover, is not based on vague wishful thinking by someone who doesn't want to turn down his thermostat or reduce his auto speed; he bases his conclusion on a detailed and expert analysis of the many patterns of U.S. energy use.

For example, he reports one undeniably heartening fact: the country is geting about 4 per cent more economic output out of each input of energy than it did before OPEC's historic holdup in 1973. And Marks is convinced that his trend toward more efficient energy use will continue in the critical areas of industry, transportation and household and commercial use.

When officials want to scare us, they withhold the good news. It's not generally recognized, for example, that U.S. industry turned out the same amount of production last year as in 1973 — with 10 per cent less energy consumption. And Marks, who takes a relatively pessimistic view of the prospects for economic growth, believes that "energy demands by industry could easily rise less than 2 per cent a year."

Another factor holding down future U.S. consumption is well known to all of us: the price is rising, and families are hurting. Energy now claims about 15 per cent of the average family budget, up from 12 per cent before world oil prices quadrupled.

Even in the transportation sector, where Carter was viewed by some as unrealistically optimistic for seeking a 10 per cent reduction in gasoline consumption by 1985, Marks uncovered trends already in motion that would result in a 5 per cent drop "without any meaningful change in our driving habits."

Marks is no Pollyanna: he agrees that oil and natural gas are non renewable, finite resources that could run dry early in the next century. But he vigorously faults the President's "energy gurus" for making chaos out of the country's tough-but-manageable energy problems'' by "weak analysis" and an "arrogant" assumption that government knows best.

"The President's National Energy Plan," he concludes, "may well be unnecessarily risky in the first instance and just plain unnecessary in the second."

Fire at New York bathhouse used by gays kills 9

COVERED WITH TOWELS, two residents of a midtown Manhattan flophouse mingle with passersby Wednesday after they were forced to evacuate the Everard Baths when a blaze engulfed the four-story structure. Nine men were killed and 10 injured in the building that caters to homosexuals.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A four-alarm fire Wednesday destroyed a shabby midtown Manhattan bathhouse that catered almost exclusively to New York's homosexual community. Nine men were killed and 10 others were injured, two critically.

"From the looks of it, I'm afraid there could be more dead," said Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan. "The entire rear of the building has collapsed. It could be a week before we know how many were trapped in there."

Fire engulfed the four-story brick building about 7 a.m., sending scores of male customers at the Everard Baths running into the street in towels, underwear or trousers. Officials blamed the tragedy on a mattress fire.

THE BATH HOUSE, located on West 28th Street in an old section of town sandwiched between the Garment District on the north and Chelsea on the south, had a sauna, a swimming pool and small rooms — barely more than cubicles — for its guests.

"The bath residents apparently put out a fire in a mattress around 5 or 6 a.m. without calling the Fire Dept.," O'Hagan said. "There is a high probability that the earlier mattress fire was never extinguished and that it reignited."

The building's owner had been ordered last August to install an automatic sprinkler system, but it had not been connected. "If it had been installed," O'Hagan said, "it is unlikely we would have lost any lives."

Authorities said as many as 100 men, ranging in age from early 20s to 70s, were crowded into the building when the blaze was first reported.

"At first I thought someone was using a sun lamp or something. I just saw some orange. You really couldn't smell anything," said Michael James, 29, of Philadelphia, who was on the second floor when the fire broke out.

"Then in a matter of seconds, the halls were filled with a dense smoke, the electricity went out and it was pitch dark.

RAYMOND WALSH, 20, of Old Bridge, N.J., was nearly trapped by the flames. "I just felt it," he said. "It was right in the next cubicle. I just got up and got out of there."

Oil no 'weapon' for Mideast peace: Fahd

by HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, winding up two days of talks with President Carter, said Wednesday his country has no intention of using an oil embargo as a "weapon" in Mideast peace negotiations.

The President and the prince, after their final 90-minute meeting at the White House, also told reporters they agreed it is too early to speculate on how the change of government in Israel may affect efforts toward a Middle East settlement.

Asked about reports that Saudi Arabia might cut off oil shipments to the United States as a means of diplomatic pressure, Fahd said, "Oil will not be used as a weapon."

CARTER, RESPONDING to the same question, said: "There is no threat of an oil embargo at all. He told me that is a completely false report."

After seeing Fahd to his limousine in the rain, Carter took shelter under a canopy and gave reporters a brief rundown on his meetings with the prince, which he described as "very fruitful."

"We discussed future oil prices . . . the interrelationship in Africa, how to keep the Red Sea peaceful and hopes for a Middle East peace conference this year."

Asked whether the new Israeli government, expected to be headed by Menahem Begin, might "close the door" on peace negotiations, Carter said he believes Fahd "shares my view it's too early to comment on the future policies of the new government. No one knows the composition yet. I think it would be premature."

Does the United States plan to bring pressure on the new Israeli leadership to negotiate with the Arabs?

Carter: "We have influence on Israel, but we obviously have no control."

HOWEVER, HE SAID Fahd "professed his strong hope that Israel will be reassured of the inclinations of his country toward protection of their security."

As for the thorny issue of resettling the Palestinians, Carter said "my views are not firm on what a Palestinian homeland should be." But he noted that "all the United Nations resolutions said that there should be a Palestinian homeland."

In a statement issued later, the White House said the President asked that Fahd convey to King Khalid his appreciation for the policy that Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, "has pursued in petroleum production and pricing to sustain the economic health of both developed and developing countries."

Wrong diagnosis fatal

As the poet said: "A little learning is a dangerous thing."

South had just heard about the principle of restricted choice. This didn't get him to that six-spade contract, but a faulty application of the principle led to his defeat.

He won the heart lead in dummy and played dummy's ace of trumps. East followed small and West dropped the 10.

Poor South assumed that this was a case for use of the principle of restricted choice. He led dummy's last trump and finessed his nine. West won with the jack and led a club to his partner's ace.

Why didn't this principle apply here?

Because it only applies when the defender must play one of equal high cards. If West were placed under compulsion to play small from jack-10-small then the second round finesse would be correct. The principle would apply. As you see, West was under no such compulsion and had played the 10 instead of the five.

Ask Andy

Stars long subjects of observation

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Corinne Calamaro, 15, of Laguna Beach, Calif., for her question:

WHO WAS THE FIRST ASTRONOMER?

Although many early attempts were made to explain the magic show going on in the skies, it wasn't until the time of Thales of Miletus, who lived from about 640 to 560 B.C., that astronomy was first studied as a science. Thales was one of the Seven Wise Men of ancient Greece and is given credit for being the first to realize that the stars are more than mere signs in the sky.

Thales founded the earliest school of Greek philosophers, developed geometry and put it to such practical uses as measuring the heights of trees and determining the distance of ships from shore. And he also drew maps of the most noticeable stars as they appeared in the heavens, a job that it is thought no man before him had ever attempted.

Anaximander, a disciple of Thales, stated that the earth was round and not flat. He knew this because he found the stars were not at the same height in the sky when viewed from Greece and from Egypt.

Pythagoras of Samos was another early Greek astronomer. He came up with some bright ideas about how the planets, sun, moon and stars in the universe turned around each other.

Hipparchus, a Greek born about 190 B.C., was one of the two greatest astronomers of the ancient world. He accurately observed the precision of the equinoxes, developed the branch of mathematics known as trigonometry and accurately calculated the motions of the planets and moon.

Second of the great ancient astronomers was Claudius Ptolemaeuc, known as Ptolemy. He was born in the second century after Christ. This Greek scholar did some fine work to advance the study of astronomy, but unfortunately taught his followers that the world was flat and stood still while the sun, stars and planets traveled in complicated circles and loops.

Hundreds of books are full of information on the advance of astronomy through the ages. Copernicus (1473-1543) said the world was round and that the earth was not the center of the universe. Tycho Brahe (1545-1601) worked out with surprising accuracy the positions of more than 700 stars. Galileo Galilei, who was born in Italy in 1564, brought the telescope to astronomy. And this only scratches the surface of information.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Joan Groom, age 10, of Tekoa, Wash., for her question:

HOW IS FOAM RUBBER MADE?

Most of the natural rubber used today is obtained from the para rubber tree. A milky fluid is obtained from the tree and processed into thousands of different rubber items.

For more than 100 years, the United States has used more than half of the world's supply. Akron, Ohio, is the leading manufacturing center.

Foam rubber, one of the most popular items, is made by beating air into the rubber before it is poured into vulcanizing molds. Sponge rubber, which is similar, is prepared by the addition to ordinary rubber of a powder that forms a gas during vulcanization.

In 1770 Joseph Priestly discovered the bouncy product could be used as an eraser and from this came its name: rubber.

Harper faculty to evaluate Lahti

by RENA COHEN

Within a year, Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti may receive an unsolicited evaluation of his performance by Harper's 209 faculty members.

Under a plan approved by the 18-member faculty senate earlier this month, three faculty members, to be selected by Faculty Senate Pres. William E. Miller, will develop a questionnaire for use in the evaluation. The draft of the questionnaire is due in October.

"The idea first came up when students began evaluating faculty several years ago," said Harper mathematics professor Thomas R. McCabe, one of four former faculty senate presidents who signed a May 11 letter recommending the plan. "If students could evaluate faculty, why couldn't faculty evaluate administrators?"

McCABE SAID SOME consideration was given to a 1974 tactic at Elgin Community College in which the faculty turned in a "vote of no confidence" in then-College Pres. Robert Appel. Appel left in 1975.

"There was some discussion of a vote of no confidence but we thought that would be precipitous," McCabe said. "We didn't think things were that bad."

Speaking for Lahti, who was off campus Wednesday, Harper spokesman C. Patrick Lewis said the faculty evaluation plan raises questions of objectivity and accountability.

"All previous evaluations at Harper have been developed by the people involved and based on mutually agreed upon criteria," Lewis said. "We don't see that in this. The (faculty) committee is going to develop the evaluation itself."

LEWIS ALSO NOTED the Harper college president is already evaluated by the board of trustees.

"The question is, who's going to evaluate the president?" he said.

Lewis said his personnal opinion was that the plan was a "politically motivated" one designed by the staunchest supporters of Harper's faculty union to stir up trouble.

"If (the faculty) had gone to the board of trustees and said they wanted to work out mutually agreeable criteria, I would be less inclined to say it was politically motivated," Lewis said.

McCABE SAID THE evaluation is intended to get a reading on faculty satisfaction.

"In my opinion, it seems we've got a school that's very heavy on administration, both by numbers and by attitude," McCabe said. "The emphasis has been on a management type of approach to education, and what was good for a management point of view was good, period."

McCabe said that kind of thinking has resulted in an average class size of 30, which is one of the largest in the state.

Gasoline prices hit record high in area

Average gasoline prices climbed to record highs in the Chicago area over the past two weeks, the Chicago Motor Club reports.

Prices advanced to 65.8 cents a gallon for regular, 72.4 cents for premium and 69.9 cents for unleaded. Wide price fluctuations, however, were reported with regular ranging from 53.9 to 71.9 cents a gallon.

The highest price recorded was 76.9 cents a gallon for premium.

Average prices a year ago were 59.4 cents for regular and 64.8 cents for premium .

TM group seeking 'ideal' citizens

The Transcendental Meditation organization is searching for 10 ideal citizens of the Northwest suburbs who will be honored at an awards banquet June 19 at the Old Orchard Country Club, Mount Prospect.

Laura Aberman, TM teacher at the Northwest Suburban World Plan Center, said the search for outstanding citizens is a way of marking the arrival of the summer season.

Persons will be honored in 10 categories: natural law and order, cultural integrity and world harmony, education and enlightenment, progress and prosperity, inspiration and information, research and development, capitals of the Age of Enlightenment, health and immortality and development of consciousness.

Nominations for the awards will be accepted until June 1, Ms. Aberman said. Nomination forms are available by calling Ms. Aberman at 398-7153.

This is the second year citizens awards will be presented, she said. Past award winners include State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Sister M. Amata, president of Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

"This is a way we have of celebrating the freshness and vitality of a new season," Ms. Aberman said. "We emphasize things that make a better world and the people who receive the awards are part of a worldwide festival."

Kelly, Perivolidis selected as judges

Two area lawyers are among the 23 newly selected associate judges of the Cook County Circuit Court. They are William A. Kelly, 58, of Arlington Heights, and Arthur C. Perivolidis,35, of Mount Prospect.

The two were among the final 23 selected from a list of 227 applicants. The associate judges, who preside over misdemeanor cases, were selected by a vote of the circuit court's 157 full judges.

Air traffic delays at O'Hare cut 66%

Air traffic delays at O'Hare Airport were at an all-time low during the first four months of 1977.

The Federal Aviation Administration reports there was a 66 per cent reduction in delays during this period. There were 1,992 delays recorded in the first four months of this year compared to 5,694 in the same period last year.

Neal Callahan of the FAA said this operating record is commendable considering the area suffered "one of the coldest winters in history."

Callahan said cooperation of the airlines, the City of Chicago and the FAA were responsible. He praised the city's snow removal program, noting that O'Hare has more runways and taxiways than any other commercial airport.

Buying a home? Get all the answers

by JOE FRANZ

Before purchasing a multiple-family home of any kind, a condominium unit buyer should ask a lot of questions and insist on getting the answers.

Although many of the questions that should be asked by the buyer of a townhouse, condominium or quadrominium unit also would apply to a single-family home, there are some differences.

One of the most important differences in multiple-family ownership is the monthly maintenance fee paid to the condominium association, according to area real estate brokers.

The fee, which generally ranges from $28 to $80, covers maintenance of such things as the grounds and common areas, recreation facilities, streets and the physical plant.

William V. White, owner of Amherst Realty, Des Plaines, said before purchasing a condominium unit, a prospective buyer should be certain of what services are included in the maintenance fee.

"The maintenance fee reflects the kind of services you get and usually will vary accordingly," he said. "If the condominium association is maintaining the building and that's all, the monthly fee should be less than if they are maintaining a swimming pool, tennis courts and other recreation facilities.

"A buyer should ask what he is getting for his money and then decide if it is worth the money," he said.

White said a prospective condominium unit buyer not only should not hesitate to question the monthly maintenance fee, but should insist that every dollar be justified.

"The biggest complaint I can see with condos is that people often do not think the fee they are paying is justified," he said. "Before they buy they should say, Show me why the fee is X amount of dollors? And the person who runs the association should be able to do it."

White said that in many cases a buyer can tell if the maintenance fee is being used efficiently by inspecting the exterior and grounds around the condominium complex.

"The surface of the buildings and what it looks like are important," he said. "A person should ask himself if they keep up the building or buildings in the way he would do it.

"If the grass is cut and the building is painted and in good repair, the condominium association probably is doing what it is supposed to do for the maintenance fee," White said. "Another way to check is by talking to people who live there."

Robert E. Griffith, manager of Quinlan and Tyson's Buffalo Grove office, said in addition to talking to residents, a prospective buyer can obtain information about maintenance and other matters by contacting the president of the condominium association. If the association has a newsletter the buyer should attempt to obtain copies.

"Doing this can tell someone a lot about a place," he said. "The president probably will tell you good things, but he may also tell you some of the problems they're having."

In addition to inquiring about the maintenance fee, condominium shoppers should ask about any upcoming special assessments or other expenses that may occur after they make their purchase.

Often times a person finds out soon after purchasing that he will be faced with paying for street maintenance, roof repairs or a new furnace.

"Buying a condominium is like buying anything," White said. "A buyer should ask himself what he is obligating himself for.

"Besides taxes, his monthly mortgage payment and the maintenance fee, a buyer also may be faced with other expenses," he said. "Before buying he should know what they are going to be."

Griffith said a condominium buyer sometimes can determine how desirable a development is by asking the real estate broker how long the unit has been on the market and how many homes in the vicinity also are for sale.

"It will help you gauge the area," he said. "If there are a lot of units on the market and they've been on the market for six months, maybe that's a problem."

Herb Carl, a real estate broker and appraiser with Century 21-Arlington Realty Inc., Arlington Heights, said buyers should ask why a particular unit is for sale.

"I think that's a valid question to ask," he said. "They're probably not going to say they're selling because it's too noisy upstairs, but there's nothing wrong with asking the question because they might find out something."

Carl and Griffith said before a person buys a condominium unit he should investigate to determine such things as the age and marital status of other residents and whether they have children.

"The people there are going to be their neighbors and I think they want to buy knowing they are going to be comfortable within a certain environment and lifestyle," Carl said.

Griffith and White said prospective condominium owners should be certain an area has enough parking before they decide to purchase.

"Come back in the evening when everyone is at home to see if there are any parking problems," Griffith said. "It might be a lot different then than it is at 10 a.m."

Other factors a person should know about a condominium unit before purchasing are its proximity to schools, parks, churches and public transportation, its pet policies and the rates charged for fire insurance.

Before purchasing a new condominium unit, Carl and White recommend that the buyer thoroughly check out the builder.

"The builder's track record should be checked before a person buys," Carl said. "He (the buyer) should look at his other projects to determine the quality of construction. He should also find out about his credit and whether he has kept his promises to buyers in the past."

White said buyers in new developments should not accept verbal promises of swimming pools, clubhouses or tennis courts.

"Never buy a new property without an attorney drafting a contract," White said. "Don't take promises of this coming later and that coming later. If the builder is afraid to put something in writing then he's not going to do it."

Griffith said that when a person buys in a new development he should attempt to determine when the builder will release control of the project to the condominium association.

"The management of the development should eventually be turned over to the association, but you don't want it to happen too soon," he said. "I would say it should be turned over when the development is 50 per cent complete."

He said if the development is turned over too soon, the builder is relieving himself of liabilities for which he should be responsible.

"There are a lot of things that can go wrong in a development in the early stages," he said. "You want to make sure the builder provides some sort of warranty or guarantee in the event something goes wrong."

BEFORE PURCHASING a condominium unit or other multiple-family dwelling, a prospective buyer should shop around and ask a lot of questions so he knows what he's getting for his money.

'The biggest complaint I can see with condos is that people often do not think the fee they are paying is justified. Before they buy they should say, Show me why the fee is X amount of dollars? and the person who runs the association should be able to do it.'

Solid year in the making for home builders: experts

by GUY HALVERSON

WASHINGTON—The U.S. home construction industry, which took a grim nose dive during the 1974-75 recession, now is in the midst of what some housing experts here say could be a very good year.

While total housing starts this year, including both single and multi-family units, are not expected to be near the record 2.35 million units posted back in 1972, economists and industry experts believe housing construction will remain strong throughout the remainder of 1977.

Indeed, officials of the National Assn. of Home Builders are talking about possible eventual starts of 1,865 million units in 1977, up from 1,550 million starts in 1976.

NORMAN STRUNK, executive vice president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, representing the nation's savings and loan companies, expects "some diminution" of savings flows into S&Ls during the second half of the year. But he still reckons there will be more than enough available mortgage monies to finance new housing starts.

Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Currency, and Housing Committee, agrees that 1977 will be "a very good year for single-family housing." He says this will be best reflected in home sales in the "upper 30 per cent of income receiving families."

Nonetheless, according to many experts, there are warning signs for the industry. Any new boost in multi-family units and condominium units is clouded by a wide range of problems. not the least of these, according to Robert Sheehan, director of economic research for the National Assn. of Home Builders, is "the demographics of the situation." Most people seeking new housing today, he notes, continue to be in the large 25 to 34 age group where single-family homes are particularly attractive.

Additional concerns are possible material supply shortages, since single-family homes tend to use more lumber and other products than multi-family units, and some regional shortages of construction labor pools.

Sources: Through 1976, U.S. Commerce Department.

ACCORDING TO Commerce Dept. figures released May 17, privately owned housing starts in April sagged some 11 per cent from March figures, though maintaining the current healthy pace. Total starts for April numbered a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.88 million units, down from 2.11 million in March. For single-family housing, the rate for April was 1.44 million, compared with 1.52 million units in March.

Multifamily units fell some 27 per cent from the March starts.

Building permits for new construction projects reached 1.53 million units in April, down from the 1.71 million units in March, but sharply ahead of the 1.08 million rate for April, 1976.

Not withstanding the sluggish pace in new multi-family units, some experts said that they thought such units were doing quite well over the long run, considering the current demand for single-family units.

"I'm just surprised that multi-family starts are as good as they are," Strunk says.

IF HOUSING STARTS were to approach the 1.8 million mark for this year, now estimated by the National Assn. of Home Builders, that would signal an industrywide resurgence. Indeed, barring the "boom years" of 1971-1973 when starts were above the 2 million level, the best year over the last decade would be last year.

Behind the new spurt in construction, say industry officials, are such factors as the mounting demand for new single-family homes, plus a "catch-up" from building delays imposed by the severe 1976-77 winter.

Regarding financing, mortgage money continues to be readily available, although down compared with last year. During the first three months of 1977, savings dollar flows into savings banks reached $3.7 billion, compared with $4.1 billion in 1976. For S&Ls, the inflow was $8.5 billion, down slightly from $9.1 billion the year earlier.

Many lawmakers here, like Congressman Reuss, argue that the federal government, mortgage lenders and the construction industry must do far more to lower home costs.

The new Housing and Community Development Act of 1977, which passed the House here recently, includes a $1.2 billion authorization to finance 350,000 new and rehabilitated units under a rent-subsidy program for fiscal year 1978, plus 50,000 units of conventional public housing.

Meanwhile, legislation has been introduced here that would provide graduated mortgage payments for middle-income families. Under such mortgages, initial payments, when the young family could usually afford them least, would be lower. One other new plan, considered less likely to pass Congress, would allow first-time home buyers to set aside special tax-exempt savings accounts for down payments patterned somewhat along the lines of Individual Retirement Accounts.

There's never been a better time to develop the habit of investing in yourself.

Everyone is a creature of habit — bad habits and good ones. At First Federal Savings we've observed the habit of saving in our customer friends for 42 years. It's very satisfying to watch the habit working for those who invest in themselves. Regular savings of even small amounts soon prove that it is all worthwhile. And the habit of saving has never worked better than now. The figures here show you why.

Broker entitled only to commission

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

The column has received a number of letters from readers who are confused about having received bills from brokers for "out-of-pocket" expenses, though these same brokers have not been successful in selling their properties. The rules and regulations governing real estate brokerage definitely frown on this practice.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We signed a six-month listing agreement with a broker in our neighborhood to sell our house. True, he did try hard, but was unsuccessful. He did use signs, he advertised and he prepared very attractive brochures. But for some reason, he could not sell our house.

Now that the agreement is up, we have received a bill for $750 from the broker for "out-of-pocket" expenses. Since this is our first house, and we have not had experience prior to this in selling real estate, we are wondering if this is common practice? There was nothing in our agreement to cover "out-of-pocket" expenses. — Do we owe it?

The expenses of selling a property must be assumed by the broker. He is entitled only to a commission when he secures a buyer who is ready, willing and able to buy. The only exception possible to this would be if an agreement had been prepared which stated t hatthe broker would be reimbursed for his expenses, were he unable to find a buyer.

Your broker did not find you a buyer — and you did not sign an agreement to reimburse him for expenses. So you owe him nothing.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Though I have read your column for years and thoroughly enjoyed it, this is the first time I have needed advice personally.

In a few months, I will have paid off the mortgage, after a long, hard haul. Can you tell me whether I will need a lawyer, or what procedures must follow to satisfy the mortgage? — Neophyte.

After you have made your last mortgage payment, a representative of your lending institution will appear at the recorder of deeds office in your county and mark the mortgage record "satisfied."

It's possible that there might be a nominal charge, but there are lending institutions which provide this service free of charge.

Under normal circumstances it is not necessary to engage a lawyer for this.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My wife recently inherited some beautiful paintings when her father died. Never having owned anything valuable, we're a little worried about how to care for them. Should they be dusted, and with what? Is there anything else we should do to keep them cleaned and in good shape? — New at this.

Valuable art objects should be handled with care. You may, of course, dust them. But beyond that I would be very careful.

Great damage can be done to paintings by using the wrong cleaning methods. It really should be done by an expert. By contacting your local art museum, you can be guided as to where to go to have them cleaned and repaired, if necessary.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Now that we have heard from President Carter about energy, we are even more mindful of the fact that we must do everything possible to help.

One of the things that came to my mind is electric bulbs. Sometimes they seem to glow a little brighter — or can that be my imagination? Is there a way to care for them so that they give the maximum amount of light? — Want to help.

Your electric bulbs should be dusted as frequently as you dust your furniture. In order to get the full wattage value, wash them approximately once a month.

Disconnect your lamp, wait for the bulb to cool and wipe it carefully with a warm, wet cloth. be sure the cloth has been well wrung, and do not allow the metal to get wet.

Your reflecting bulbs should be washed at the same time. You'll find that dusty bulbs, shades, fixtures, etc., can absorb a good portion of the light.

Here's how to fix that leaky faucet

A leaky faucet can cost you money, idrbbling 50 gallons of water or more dribbling 50 gallons of water or more down the drain a month — 600 gallons or more a year. It may be water you are paying to heat, says the National Assn. of Realtors.

The problem, often caused by a worn out washer, usually doesn't require a plumber to repair it. You need a box of assorted washers and screws, a roll of masking tape, a Phillips screw driver, a flat blade screw driver and a smooth-jawed wrench.

Turn off the water supply, either below the sink or at the main water supply in the basement. Wrap tape around the decorative housing or hexagonal nut below the handle to protect it from marring.

Open the faucet slightly to release pressure on the spindle shaft inside. Unscrew the hexagonal nut and pull out the shaft. Remove the screw at the base of the shaft and remove the washer above it.

Clean the washer housing, replace the washer with a new one and replace the screw with a new one. Reassemble the faucet, turn on the water supply and you are in business.

Many homes already insulated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Carter administration may have a tough time convincing Americans that they need additional insulation to conserve energy in their homes according to a government study.

A survey released by the Census Bureau and the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development showed that three out of every four households reported that they had attic or roof insulation, 57 per cent had storm windows and 60 per cent had storm doors.

However, in the colder sections of the nation — states in the Northeast and Midwest — more than 80 per cent of the households said they had attic or roof insulation and 92 per cent had both storm windows and doors.

THE MAJOR problem, administration officials say, is to convince people that they should shore up their home energy savings by buying additional insulation, particularly when they already have some insulation.

President Carter has proposed tax credits for persons who have insulation installed in their homes or beef up inadequate insulation that is already in place.

He urged Congress to approve a 25 per cent tax credit on the first $800 spent on insulation and 15 per cent on the next $1,400.

Analysts at the Federal Energy Administration have estimated that of the approximately 47 million owner-occupied housing units in this country, about one-third are adequately insulated, one-third have inadequate insulation and the other one-third have no insulation at all.

THE INSULATION statistics were contained in a lengthy survey of national housing characteristics conducted during the final three months of 1975.

Among other findings of the survey were:

- Of the 72.5 million occupied units in the country, including apartments, there were an estimated 869,000 owner-occupied cooperative and condominium units. Of these, 119,000 were vacant or for sale when the survey was taken. Co-ops and condos accounted for nearly 44 per cent of the housing units built since 1970 which were for sale.
- The number of households increased by 14 per cent during the first half of the decade. However, households occupied by black and Spanish heritage persons increased by 22 per cent and 37 per cent, respectively.

Save money, water

Turn off the water when you're brushing your teeth and save both money and this precious natural resource.

If you allow the water to run while you're brushing your teeth, you waste 2½ gallons of water, says the National Assn. of Realtors. For a family of four, brushing their teeth twice a day, that is a waste of 20 gallons a day.

For a year, that is a waste of 7,300 gallons. In a city of 100,000 persons, if everyone let the water run while they brushed their teeth, that community would waste 730,000,000 gallons of water annually.

How to patch kitchen linoleum?

Herman Baum

The house doctor

Dear House Doctor: Good quality inlaid linoleum was installed in our kitchen 15 years ago, and it is still in good condition except for an area in front of the sink which has been damaged by water and normal wear.

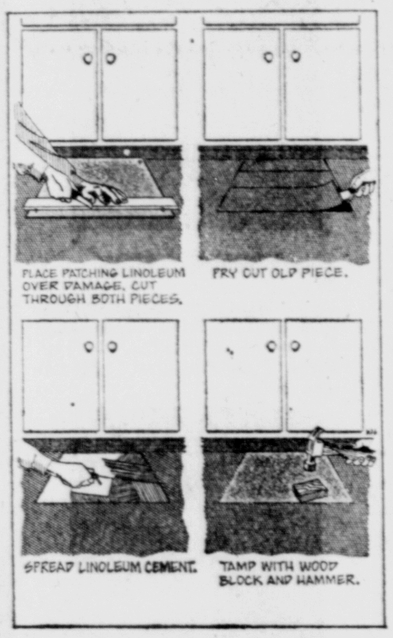
I have tried to find matching linoleum to patch it without success. Do you have a practical idea about how I can fix it? Mrs. D. D.

A. Don't worry about matching the pattern. Replace the damaged area with solid color linoleum that blends with the existing floor and you will be right in style. Inserts are often used for decorative purposes when floors are installed.

For an attractive appearance, the insert piece should not be too small and will probably be larger than the damaged area. It should extend out from the kitchen cabinet about 18 inches and be three or four feet long. When you buy the linoleum, have it an inch or two larger in each direction than the actual insert will be when complete.

Place one long side of the insert material flush against the kitchen cabinet base and drive in small wood brads (no larger than No. 19) close to the edges to hold it in place. Leave the brads extending so they can be easily removed.

You should use a carpenter's framing square for marking the new linoleum for cutting so that the corners will be square. You will then use a straightedge and a linoleum knife for cutting through both the new linoleum and the material beneath it. Pull the brads and set the new piece aside.



Linoleum cement is tenacious stuff, so it will be easier to remove the damaged section if you cut it into narrow strips and pry these out with a wide wood chisel or putty knife. Remove all of the old linoleum that adheres to the floor by scraping and sandpapering. If lining felt was used on the floor, this must be removed and replaced, using linoleum cement as an adhesive.

Fresh linoleum cement is now spread over the area. Fresh linoleum cement is now spread over the area. This is best done with a serrated trowel which insures that you do not apply too much or too little cement to the area. If you must use a putty knife or paint scraper, be sure the application is uniform.

To place the insert, use a wood block and hammer to bring the entire surface into firm contact with the floor. Use mineral spirits to clean up any of the cement that may ooze out at the seams.

Outpatients' clinic

Mrs. E. B. S. — Dirt will penetrate the surface of concrete, and any that cannot be removed by the use of a kitchen cleaner and a brush is htere to stay.

S. C. F. — The paint store is giving you the run-around. They probably sold you latex paint to apply over oil paina and did not tell you a special primer must be applied first or the paint will peel.

T. H. — Wood is an excellent insulator, so if you install it over your radiant-heated concrete floors, you can expect colder rooms and higher heating bills.

Dear House Doctor: We bought a used refrigerator that has given us trouble from the start and we have spent too much on repairs. What should we do? Ms. T. S.

A. Like any mechanical device, a refrigerator has a limited life. When one gives you too much trouble, it is time to trade it in on a new one.

This column recently stated that some materials will permanently stain plastic laminate kitchen counter tops. However, Mrs. W. E. wrote and said she can remove any stain by first applying rubbing alcohol to the area. One minute later she pours on laundry bleach and scrubs well.

Many other readers have written to say that they get good results by applying mixtures of laundry bleach and water. We thank them all.

Dear House Doctor: We are considering converting a coal-burning furnace to gas. We recently saw an article stating that this is not practical. What is your opinion? M.E.J.

A. A coal-burning furnace is designed so that the large amounts of smoke and gases generated will be discharged up the flue. A gas burner produces only a small amount of water vapor so that much of the heat produced by the oil burner will be lost up the flue.

The saving that will be made by replacing the present furnace will pay for the new furnace in a ftw yetrs.

Dear House Doctor: Our home has drywalls and the original paint applied by the builder. Can I wash off spots without damaging the surface? Also, anything that strikes the walls gouges the surface. How can we repair the damage? M. G. H.

A. There is little interior wall paint that is not washable, so you should have no problem washing the surface.

Damaged areas on the surface can be repaired by trowelling drywall cement over them. Of course, these patches must be painted.

Dear House Doctor: I used a roller to paint the wood gables of my sis-house and the finished surface is very rough. What did I do wrong? T. D. E.

A. A roller should never be used for painting wood unless it is a structure where you could not care less about the final appearance. Save the roller for use on masonry or plaster.

The next time you paint wood, use a brush or paint pad, which produce a smoother finish.

Think solar heat, architect urges

by MICHAEL ROSENBAUM

United Press International

As the sun beats down and Americans try to forget ltst winter, it's a good idea to think about building a solar heating system, says architect Rodney Wright.

Wright and his wife, Sydney, who design solar collection systems exclusively, say the best place for a solar heating system is in the north. At the Wright' home, which also serves as the office of their Hawkweed Group, Ltd., a solar collector provides 50 per cent of the yearly heating needs.

"It's even better suited here than in other places," he said, "because we need heat more and we've got some clear January days."

WRIGHT SAID the system at his home cost $500, and it is neither difficult nor expensive for the average homeowner to build a similar system. Rodney Wright teaches average homeowners how to do it in a course at Wright Junior College.

"We literally build a solar collector, to demonstrate the technology," said Wright.

Wright, who has concentrated on solar design since the Arab Oil embargo, said he is encouraged that people have added solar heating systems to their homes without outside prodding.

"The people are ahead of the government. This is what's exciting. They're not waiting for major federal projects and things. They're out there doing it."

A BASIC SOLAR collection system includes a box in which heat is first collected and then brought in to the home through ducts. The box, or solar collector, is covered with two spaced plates of glass. Under the glass is a black collector plate, which gets hot when the sun shines on it.

Air or water is circulated through the box to remove the heat from the plate and transfer it to a tank of water, stone ir salts. When heat is needed, air is blown over the storage tank, warmed by its contents, and then circulated through the house.

The cost of installing such a system ranges from $2 per square foot of floor space to what Wright called a "Mercedes Benz unit" costing $10 per square foot. In return for the investment, a solar heating system will provide about 60 per cent of a home's needs, including hot water, during the heating season, he said.

In designing a home for solar heating, Wright said the roof's slant, placement of trees, insulation and makeup of the home itself must be taken into consideration.

He also said a backup system is needed in northern climates where the solar collector might provide 100 per cent of requirements in October but only 40 per cent in January. Solar energy could provide 100 per cent of a home's needs, said Wright, but the building would have to be designed specifically for that purpose.

"Buildings are not designed for solar. That's one of the first problems. There is a possibility of retrofitting some structures but that adds to the expense."

Panic peddling told by priest

WILSONVILLE, Ill. — A village leader asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott recently to stop a realty company from trying to promote panic peddling.

The Rev. Casimir Gierut said the King and Hoffman Realty Co., Granite City, is making offers to buy Wilsonville homes for $2,000-$4,000. Residents of the Macoupin County village are involved in a dispute over dumping of PCBs at an industrial waste landfill.

Gierut wrote Scott becaue of "unfair business tactics of panic buying" by the King and Hoffman Company. Gierut asked Scott to tell the realty company to stop its propositioning of Wilsonville residents.

"We don't need outsiders to agitate the situation," the priest said.

Wilsonville area leaders have asked the circuit court for a permanent injunction to close the landfill owned by the Eathline Corp.

Architects brace for the solar age

by Louise Sweeney

WASHINGTON—They are beginning to jut up more and more frequently — the roofs facing south, pitched so steeply you could race a bobsled down them, the collectors twinkling on top of them in the sun like so many big square eyes.

They are solar homes, and President Carter told the nation in his April 18 energy policy address that he wanted to see 2½ million of them in the United States in 1985. There are between 2,000 and 5,000 today.

If solar homes take hold at the rate Carter wants them to, there may be sweeping esthetic changes in American architecture.

ALREADY, SOLAR technology appears to have captured the imagination of young architects around the country. The Boulder, Colo., firm of Joint Ventures Inc., specializes in innovative solar design. One of the three "principals" of that firm, Phillip Tabb, says: "Among the young architects I know, they're fully involved in solar, they've accepted it first and in some ways are more eager to learn how to do it. Most of us didn't have solar (studies) in school, but we've researched it, traveled, gone to conferences, taken the time and energy to do what some of the more established architects haven't."

Tabb expects that in the next five or 10 years solar technology will become a very active force in architecture, creating its own esthetics.

"We will see the rise of greenhouse architecture," he says, as one example. The "greenhouse" design will replace the use of "hundreds of collectors all over the place," in many parts of the country, he predicts.

Although firms like Joint Ventures are using new architectural forms for solar technology, there are some architects — and builders — who are successfully incorporating solar features into traditional design. The Rust Construction Co. of Alexandria, Va., is building solar homes within the strict colonial architectural limits of the "Oldtown" section of Alexandria.

THE ONE BUILT by company owner Tom Rust for his own family is similar to a "flounder house," a design popular in 18th-century Alexandria. It is of dark red brick with a soaring, south-facing roof containing blackened metal plates — conductors for its thermal conversion system. These take care of 50 to 60 per cent of the yearly heat load.

According to John Eberhard, president of the AIA Research Corp., a self-sustaining outgrowth of the American Institute of Architects, "There are 65 million dwelling units in the U. S. right now. If the investment goes up to 80 million by 1990, at least 10 per cent of them will be solar. And an awful lot of people are going to make conversions."

Architect Thomas Vreeland, a judge for the AIA 1976 student competition on design of energy-saving buildings, said the style is evolving slowly but inevitably:

"It is time for architects to fully absorb the new order — and ultimately it will take some genius like Andrea Palladio, who restyled the 16th century gentleman's country farmhouse into one of the most beautiful architectural forms (the Palladian Villa) the world has ever known.

"Meanwhile, we will continue to see ungainly concatenations of misapplied forms . . . I cannot honestly say I saw one really well-integrated building design in this year's crop. But it will come — it will come. We must keep battering away at it."

JOHN TULLY OF Massdesign, a Cambridge, Mass., firm which is deeply involved in solar homes, says he believes that solar energy use will have "a very small impact," esthetically, on the majority of homes in this country. Most, he says, are built by professional builders with an eye to economy and simplicity; few incorporate the more radical designs seen in custom homes. The result, he notes, is sometimes just slapping solar collectors on a tilted roof without any thought of appearance.

"The Gothic form was a response to social need and building materials, technique, climate, ritual, the political realities of the church," Mr. Tully says. Just as those forces created the unique form of the Gothic cathedral, forces at work now may result in an eventual — though subtle — change through solar design, he says.

Reform urged on mortgages

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any real solution to the housing shortage depends on the drastic reform of the mortgage market, including a new "radical" type of mortgage that would prevent the elderly from losing their homes, an industry official says.

Harold Greenwood Jr., of Minneapolis, who heads Midwest Federal Savings & Loan Assn., said the National Savings and Loan League, of which he is legislative chairman, is trying to sell the Carter administration on the idea of authorizing new forms of mortgages eligible for federal guaranty.

Of these, the most radical proposal is the "annuity mortgage," designed to keep homeowners — who have pa[illegible] original mortgages — from [illegible] homes because they can't pa[illegible]es and maintenance costs.

"It is ts necessary to enable older people to keep their homes as to enable younger persons to buy houses," Greenwood said.

"ELDERLY HOMEOWNERS losing their homes has become a tragic reality in many parts of the country," he continued, "as inflation runs up the assessed value of the house — and the tax bill — at the same time it erodes the value of their income."

The reverse annuity mortgage would enable an elderly couple to borrow a fixed amount of money based on the value of the property. The borrower would not have to repay the loan — it would be a lien on the estate when the person dies.

"No cash payment of interest would be involved," Greenwood said. "The loan would be in the form of monthly payments to them with interest charged initially only on the comparatively small amount due."

Greenwood said this plan would alleviate two major problems of the elderly — a lack of sufficient money for everyday needs and fear of losing their home.

"But the rest of the mortgage business also must be reformed if the nation is to have adequate housing," Greenwood said.

TO THIS END the NSLL will endorse adoption of the variable interest rate mortgage, long used in England and introduced successfully in California in the last few years; and the Canadian "Rollover" mortgage in which the interest rate is renegotiated between the borrower and the lending institution every five years.

And to make it easier for young couples to buy homes the NSLL is proposing two new types of mortgages.

One is called the Deferred Interest mortgage. The monthly interest payment, instead of being high in the early years or a mortgage as it is now would be kept extremely low for the first five years, then would accelerate. A fee would be charged on top of the accumulated deferred interest. The theory behind this type of mortgage is that the interest would rise with a couple's income.

The Graduated Payment mortgage, proposed by the NSLL, seeks to accomplish the same purpose by varying either the principal payments or the interest rate or both on a negotiated plan to suit the circumstances of the borrowing couple.

Couple loses half their cleaning deposit to owner

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

It takes a lot of patience, will-power and a bit of hard-headedness to be a successful landlord, but the same traits are frequently required to be a "successful" tenant.

Dear Mr. Campbell: When we rented nine months ago, our landlords required a $200 cleaning deposit before we moved in.

The place was a total disaster. The yard was a jungle, and the inside of the house wasn't cleaned before we moved in. The only rooms that were painted within the past year-and-a-half were the kitchen and living room.

We have cleaned the wall-to-wall carpet, washed the windows, renovated the yard and cleaned the kitchen appliances — everything is in tip-top shape.

Recently, we bought a home of our own. However, our landlords have agreed to give us back only half of our cleaning deposit, although the house is in better shape now than when we got it. Is this fair? — Mrs. G.J.K. (Hayward, Calif.)

A. Why on earth did you rent the place once having seen the shambles it was in? It's entirely possible that you could take this to small claims court and recover the $100, but is it worth it?

No, there isn't a shred of fairness in a deal where you leave the house in better shape than you found it. However, the time to have made an issue over the condition in which you did find the house was before paying the deposit.

Dear Mr. Campbell: About 20 years ago, I bought five acres of land in an Arizona real estate development that was being advertised by a prominent movie star.

In 1963, the land company went bankrupt. I own four rancheros and have paid our over $300 in taxes.

Will there be any activity on this land, or have I bought a pig in a poke? — Mr. C.W. (Oakland, Ca.)

A. You buy a pig in a poke anytime you buy undeveloped land where the biggest thing going for it is the fact that it's being promoted by a movie star.

It's almost certain that you now own five acres of desert land that are just as undeveloped now as they were 20 years ago, but, who knows? Write to the Arizona Real Estate Dept. (1645 W. Jefferson, Phoenix, Ariz.) and make an inquiry. Don't hold your breath, though.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am 70 years old and retired on Social Security. My wife is still working.

Besides my Social Security, I have a small company pension of $220 a month and the interest from $60,000 which I have outstanding from the sale of real estate that I sold on contract. The amount due will be paid out to me by the end of this year.

Two years ago, I bought another house as my residence on which I owe a mortgage of $60,000. Do you think it advisable to pay off the present mortgage when I receive the money, or would it be better to keep the mortgage and invest this amount otherwise?

The house I live in is a duplex and I rent the other apartment for $350. I also own a small condominium from which I clear about $120 a month after taxes and maintenance. — Mr. W.P. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

A. I wouldn't see any advantage in paying off your present mortgage with the proceeds from your contract sale. It sounds like your return from the duplex and the condominium are enough to satisfy your present mortgage commitments without dipping into your Social Security and pension income.

At your age, the $60,000 would be better spent on a single-premium life insurance annuity that would give you and your wife a lifetime monthly income considerably higher than you could get from comparable investments. You also should have adequate insurance to cover the mortgage balance.

Dear Mr. Campbell: is it legal for a landlord to say I have to get rid of my dog, although the lease doesn't say anything about it? — Ms. W.F. (Long Beach, Ca.)

A. No. If the lease doesn't specifically prohibit pets then, by inference, they're permitted.

Help for condo buyers

A revised edition of a booklet explaining what you need to know about living in a condominium or cooperative unit is available from Baird & Warner Inc.

The 32-page booklet describes the differences between a condominium and a coiperative, explains what assessments are all about, tells what the owners' association does, outlines the duties of the managing agent, explains the operations of the board of directors, and offers tips on insurance and taxes.

Single copies are available at no charge at any of the company's 30 city and suburban offices. Copies can also be ordered by mail at 25 cents each from the property management division, Baird & Warner Inc., 115 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Give refrigerator a test

Your kitchen is a good place to look for ways to conserve energy and the refrigerator may be a prime culprit in wasting energy, says the National Assn. of Realtors.

Check the gasket around the door to find out if cold air is escaping. Make this simple test: Open the refrigerator door and put a piece of paper along the edge of the outside wall so that when the door closes, it will shut on the paper.

After you close the door, try to pull out the sheet of paper. If you can do this easily, the gasket is probably worn and needs to be replaced.

Good future for 1-family homes: builder

by BRUCE NICHOLS

HOUSTON (UPI) — J. L. Philips may be riding a boom as unofficial king of Texas townhouse building, but he still believes in the future of the single-family dwelling, however high the price.

"We're in a phase right now where single-family housing has declined in proportion to apartments and townhouses, but I don't think it's going to decline much more," he said.

Philips was the first Texas builder to become involved in townhouse construction after the state's condominium law was passed in 1963.

HE STILL LEADS in townhouse-condominium volume in the state where urban and suburban growth is accelerating. He has built and sold more than 1,000 units since 1963, due in part to an innovative approach that in March included the state's first one-day advance sale of an entire 96-unit complex.

Philips predicted booming townhouse-apartment development, now about 60 per cent of new starts in Houston, will level off despite "shocking" costs for land, labor, materials and financing for free-standing houses.

Land and demand are the keys to his belief in the single-family dwelling.

"I don't think things are going to change much more in the next decade or two because there is still land available and because young folks with kids still want single-family houses," Philips said.

"AND THEY deserve single-family houses with playgrounds and enough storage to keep the bicycles and tricycles and wagons and all the things that go along with child rearing, and away from the traffic, streets and so forth."

The gray-haired, cigar-smoking Oklahoman, who helped provide housing as Houston grew from 600,000 to 1.4 million residents in 20 years, blames social change more than rising costs for declining single-family house sales.

"Today most of the kids don't really go through some of the adversities that I did when I was a kid. A lot of them like to start off with the same things their folks had," he said.

"They don't really want the yard work and the problems that are inherent in a single-family type house, particularly if they don't have kids. A lot of them are trying not to have kids. They are enjoying the luxuries of life.

"FOR THEM, THE townhouse or condominium is ideal," Philips said. "You say kids toady can't buy. A lot of them still can buy, I still believe, in the same proportions that they were able to 10 years ago or even 20 years ago.

"Salaries of kids are high compared to what they were before. Maybe the price has gone up a little higher in proportion, but there still are houses that they're able to buy today."

Philips is not dissuaded by recent study predictions that the average cost of a new free-standing house could exceed $75,000 within 20 years. He argues everything else, including paychecks, will be increasing in value, too.

"We've got built-in inflation. Naturally costs are going to go up. Everybody's salary is going to go up, too. Salaries seem to lag behind sometimes, but eventually they catch up."

Million dollar club

Jane Jackson

Annen & Busse, Inc. in Arlington Heights announced that JANE JACKSON surpassed the million dollar sales mark. She is second to reach this goal in 1977.

Ms. Jackson has been associated with Annen & Busse since early 1969 and received her Million Dollar Club award for the eighth year in a row. A long-time resident of the Northwest suburbs, she has been honored twice for exceeding $2 million in real estae sales. She is a lifetime member of the MAP Multiple Listing Service Million Dollar Sales Club and the Million Dollar Club of the Illinois Assn. of Realtors.

WILLIAM M. HICKEY, broker-manager of the Starck & Co. office in Mount Prospect, surpassed $1.6 million in sales this year. This accomplishment qualified Hickey for life membership in the Million Dollar Sales Club. He lives in Mount Prospect with his wife Arlene and three children.

Hickey is active in activities at St. Raymond's Church, St. Zachary's Church and Mount Prospect Twilight Golf League. He is a past president of the Mount Prospect Crusade of Mercy.

In the news

CENTURY 21-ARLINGTON REALTY experienced two record-breaking months in home sales for the Northwest Suburban area.

March sales totalling $4.7 million set a record for the four-office firm, and 73 sales in April also was a record high in the 27-year history of the company.

March marked the first time all four Century 21 Arlington Realty offices topped the $1 million figure during the same month. Four month sales are up 15 per cent over 1976. Sales for the Palatine area office are up 32 per cent over last year.

Bill Wallace

WILLIAM H. WALLACE, newly-appointed manager of he Starck & Co. Schaumburg office, recently received notice that he passed the Illinois Real Estate Broker's examination. Wallace has been selling real estate for less than two years and sold over $1 million in 1976. He and his wife Darlene and three girls lived in Schaumburg since 1973. Wallace has served for 12 years in the U.S. Navy, was manager for a Holiday Inn, and part owner of a building construction company.

"Salesperson of the Month" awards for April have been earned by nine members of ERA BEHRENS & ZAUN, Realtors' sales.

The honors were received by Rosanne Willman, Palatine; Marilyn Colianni, Arlington Heights; Beane Shakelford, Mount Prospect; Tom Cox, Schaumburg, and Larry Rowan, Buffalo Grove.

SAM TERRANOVA, owner of Cesar's Restaurant in Des Plaines, accepted a plaque on behalf of his staff from Shay Verner, chairman of the Realtors' Public relations and publicity committee at the April Realtors' dinner. Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors Computer Multiple Listing Service presented the fifth annual Community Service Award to Terranova for staging a benefit dinner to help pay the medical bills of the Jim Wamsley family from Des Plaines.

Million dollar club

Jerry Birch

Annen & Busse, Inc. announced that JERRY BIRCH, sales associate in the Schaumburg office, reached the million dollar sales goal at the end of April. Jerry's achievement makes him the first Annen & Busse Million Dollar Sales Club member this year. This is the earliest any associate has reached this goal in the history of the company.

Birch has lived and worked in the Northwest suburbs for the past 20 years. He became associated with Annen & Busse in August of 1975 after several years' experience in real estate sales. He is a charter member of the Schaumburg National Exchange Club where he has served as director of the Crime Prevention Division, as well as being active in the Schaumburg Jaycees. This is the second year in a row he reached the million dollar mark.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

When faced with a major remodeling or an expensive addition to the house, homeowners should consider whether it might be better to sell and purchase a new home with the features they desire.

Selling and buying elsewhere is probably better when social conditions can be improved. Do you feel the need for better schools, proximity to shops or recreational areas? Remodeling is not your answer. If you like the area where you are and the remodeling is not too extensive, it may be the best thing to do.

Let us help you, if you're puzzled by any real estate situation. We can answer most of your questions and guide you to the best decision . . . for YOU!

Grads staying close to home

Planners see new hope for cities

by RICHARD J. CATTANI

CHICAGO — A new tendency among college graduates to stay close to home after graduation is buoying hopes of some urban planners that populations of U.S. cities will stabilize and living conditions improve.

Those most likely to move in recent years have been the young and better educated. But Larry Long, U.S. Census Bureau expert on mobility and migration, says graduate movement is declining. It's something of a puzzle.

"Smaller but better" is the new theme in older industrialized cities, says Alex Ganz, research director for the Boston Redevelopment Authority and adviser to the National League of Cities on population decline.

FOR INSTANCE, BOSTON and Seattle are showing a big rise in households, but a drop in population size. Among the benefits: lower costs for services like schooling, Ganz says, and a higher-paid work force.

In the past the big-city pattern showed a large influx of 18- to 25-year-olds — then an equally large outflow when the group reached 25 to 40. Now, apparently, the young who move into the city from suburban homes are likely to stay — at least well into their 30s.

"The cities are capturing more young people than in the past," Long said. "Before, having children was a prime, impelling force for moving out. But the decline in fertility, the increase in (working) wives may well keep middle-class families in cities. This is a trend to look for in the 1980s."

Why do young, college-educated Americans tend to be less mobile today?

"PERHAPS IN THE 1950s and 1960s college grads were a more select group," says Long. "Now excess supply has reduced payoffs for moving. Also, in the past a large number of persons left home to go to college, whereas now there are more colleges close to home."

Recent census findings — of population drift from farm to town, big city to less densely populated areas, North to South — represent little over-all change in the pattern of U.S. coming and going.

"The rate of interstate and county-to-county migration in the U.S. has held almost constant since World War II," Long says. "Since 1850, 28 per cent to 30 per cent of the population has lived outside their state of birth."

In the meantime, before their prospects stabilize or improve, the older cities are likely to remain in a financial bind. Urbanologists such as the University of Illinois's Pierre Devise see little chance of relief from financial pressure. Federal housing policy alone is likely to keep up housing abandonment pressures in cities like Chicago by encouraging a suburban housing surplus, he says.

BUT GANZ AND others are hopeful that the Carter administration and Congress will reverse the recent period of urban neglect.

Congress is expected to approve new formulas for block grant funds to include population and housing stock decline factors — in effect restoring aid the cities would have lost to suburbs under Ford administration guidelines.

In addition, within four months the Treasury Dept. is expected to propose a program for urban financing, designed along the lines of World Bank aid to developing nations.

President Carter has formed a Cabinet-level policy group on urban problems, which held its first meeting April 21 and must submit a report by June.

Use smaller bulbs – save electricity

You've been told many times that if you use a smaller light bulb, you'll save money.

It's true, says the National Assn. of Realtors.

You'll help conserve electricity and in turn that helps conserve the nation's natural resources.

Use of a 60-watt instead of a 100-watt bulb in a single light fixture will save one-fourth the number of kilowatts, cutting the electrical bill a bit. The more bulbs "switched down" the more money you save and the nationwide movement to conserve energy is helped.

HILLSIDE GREEN

Rarely does a builder sell out before his Grand Opening but 14 families have already purchased homes in Hillside Green, and the models are not even open yet.

Only 8 homes remain to be sold, so don't miss out on the opportunity to save thousands of dollars during our pre-Grand Opening Sale.

Chicago transit called one of best

Cities such as Chicago, which have excellent commuter transportation systems, will have a definite advantage in recruiting top flight managers if President Carter's energy conservation policies are adopted, said Peter H. Lauer, president of Chicago-based Lauer & Holbrook Inc.

He said that $1 per gallon gas and special taxes on large cars will lead many executives to select cities in which they can travel comfortably by train or bus.

"Chicago's commuter railroads are unmatched in this country," the executive search specialist said, "and this fact will become an increasingly important consideration in the months ahead as prime candidates consider various job offers."

Lauer said that Chicago's transportation system serves all the key "bedroom suburbs," and that door-to-door travel time is seldom more than an hour.

"Major cities without a quality transportation system will find themselves at a distinct disadvantage when talking to companies or executives considering a move," Lauer said. "A public transportation system such as Chicago's can go a long way toward balancing the advantages offered by a Sun belt city."

Sutter speaks with forked ball and Expos listen, 7-4

by JEFF NORDLUND

For those Cubs' fans who are worried that super-relief man Bruce Sutter may soon lose his effectiveness once National League hitters wise up to his forkball, relax.

That concern may have been proved needless as Sutter pitched 2-1/3 perfect innings to preserve the Cubs' 7-3 victory over the Montreal Expos at Wrigley Field Wednesday afternoon.

The big clue to Sutter's future came with two outs and the bases loaded in the Expos' seventh inning. Sutter strolled to the mound to relieve Paul Reuschel and fired what he always fires in those situations — a forkball.

MONTREAL'S Gary Carter, who had doubled only an inning before to drive home a run, lunged at the pitch and lofted a towering fly ball to center field for the final out. Sutter put the rally down, all right, but not by the customary ground out.

"Sure, I threw a forkball, but Carter dipped his shoulder when he saw it coming," Sutter explained afterward. "He lowered his swing in order to get under the pitch. He knows about my forkball.

"But that's okay with me," Sutter continued. "When they start adjusting their swings to hit me, then I've got them playing my game.

"Really, I was kind of happy to see Carter do that."

SUTTER RETIRED all seven batters he faced to record his 11th save of the season and lower his already-tiny ERA to an even skimpier 0.74. There was no question the Expos were familiar with Sutter, too. He worked in three of the Cubs' four games in Montreal two weekends ago.

The Cubs scored what proved to be the winning run in a four-run first inning. If it had not been for some erratic baserunning in the frame, though, the North Siders could have scored even more.

After Expos' starter and loser Dan Warthen issued walks to the first four Cubs he faced, leaving the bases loaded and one run in, Jerry Morales doubled to left off reliever Jeff Terko.

Two runs scored, but Bobby Murcer who was trying to make it home from first base rounded third and decided to stop. The trouble was he grabbed third base coach Harry "Peanuts" Lowrey to do it.

MURCER WAS CALLED out and a putout was credited to the nearest Expo, third baseman Warren Cromartie. After Manny Trillo walked, Steve Ontiveros doubled in Morales, but Trillo was tagged out at the plate trying to score from first.

"I grabbed Lowrey," Murcer admitted afterward."That's the only way I could stop. We worked on the play all spring, but we just hadn't got a chance to use it until now."

If Murcer was joking about the play, Lowrey was not in such a happy mood. Most of the crowd of 9,088 thought Lowrey had grabbed Murcer to cause the out.

"I CAN TAKE the booing as long as we win," he said. "But there was no way I was going to send Murcer in with no outs. He just reached out and grabbed me.

"With Trillo, I really thought we could score him on Ontiveros' hit," he added.

Cubs' manager Herman Franks said all he told Lowrey after the inning was that he should have been farther down the third base line on Morales' hit.

Ray Burris started and collected his seventh win against four losses. He was tagged for one run in the fourth and another in the sixth when he left with two outs in favor of Guillermo Hernandez, who retired the side.

HERNANDEZ WAS reached for a run in the seventh inning before Reuschel and then Sutter came in to put out the fire.

After the first inning outburst, the Cubs scored once in the fifth, sixth and seventh. Morales and Ontiveros both wound up the game with two RBIs.

The Cubs and Expos meet again this afternoon in the deciding game of the three-game series. This weekend, the division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates come to Chicago for a four-game series.

RELIEF PITCHER Rich "Goose" Gossage of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a former star with the White Sox, appears before a game holding a goose in the Pirate dugout. Gossage has been sensational in relief this year, winning four and saving eight games. He came to the Pirates with Terry Forster for Richie Zisk and Silvio Martine.

Milwaukee knocks Knapp in 7-4 triumph over Sox

by BOB GALLAS

MILWAUKEE — Young Moose Haas likes to dabble in Karate, but he didn't need anything as strong to mow down the suddenly punchless White Sox Wednesday night. The 20-year-old righthander, who is called "Kung Fu" by his teammates, settled down after giving up three first-inning runs and led the Brewers to a 7-4 win over the White Sox here.

The Sox countered by starting 23-year-old Chris Knapp who lasted 2-1/3 and was charged with five of the Brewer runs.

"Nothing was moving tonight. Everything was pretty straight," said Knapp in a subdued Sox clubhouse. The pale hose have now lost four in a row, their longest losing streak of the season.

KNAPP, WHEN ASKED if he was bothered by the week delay between starts due to a couple of open dates on the schedule, said the inactivity (he started only two games in the past two weeks) had nothing to do with his troubles Wednesday night.

"There are no excuses. It just wasn't my night."

The Sox' pitching staff earned run average continued to climb and stopped at 4:15 Wednesday. Last year the Sox' staff sported a 4.25 ERA, the worst in both leagues. Manager Bob Lemon was at a loss to explain his club's sudden problems both on the mound and at the plate.

"We'll be trying different things," he said, referring to the possibility of some changes in the starting rotation.

Lemon indicated he might also bench leftfielder Ralph Garr who's in a 3-for-26 slump and was 0-for-4 Wednesday night.

"I'M GOING TO sleep on the idea tonight," said Lemon. 'I'll make a decision tomorrow."

The Sox conclude a brief two-game stop here today when they'll send Steve Stone against Ed Rodriguez in an afternoon game.

Haas, in his first big league season, ran his record to 4-2. In 10 starts, he has allowed more than seven hits only once. He held the Sox to just six hits, retiring the side in order six times and setting down 18 of the last 19 batters he faced.

Haas' only mistake after the first inning was a fourth-inning solo homer served to Jim Spencer, who was 3-for-4 with three RBIs.

The Sox gave Knapp a 3-0 cushion before he ever threw a pitch, scratching out three runs in the opening inning.

ALAN BANNISTER and Jorge Orta singled after Garr had grounded out to open the game. Hass got Richie Zisk, who looked at a third strike, but Spencer stroked a two-run single. Chet Lemon followed with a single for the third run of the inning.

The Brewers came right back in the bottom of the inning on Sixto Lezcano's homer with a man on. They added three more in the third on four hits when they chased Knapp who yielded to Bart Johnson.

Johnson pitched five and one-third innings, giving up two runs and seven hits and was in trouble most of the time.

The Sox made it 5-4 in the third when Spencer led off with a solo homer, his sixth of the year. The Brewers added single runs off Johnson in the fifth and sixth, when Don Money slammed a solo homer, his seventh of the year.

NBA shootout resumes; 76ers seek second win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers held a secret practice and the Portland Trail Blazers an open one Wednesday in preparation for the second game of the National Basketball Assn. finals.

But both teams' goals for the series which resumes tonight were obvious.

The Sixers, who hold a 1-0 advantage in the series as a result of a 107-101 victory Sunday, must get more from big George McGinnis, whose playoff average is 14 points per game as compared to 21 in the regular season.

AND THE Trail Blazers have to stop Julius Erving, who shot 14-for-24 and scored 33 points in Sunday's game.

Bob Gross, who fouled out Sunday trying to guard Erving, said, "I've got to play him tougher. You can't let him get the ball where he wants it. You try to keep the ball away from him. We're going to try to push him to certain spots."

After Wednesdays' closed 1½ hour practice, Sixers coach Gene Shue said he expected McGinnis to "snap out of it tomorrow (Thursday) night. You cannot tell a player to do anything in particular. He has to work out of it himself."

SHUE, WHO ALSO closed his club's practice prior to the first game, would say only of Wednesdays workout that: "I feel that we accomplished something today. With our team, we've had many practices where we've accomplished nothing at all. But I think that today was more useful."

Blazers coach Jack Ramsay was still thinking about the 34 turnovers his club suffered in Sunday's game and vowing to do something about it.

"We didn't play our game Sunday and you could see that by the 34 turnovers," he said. "We've got to play a team game."

ARLINGTON head tennis coach Tom Pitchford will also wear a meet director's hat today when the IHSA boys state tennis tournament opens on area high school courts.

State tennis tourney opens

by VIV NOVAK

The Herald area figures prominently in the Illinois High School Assoc. Boys State Final Tennis Tournament that gets underway today.

Dist. 214 schools Arlington, Hersey, Prospect, Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and Forest View host first and second round action at 4 and 5 p.m. respectively.

Friday, the same schools, except for Forest View, will host the Consolation Round One at 8 a.m., Championship Round Three at 9 a.m., Championship Round Four at 11:30 a.m., and the Championship Quarterfinals at 3 p.m.

On Saturday, the Consolation Quarterfinals are set for 8 a.m., the Championship Semifinals at 9 a.m., and the Championship Finals at 1 p.m. at the Arlington High School courts.

THE OPENING AND quarterfinal round winners earn two points. The feed-in consolation bracket winners receive a half point .All other winners are awarded one point.

Nine singles players and four doubles teams will represent the Herald area. Arlington's Paul Wei is the only ranked local player. The Cardinal senior is seeded fifth among the singles competitors.

The other top-seeded singles competitors include Highland Park's Mat Horowitz, Oak Park's Bruce Brescia, Hinsdale Central's Ted Staren, and Libertyville's Kreg Yingst.

Horowitz defeated Staren for last year's state singles championship, 6-2, 6-4. Mat is the 27th-ranked 18-and-under player in the nation by the United States Tennis Assoc. He's beaten Yingst and Wei this season plus Lake Forest's John Hare and West Aurora's Scott Sommers.

BRESCIA IS THE USTA 14-and-under national hardcourt champion. This year, he's topped Horowitz, Staren, and Yingst one time each. However, Ted has also lost a total of four matches to them.

Other Herald area singles players include Arlington's Todd Van Gorp, Forest View's Dave O'Donnell, Schaumburg's Ron Dudley, Maine West's Jeff English and Todd Pistolis, Palatine's Mike Esenberg, Fremd's Bob Milligan, and Stevenson's Bill Heiser.

Wei and Esenberg are district champions. Esenberg and Milligan are the first players to represent their schools in the state final meet.

In the double competition, Highland Park, New Trier East, Danville, and Aurora West classify as the top-seeded teams.

LOCALLY, ARLINGTON, Forest View, and Maine West each have two doubles teams competing while

Girls hold softball title contest

by DON FRISKE

Coaches Nancy Dallia and Paula Von Gerichten agree that defense will be a key factor when their Prospect and Buffalo Grove teams battle for the Mid-Suburban League girls' softball title at 4 p.m. today on the Prospect field.

Prospect, which owns a 14-2 overall record, earned a spot in the championship game by finishing the season at 6-0 in the MSL South. Buffalo Grove, 8-4 overall, wound up at 4-1 in the North with a 10-1 victory against Wheeling last Saturday morning.

Early in the season, the two teams played a crossover game. Prospect won 10-5 behind the pitching of Pam Mache, who will also start today's game. Von Gerichten was still undecided on who will start for Buffalo Grove.

Mache struck out 10 Bison batters in that game.

"WE HAVE TO HIT her better than that, but I anticipate that we should. We've seen much faster pitchers since then," Von Gerichten said. "We haven't hit very well all season, but we're picking up a bit. Our ability to get the bat on the ball will be important in this game."

Prospect's Dallia also remembers the earlier game between the title-contending teams. The five errors her Knights committed are a most vivid memory.

"They scored some runs on those mistakes," Dallia said. "But we have improved a lot since then. We have more of a defensive team. We get spurts of hitting."

Von Gerihcten also sees defense as playing an important part of the title game.

"THE GAME could be decided by who makes the least amount of mistakes on the field," she said. "We have been playing much more consistently in recent games."

The Knights wrapped up the South crown with a 6-2 victory against Schaumburg, but they were eliminated from the state tournament when Downers Grove South won a 6-3 contest Tuesday. Mache also pitched in that game.

Dallia said she does not think the loss will have any negative effects in the Knights' preparation for the MSL championship.

"I think that loss will just get them up more for this game," she added. "I hope it does."

Neither team was involved in the title game last year. Hoffman Estates beat Fremd 9-4 to finish the season with a 13-1 overall record.

Bison stop Wheeling 6-0, earn North Division title

by KEITH REINHARD

Ron DeBolt, you did your job well . . . too well.

Up until four years ago the Wheeling skipper had as one of his assistants, Fred Van Iten. Wednesday that former aid came back to haunt DeBolt, directing his Buffalo Grove charges to a 6-0 triumph over the Wildcats that wrapped up the North Division title race.

"He's a super coach . . . probably the best in the league," Van Iten acknowledged after the game. I learned a heckava lot about baseball while I was working with him at Wheeling."

THAT, OF COURSE was small consolation to DeBolt, whose aggressive band of 'Cats have been the surprise of the circuit all season in keeping pace with the talented and favored Bison. But Wednesday Grove hurler Phil Czosnyka limited them to just one hit and six baserunners while mowing down 11 on strikes to hike his club's conference mark to 12-4.

Wheeling is now 11-5. Even if the Bison falter in their finale today while the Wildcats triumph, the divisional title goes to the Grove on the basis of having beaten Wheeling twice.

Mid-Suburban baseball report

"I've had confidence all along that we'd win it," Van Iten said. "Our hitting has really come on strong lately and today we mixed it with another tought pitching performance by Phil. This was his fourth shutout of the season."

WHEELING'S ONLY hit was a third inning single by Bill Luzinski. Jeff Mack drove in the first BG run in the second with a base hit, another came with the help of a pair of errors in the third and in the fourth Al Cymbal slammed a ground rule double and Mike Marshall poled a 400-foot shot over the fence in left. Two final runs came in on a sacrifice and an error in the sixth.

In other action Wednesday, Arlington nipped Palatine in 12 innings, Conant cruised past Forest View, Hersey edged Fremd, Rolling Meadows turned back Elk Grove and Hoffman Estates stopped Prospect.

DAN FRASE doubled and scored on an error to break up a dozen-inning-long deadlock and give the Cardinals a 6-5 win at Palatine.

The game went into overtime tied at 2-2 but both clubs put four hits and three runs on the board in the tenth. It was the second extra-inning win for the Redbirds in as many days. They needed 10 to bump Buffalo Grove Tuesday.

Frase doubled to left center and with two outs Dave Mayerck reached first on a dropped throw at first, allowing Frase to scoot all the way home.

Earlier Pirate Dave Mottashed had stroked a two-run, two-out single in the tenth to keep his team alive.

Doug Harth in relief of Scott Holfeld, was the winning pitcher. Mike Charlier took over on the mound for Kevin McKenna in the 11th and absorbed the defeat.

JEFF JOHNSON doubled and Scott Schafer slugged a two-run homer and the Cougars were on their way to an 8-3 verdict over the Falcons Wednesday.

Schafer's shot to right center occurred in the first frame and Conant added four more runs in the second triggered by Carmen Zepeda's two-run single.

Bill Schimbke went the distance on the hill to notch the win.

THE HUSKIES scored two in the bottom of the seventh to nudge the Vikings 4-3. Earlier Fremd had tallied once in both the fifth and sixth stanzas to pull ahead 3-2.

With one away in the seventh Doug Frye singled to left, stole second and went to third on an error. Doug Blake doubled in Frye with the tying run and Isola reached on a miscue while Blake streaked across with the decisive run.

Bob Reiland went the route for the win. Reliefer Andy Gabrielson took the loss.

MEADOWS AND Dennis Drolet topped Elk Grove and Tom Curran 4-1. Both hurlers struck out eight but Drolet scattered just four hits and a walk and his teammates broke open a 1-1 stalemate with a three-run burst in the sixth.

Tom Hopkins singled home the go-ahead run and an error and a wild pitch allowed two more runs in.

HOFFMAN ESTATES came up with a trio of runs in the sixth inning to trim Prospect, 3-1.

It was a scoreless pitcher's duel between Hawk Bob Slawek and Knight Tom Peterson going into the bottom of the sixth. With one out then Bill Strawn doubled and Ray Gawron walked an out later.

Bob Slania then slapped a single to left, scoring Strawn and both runners moved up on a miscue.

Fernando blooped a single to center to bring in the final two runs. Prospect answered with just one run in the seventh when Scott Springs singled and came around and in on an error.

Veeck on Cuba mission to find big-league talent

MILWAUKEE — Shrouded in secrecy and intrigue worthy of Agent 007, White Sox president Bill Veeck quietly stole out of Chicago Monday and headed for Cuba on a trip to scout new player talent.

Veeck had planned a similar trip last September, but a chatty New York travel agent leaked word of the trip and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn vetoed the venture on the grounds that no one team should get the jump on signing Cuban players.

However Yankees owner George Steinbrenner recently chose to ignore Kuhn's ruling and visited Cuba so Veeck apparently decided to try again, but without giving Kuhn a chance to nix the idea.

SOX OFFICIALS here with the team, including Vice President Roland Hemond, said they knew nothing about Veeck's trip, not even who was accompanying the Sox owner.

"I think he wanted to make sure he was there this time before word got out," Hemond said.

After Steinbrenner's defiance of Kuhn's earlier edict prohibiting visits to Cuba for scouting purposes, the commissioner's office said the trips to Cuba were allowed, but no players could be signed.

So Veeck and his traveling companion, whoever that may be, will supposedly have to be content with merely enjoying some Cuban baseball and watching the grass grow.

"Veeck left early Monday," said White Sox publicity director Don Unferth, who also denied having any knowledge of Veeck's trip. "He said not to say anything about it and to use it in the notes as I saw fit," said Unferth, referring to the team information released to the press a few hours before game time against the Brewers.

Veeck is expected to stay in Cuba until Monday when he'll return to Chicago.

Major league baseball

Minnesota has taken advantage of the faltering White Sox to pad their lead in the American League's West Division race.

While the Sox were losing to Milwaukee, 7-4 Wednesday night, the Twins were winning a doubleheader with Boston, winning the opener, 13-5, and leading the nightcap, 9-4 in the seventh.

In other major league action, the New York Yankees split a twi-night doubleheader with Texas, winning 3-2 before losing 1-0, and Baltimore won the nightcap of a twinbill 7-2 from Kansas City while dropping the opener, 4-1.

ELSEWHERE, California blanked Detroit, 4-0, Cleveland tipped Seattle, 2-1, Oakland edged Toronto, 6-5 and Philadelphia nipped St. Louis, 2-1 in the only National League contest.

Pat Kelly's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and Rick Dempsey's three-run double in the eighth gave the Orioles a 7-2 nightcap victory and a split of a twinight doubleheader with Kansas City after Al Cowens drove in three runs in the 4-1 first game win for the Royals.

Rookie Dennis Martinez, 3-2, survived a shaky start to take the victory in the second game. Martinez retired 13 straight Royals batters at one stretch after giving up a second inning home run to Darrell Porter.

Gaylord Perry scattered six hits and Jim Sundberg drove in the only run with a second-inning sacrifice fly to give the Rangers a 1-0 victory over the Yankees and a split of their twinight doubleheader. Graig Nettles and Bucky Dent doubled in the fifth inning to snap a 2-2 tie and give New York a 3-2 triumph in the first game as Gil Patterson notched his major league victory.

Southpaw Frank Tanana, with home run support from Bobby Bonds and Bobby Grich, fired a three-hitter to become the major league's first eight-game winner while pitching the surging Angels to a 4-0 victory. It was the Angels' 11th triumph in their last 15 games.

Tanana, now 8-1, fanned 11 and walked two in pitching his fourth straight victory, his second consecutive shutout and fourth of the season. It was also his eighth complete game — tops in the majors.

Larry Hisle knocked in five runs, four of them with his second grand slam of the season, to power the Twins to a 13-5 victory over the Red Sox in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader which featured an American League season-high 36 hits.

Boys football signup set for Saturday

The last two days to sign up for the Arlington Heights boys football program will be this Saturday and June 11. Boys in the fifth through eighth grades can participate.

Saturday's signup will be held at Frontier Part from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. On June 11, it is scheduled at Pioneer Park during the same hours.

A parent or guardian must accompany each boy to registration. There is a $29 fee for the first boy in a family with brothers paying $24.

For additional information, contact registration chairman Art Gollberg at 398-4711 or the Arlington Heights Youth Athletic Association at 392-0975.

PAT KELLY of Baltimore limbers up waiting to step into the batter's box. The former White Sox outfielder has been on a hitting streak with the Orioles.

'Reverend' keeps hitting

Discipline and Pat Kelly

Milton Richman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some high school kids can get a little difficult to live with, particularly when they begin winning all kinds of athletic awards and start seeing their names in the paper. They become carried away sometimes.

Pat Kelly was that kind of kid. He was so good in baseball and football at Philadelphia's Simon Gratz High School, he made "All Public" in both sports and in his senior year, 1962, he earned the Cliveden Award as the best prep school athlete in the entire city.

He was a pitcher then and thought he was pretty hot stuff. Any time he was clipped for a home run or a key base hit, he couldn't understand how that could happen to a pitcher like him and he'd sulk about it. His high school coach, Pete Lorenc, didn't go for that kind of nonsense.

"OH, WHAT A terrible shame, did someone steal your lollipop?" Lorenc would say, applying the needle. "What are you, a little baby? Grow up."

It took a while, but Pat Kelly did. He grew up so well, hardly anybody would recognize him now as the same individual who acted as if someone had taken away his toys any time things didn't go the way he wanted them to when he was a high school kid.

Pat Kelly no longer is a pitcher. He's an outfielder now with the Baltimore Orioles, who he has been carrying with his .337 average and a hitting streak which he stretched to 19 games Monday night against the Milwaukee Brewers with an eighth-inning homer.

Pete Lorenc probably will be surprised to find this out, but he has something to do with Kelly's sudden emergence as one of the American League's top hitters.

"WHEN YOU played for him, the first thing you learned was discipline," Kelly says about his former high school coach. "He taught it to me and I still remember him for that. You might be surprised how much something like disciplining yourself has to do with hitting a baseball. In hitting, I've come to realize every ballplayer goes through a skid or a slump. Those things are bound to happen when you're not seeing the ball well or when you don't have the same feel of the bat in your hands.

"Normally, things like that will get a hitter overly concerned, make him depressed. You've got to discipline yourself not to worry and I've learned that. I don't think it's something you need help with. Pete Lorenc helped me tremendously. He taught me discipline and with it came serenity. That's where God helped. After I found him, nothing ever could get me down any more. I can go oh-for-four or oh-for-five, but if the team wins that pleases me more than getting three or four hits myself.

"I thought I was happy before but actually I didn't know what true happiness meant. I think finding God has more to do with my success than anything else."

Pat Kelly talks this way so much, he takes some kidding from the other Orioles, but that doesn't upset him at all.

"SOME OF THE fellow call me 'Reverend,' " he laughs. "Other people say I missed my calling."

Kelly, whose brother, Leroy, twice was the NFL's rushing champ with the Cleveland Browns, originally came up with the Minnesota Twins in 1967 after being signed by the late Harry Gultius. He was Kansas City's fourth round draft choice in the 1968 expansion draft and the Royals traded him to the White Sox in 1970. Last November, Kelly came to the Orioles from the White Sox in a stright-up swap for catcher Dave Duncan, no longer in baseball.

"I'll tell you the type player he is," says Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He started the season going one-for-18. We were in Texas on our first road trip and it was raining like hell. No chance at all of the game being played. Me and my coaches went out to the park to see if maybe we could get in some hitting or throwing, but the field was in such bad shape, we called the hotel and told our traveling secretary Phil Itzoe, to keep everybody back there. It was no use coming out because the field was like a swimming pool.

"KELLY INSISTED on coming out, though. Him and (Jim) Palmer. They didn't care how bad the field was, they wanted to do some running. They ran around in water up to their ears.

"Kelly is hot now. I don't know if he'll stay that way all year. It's kind of doubtful he will, because he has never hit this much before, but no matter what he hits he's an asset to this club. He was even when he was one-for-18."

Bzdelik to participate in Latin America tour

Former Prospect High School basketball star Jeff Bzdelik has been named to play on one of the six Sports Ambassadors teams that travel to Latin America, Africa, and the Orient. Some of the countries Jeff's team will visit in Latin America are Costa Rica, El Salvador, Belize, and Nicaraqua.

The Sports Ambassadors for over 25 years have offered college athletes and coaches unparalleled opportunities for combining sports and religion through overseas sports competition.

Bzdelik, who teaches in the Oak Park Elementary School District, and coaches seventh grade basketball, attended the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle and was co-captain of the 1975-76 UICC team. In 1975 Jeff was named to the Lakeland College All-Tournament team, the North Park College All-Tournament team, and the Wayne State University All-Tournament team. For 1975-76, his senior year at UICC, Jeff was named the team's most valuable player.

Each player who travels with the Sports Ambassadors must raise his own share of finances in order to make the trip. The total cost for one player is $2300 for transportation, lodging, food, uniforms, Bible correspondence courses, brochures, equipment, etc. All donations are tax deductible and interested persons can call 392-6291.

Jeff's team is scheduled to go on tour from June 17 to July 31, visiting countries throughout Latin America.

State tennis tourney opens today

The teams of Bob Pionke and Mike Doering plus Blair Johnson and Kurt Wiebe represent Arlington. Forest View's two pairs include Steve Calderone and Nick Kekos plus Doug Majewski and Mark Stiles. Maine West's doubles teams are Dick Gearhart and John Minardi plus Tom Gebhart and Bob Wyatt. Schaumburg's only entry is Mitch Borske and Scott Wright.

Over-all team favorites are Hinsdale Central, New Trier East, Oak Park, Arlington, and Forest View.

HERE IS TODAY'S playing schedule for Herald area players:

Esenberg vs. Eugene Casey of Elgin at Rolling Meadows.

Pistolis vs. Scott Reynolds of Streator at Rolling Meadows.

Dudley vs. Ernie Mitropolous of Fenton at Arlington.

O'Donnell vs. Mike Gibson of Kankakee at Elk Grove.

Van Gorp vs. Ron Kowal of Naperville North at Forest View.

English vs. Joe Vassen of Belleville West at Wheeling.

Milligan vs. Rory McNitt at Buffalo Grove.

Heiser vs. Golconda of Centralia at Forest View. (Heiser earns first round bye)

Pionke and Doering play Carbondale — Highland winner at Rolling Meadows. (Pionke and Doering earn first round bye)

Johnson and Wiebe play Wheaton North — Olney East winner at Prospect. (Johnson and Wiebe have first round bye).

All of the meet's competitors qualified by placing first or second in last weekend's district meets. Hinsdale Central has won the last five state titles and has 11 total.

Karate tourney at Hersey Saturday

Hersey High School will be the site of the Great Lakes Region Karate Tournament Saturday with eliminations at 11 a.m. and the finals at 7 p.m.

Six states will be competing in the tournament with representatives from Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan. Men, women and children will be in competition.

Tickets are available in advance from Japan Karate Assn., 660 Northwest Hwy. in Mount prospect for $2 or at the door for $3.

Tennis club plans activities

The Des Plaines Tennis Club has planned many activities for the upcoming weeks.

On June 5 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., the Annual Men's Monkeyshines Doubles Tournament will be held at Maine West High School. This event is for members only and is open to 32 players. The level of play of each participant is not a factor for eligibility. This event is scheduled primarily to introduce new members to others in the Club.

The Annual Des Plaines Closed Tennis Tournament will be held June 11-12 at Rand Park. It is open only to residents of the Des Plaines park district and Club members who reside in Maine Township.

This year, men's, women's and junior singles events and a new class for Jr. vets for men 35 and over will be held. The entry fee is $1 and a new can of balls. Application blanks will be available May 31 at the park district office, 748 Pearson Street.

The Club will again sponsor the Des Plaines Open Tournament July 2-4. This is one of the largest tournaments in the state, and is sanctioned by the U.S.T.A. and the Chicago District Tennis Association.

The Club's tennis ladder competition started May 16 and will run through the end of the summer. Last year, more than 100 men were ranked and about 24 women on their respective ladders.

The Club is also sponsoring traveling tennis teams in the North and West Suburban Tennis League. Naperville's teams come to Des Plaines June 4 to open the season's competition, which will run through the end of July.

The Club is open to all residents of Maine township. For more information, contact President Phil Dlouhy at 694-4300 days or secretary Len Schneller at 825-2829 in the evening.

NBA teams shuffle centers in trades

DENVER — The Denver Nuggets, in a deal involving two other teams, Wednesday acquired 6-6 guard Bobby Wilkerson and 7-2 center Tom Burleson from the Seattle SuperSonics and shuffled Burleson to the Kansas City Kings for 6-3 guard Brian Taylor.

The Nuggets, who finished first in their NBA division this season but lost in playoffs to Portland, gave Seattle 7-1 center Marvin Webster and forwards Paul Silas and Willie Wise. Denver also picked up the Sonics' second-round draft choice.

In trading Burleson to Kansas City for Taylor, a five-year pro, the Nuggets also were granted the Kings' first-round draft pick and "future considerations" to be agreed upon with Kansas City before the June 10 draft.

Pearson flags down World 600 pole

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — David Pearson won the pole position for the World 600 stock car race Wednesday, qualifying his Wood Brothers Mercury at 161.435 miles per hour over the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway. It was the eighth consecutive pole position Pearson has won at the Charlotte track and added $11,500 to his winnings for the season.

Richard Petty won the outside front row position for Sunday's $302,550 race with a speed of 161.112 m.p.h. in a Dodge. "I'm gonna run for it as long as you put up that kind of money," Pearson said. "That's just about like winning a short race."

Pearson won the Western 500 at the beginning of the season, but hasn't captured a race since. "We feel like we will win some more races. I feel like the car is handling better than it has," Pearson said. "Last year we couldn't do anything wrong. This year we can't do anything right."

Jensen dismissed as baseball coach

BERKELEY, Calif. — Jackie Jensen, one-time American League Most Valuable Player and former football All-America, was dismissed Wednesday as the University of California's baseball coach.

"After discussing the situation with Jack, we both mutually agreed it is in the best interest of the University of California baseball program that a change be made prior to the start of next season," athletic director Dave Maggard said following a meeting with Jensen.

"It was a very difficult decision for me. Jack and I part as friends, but sentiment has no place in the decision now or when I hired him four years ago." Jensen, who won the 1958 MVP award while with tht Boston Red Sox after a star-studded collegiate football career at California, compiled an overall 109 - 95 record with a 29 - 46 mark in Pacific-8 Conference play.

Watson a Master, but not in Penfold

SANDWICH, England — Masters champion Tom Watson, the 6-1 favorite, shot a disastrous eight-over-par 78 Wednesday, to trail nine strokes behind the first round pacesetters in the $85,000 Penfold PGA championships.

Britain's Peter Oosterhuis and 20-year-old Spaniard Severiano Ballesteros led the chase for the $17,000 first prize with 69s as a tricky wind and the testing 6,724-yard St. George's links course sent scores soaring.

George Burns, the big 29-year-old from Delray Beach, Fla., spearheaded the U.S. challenge with a 70, which he shared with Britain's Brian Huggett and John Morgan. Pennsylvanian Arnold Palmer, defying his 49 years, stayed in contention with a 73, two strokes behind a clutch of players including South Africans Gary Player and Hugh Baiocchi.

Few surprises in French tennis play

PARIS — Defending champion and No. 2 seed Adriano Panatta was stretched to four sets Wednesday to beat Frenchman Patrice Beust, 7-5, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, in the first round of the $370,000 French Open tennis championships.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico, seeded No. 5, beat France's Georges Goven, 6-4, 6-1, 7-5, and No. 10 seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland outplayed Sherwood Stewart, Baytown, Tex., 6-3, 6-2, 7-5, to advance easily to the second round of the tournament on the red clay courts of the Roland Garros stadium.

Number 11 seed Stan Smith, Sea Pines, S.C., dismissed Dick Crealy, 7-6, 6-1, 6-2, as a hostile crowd of 2,000 people on center court jeered at the Australian who hit balls into the stands and threw his racket on the ground in anger over two linecalls.

Juergen Fassbender of West Germany triumphed over Fred McNair, Chevy Chase, Md., 6-4, 7-6, 3-6, 1-6, 6-4, and Australian Phil Dent came from behind to beat Yugoslavia's Niki Pilic, 1-6,

Gymnastics

The boys' team from the American Academy of Gymnastics, Inc., of Des Plaines dominated the State Junior Olympic Championships held at Lyons Township High School in LaGrange May 21.

In the 10-12 year Advanced Beginners Division, the boys swept the top three all-around spots with Greg Teets of Prospect Heights taking top honors (51.3). He also collected firsts on rings and high bar (8.8) and (8.6), third on vault and free exercise (8.9) and (8.4), and fourth on pommel horse (8.4) and p. bars (8.2). Bill Rediehs took second all-around (50.4), second p. bars (8.3) and third on vault (8.9), horse (8.6), rings, (8.5) and high bar (8.0). David Oak of Arlington Heights placed third all-around (50.3) and took first on vault (9.2) and horse (8.9), and second on rings (8.6), p. bars (8.3), and high bar (8.2). Paul Siebert also competed for the Academy.

The 12-14 year Intermediate Division found Joe Ray capturing first all-around (94.39). He also took first in all events except pommel horse on which teammate Dean Hellickson of Mount Prospect won. Dean finished second all-around (82.80).

In the 15 year and up Advanced Division, David Fiedler of Arlington Heights took third all-around (75.00) while Brian Godawa of Rolling Meadows placed fifth.

Ray, Hellickson and Fiedler qualified for the Regional Jr. Olympic Championships to be held June 25 at Mundelein High School. Only the older divisions were eligible for advancement.

Women's shelter offers solace to battered wives

by BARBARA LADD

(Last of three parts)

On a quiet street corner in Elgin stands a rambling 100-year-old house with a large front yard, shady apple trees and a walk curving up to its massive front door.

It looks like an established family home. No sign indicates that this is the Community Crisis Center, a shelter for desperate women needing a temporary place to stay.

Between April '76 and March '77, the home provided beds, food and counseling for 152 battered and physically abused women

IN THAT SAME period, its door opened to hundreds of others troubled by myriad crises including problem pregnancies and financial strains. Not all sought overnight accommodations; many needed only emotional support and professional guidance.

"Most of the women come in with marital problems," said counselor Pat Pickens, "and I'd say that at least half of those cases involve physical abuse of some kind."

Community Crisis Center is one of the few places in the area where troubled and battered women may escape from abusive husbands while attempting to redesign their lives.

The Elgin center accepts women from Kane, McHenry, DeKalb and DuPage counties, though women from Cook County have been helped, too.

The Salvation Army provides temporary shelter at 432 W. Wisconsin, Chicago. There are two other shelters in Chicago and one starting in Elmhurst.

NO SIMILAR SHELTER for abused or troubled women exists in the Northwest suburbs.

At first dismayed and sickened by the number of beaten women seeking shelter from their husbands, today Ms. Pickens speaks matter-of-factly about battered wives.

"Now when these women come in and start talking about their problems and what's been going on in their homes, well, we can almost finish their sentences for them. Of course, we don't tell them that," she said.

The pattern is similar in most cases where abuse is involved, she said.

"Usually by the time she (the abused woman) comes to us, she has alienated all others — mothers, sisters, close friends. She's gone to them maybe three or four times for help but has always returned to her husband."

After awhile, no one wants to hear about her problem anymore, said Ms. Pickens.

SHE CITED THE case of a woman beaten sadistically merely for overcooking her husband's meal. When she sought help from her mother, the woman was told to go home and cook his food the way her husband wanted it done.

"Going to a friend or relative isn't a good idea anyway," Ms. Pickens said. "The woman is imposing on others and her husband may come and break all the windows or kick down the door."

A place to be safe from her husband. To sort out her life. To talk over her problems with experienced counselors. The Community Crisis Center provides invaluable services to the abused woman who is seeking a solution to her bruised and battered plight.

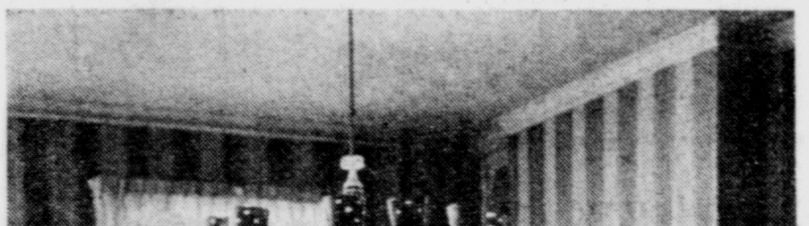
"They have to develop self-worth. And they have to convince themselves that they have the ability to care for their lives." — Pat Pickens, counselor



The Elgin shelter is structured to keep mothers together with their children during the difficult days following personal crises. The women must follow "house rules" which include cooking chores and they must be actively solving their problems. Women in crisis are permitted to reside in the shelter only once and only for periods of three weeks or less.

The doctor says

Bed rest important for viral hepatitis

Can you give me some information on viral hepatitis? The doctor treated my daughter with antibiotics for two weeks for what he thought was a sinus infection and when she turned yellow he said it was viral hepatitis. She is on a high protein and low fat diet and is to do absolutely nothing for 30 days. She is 28 and married and lives out of state.

Do you have a leaflet on this? Does it linger after the 30 days and is it hard to shake off? Is it infectious? How does it differ from infectious hepatitis? Is it more dangerous in young people than older adults? Are there other precautions to take?

Viral hepatitis and infectious hepatitis are the same thing and there are two types — the kind that is commonly transmitted by food or water and the kind transmitted commonly by blood transfusions or infected needles (serum hepatitis). One of the main differences is the length of time it takes to develop the infection after the virus has entered the body. The food-borne type occurs much earlier.

Your daughter's story is rather familiar. Before jaundice develops the patient may have many symptoms of other virus diseases, particularly resembling influenza or gastroenteritis. Unless an epidemic is in process the doctor is not likely to guess that a flu-like illness is really the start of hepatitis.

In fact, there are many more cases of infectious hepatitis than is ever diagnosed. Why? Because there is a mild form that behaves like other virus diseases and jaundice never develops at all. This mild form is more apt to occur in individuals who have had infectious hepatitis before and have some immunity or in infants or children.

I have included some remarks about viral hepatitis in The Health Letter number 7-8, Living With Your Liver. I am sending you a copy to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

There is evidence that patients with hepatitis do better at bed rest. Apparently this has something to do with the changes in circulation to the liver when you are sitting up as compared to lying down. Patients with jaundice are usually kept at bed rest. When they become too active too soon there is usually a relapse in the course of the disease.

There is no magic number of days for bed rest or resumption of activity. Doctors usually make this decision based on tests that evaluate liver function. As the liver function improves, the jaundice recedes and the tests improve. When they show little evidence of liver disease the person's activity is increased.

Obviously, the more severe the initial damage to the liver and the longer it takes to control the viral infection the longer will be the bed rest and the disability. And it is not uncommon for a person to lack energy for some time after initial recovery from the illness. With suitable rest and time most people with viral hepatitis recover completely.

Older people do not tolerate viral hepatitis as well as young people. Mild cases of hepatitis in younger people are sometimes treated at home but older people and those with more severe infections must be hospitalized until suitable recovery is achieved.

Burnt umber and oil helps refinish wood

Dear Dorothy: I've enjoyed your recipes and ideas very much — the last one being the touch-up of light scratches with boiled linseed oil, vinegar and turpentine. Now I'm looking for a coverup for dark wood. We have walnut woodwork, paneling and so on, and I no longer can get a product given to me by a furniture refinisher. If you know of such a treatment, I'd appreciate it.—Lillian W. Jahnke

The best refinisher I know suggests the following: Add one teaspoon of burnt umber to the pint container of boiled linseed oil. Apply with a cloth to one wall at a time, then go back and wipe the wall with a clean cloth, going with the grain. This will bring back all the highlights, luster and satin finish. Do not hang anything on the wall for 24 hours. He also cautioned that any cloth used with linseed oil can become highly flammable and it should be soaked in water and disposed of carefully.

Dear Dorothy: A friend gave me an Easter cactus two years ago. This year I saw no evidence of bloom. It just sat there. I put the pot in a dark closet which is seldom used — and lo! In a week, red buds were popping all over it. Thought you might like to know this. Tried this on a Christmas cactus, but no luck thus far.—Edith McNamee

Dear Dorothy: After baking cookies, I always store them in glass jars. They stay fresher longer. They are sold in all department stores and I buy them in the various sizes — 1 lb., 2 lb., 3 lb. and 4 lb., in both plain and Wexford designs. They are also handy for storing flour, sugar and sour dough.—Nell H.

a set list of assumptions he continually tells his wife that increases her insecurity and isolation, Ms. Pickens continued.

"He tells her that she is a terrible mother and that if they divorce she stands no chance of getting the children. He tells her that she is a terrible wife — that she asks for the beatings because she is so bad.

"IF SHE WANTS to get a job or go back to school or even visit friends socially, he insists she is a whore looking for other men.

"Oh, and usually the husband tells his wife that she is ugly and not at all pretty or desirable."

Told these things repeatedly, the abused woman soon feels she has no alternative but to stay with the husband. "She's depressed and doesn't think she has even the ability to care for herself, let alone her children," said Ms. Pickens.

Abused women seeking help from Community Crisis Center may stay in the home up to three weeks while putting their lives in order, according to Gretchen Vapner, assistant administrative director. They must abide by house rules, show they are working on their problems and realize they may stay only once — the center is not a "flophouse" for those with recurring problems, she emphasized.

"FOR THE FIRST two or three days, the beaten woman usually 'trashes' her husband," said Ms. Pickens. "She says she'll never go back to him, that she shouldn't be treated that way, and that she wants to make a new life for herself and her kids."

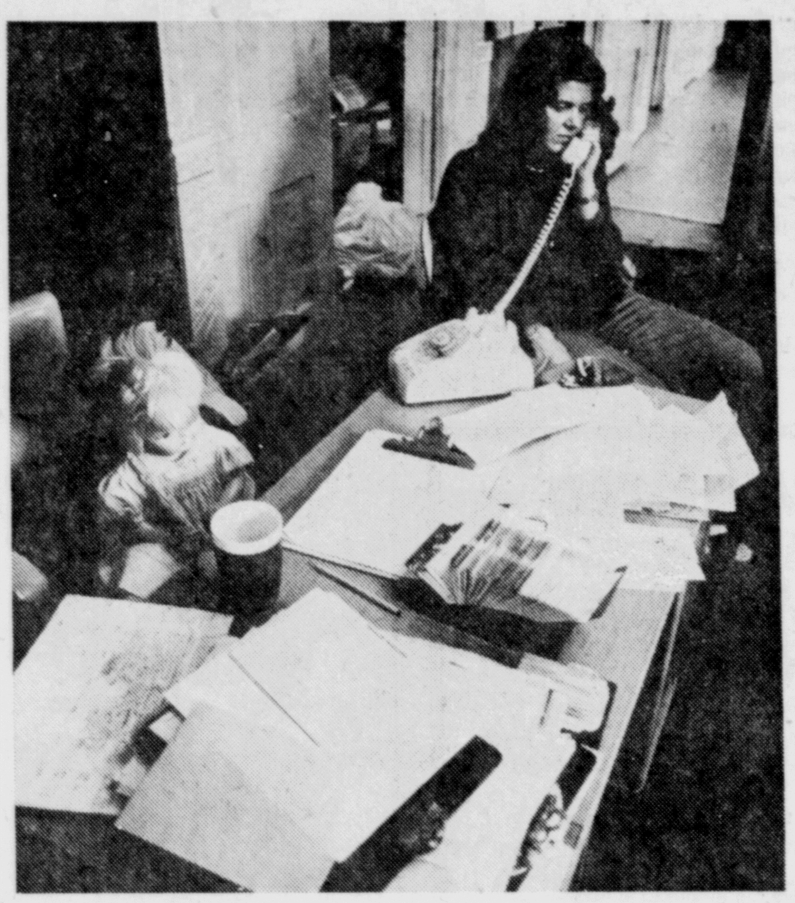
But after about five days, these women reach a second "crisis" and some may leave the shelter in the middle of the night or call their husbands to come take them home.

"By this time the husband usually has done a 180-degree turn in character," said Ms. Pickens. "He tells her, 'Baby, I can't live without you, I miss you, I'll never hurt you again' And she goes back."

Women who stay in the shelter through that second crisis period are determined to start a new life and usually succeed, said Ms. Pickens. "And, by the way, I've never heard of any abusive husband who ever stopped beating his wife completely. The incidence may drop, but once a man uses physical force to control his wife, he never seems to completely stop it."

WOMEN WHO SEEK a new life away from their abusive husbands find the path rough, she said. Counselors at the shelter encourage the women to first establish incomes and find places to live. Maybe schooling is needed before some can qualify for jobs.

"We try to be supportive of their efforts and build up their self-concept. If they are cooking dinner, we tell them they've done a good job. If they look especially nice some day, we tell them so," she said. "Usually these women don't accept compliments well because they've been constantly put down. We have to convince them that they are worthy of friends and are nice people for us to know."



Counselor Pat Pickens helps clients with myriad crises.

That friendly, warm approach is evident through the crisis center. Its sunny dining room usually overflows with toddlers, toys and chatting women, as does the adjacent living room with its ornate 100-year-old fireplace, paneled ceiling, and stained glass windows. Delicious aromas waft from the large, brightly papered kitchen as trouble-ridden women take turns with the cooking duties.

"THE NEIGHBORS — and I was one of them — did not want the center to be here at all," smiled Mrs. Vapner, after directing two upset young women to a counselor. "It's hard to believe that now."

Originally zoned for single-family usage, the property required a special-use permit and neighbors thought that too much such zoning already existed in their vicinity, she said.

Finally both sides sat down and reached an agreement.

Included in the contract with neighbors were provisions that the Community Crisis Center could not destroy the historical value of the house, that no sign could be displayed out front and that off-street parking facilities would be found.

AFTER SIX MONTHS' operation, a neighborhood review board met to evaluate how the arrangement was working.

"Since then, the neighbors have really cooperated. They're donating goods in time of need," said Mrs. Vapner. "And they have begun to feel they can come in and talk to our counselors when they have their own problems."

Today the biggest problem is not neighborhod acceptance but funding. Community Crisis Center receives $40,000 each year from Elgin Township revenue sharing and $20,000 from a community trust grant.

Expenses include professional, salaried counselors who staff the house around the clock, in addition to maintenance costs for the huge home and supplies.

The estimated budget for this year is more than $100,000, said Mrs. Vapner.

Despite financial headaches, Mrs. Vapner and others involved with the shelter are pleased by the progress the center has made since its inception three years ago.

THE INSPIRATION of a group of Elgin women, the Community Crisis Center was conceived to meet the needs of a 30-year-old woman left homeless with three young children after her husband deserted, selling their home (it was in his name) and clearing their joint bank account.

Her friends rallied around her but decided to help other needy women as well.

Assisted by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and 22,000 hours of volunteer time, the center was formed.

Similar shelters are the goal for other groups, including the liberal National Organization for Women and the traditional League of Women Voters. Centers already are operating in such diverse areas as Texas, California and New York.

THE UNITED STATES is not alone in recognizing the plight of abused or troubled women. In the early '70s, Great Britain pioneered the cause by setting up shelters for abused women and now maintains 80 such homes.

But shelters and initial crisis counseling do not end the battered woman's problems, noted Ms. Pickens, whose clients return often for dinner or to wash their clothes and chat.

"It's normal for the abused woman who's made the break from her husband to slip into a depression one to three months after she's started her new life," said Ms. Pickens. "Some inner energy got her through the initial crisis, helped her fit into a new pattern and then there's a letdown. "She now has this new existence. What next?

"I REALLY believe that change happens in people's heads, not in the places they live or the jobs they work at," she added. "Women who were beaten and who finally broke away from their husbands need to emotionally accept their new roles. They have to develop self-worth. And they have to convince themselves that they have the ability to care for their lives."

Collecting

Last week I saw the Jewel Tea truck across the street, and I harkened back to my early marriage and remembered one of the most friendly little men I ever met, my Jewel Tea delivery man. He brought good products, a happy smile, and best of all — premiums. A real Jewel. I still use the beach towels, 30 years old! I also received a nest of mixing bowls in the Autumn Leaf pattern, such as that shown above. They're all gone by way of my butterfingers now except the smallest one, which is still intact and very much appreciated.

The Jewel Tea Company had its beginning in 1899 when Frank V. Skiff started his one-horse home delivery business, but he innovated the "premium first — pay out with trade later" principle which set his business apart from his competitors. Now known as Jewel Home Shopping Service, it is a division of the Jewel Companies, the 12th largest retailer in the nation.

AND ALONG WITH Depression Glass, Fiesta, and other products of the 20s, 30s and later, Jewel Tea premiums are being sought by collectors. Especially the Autumn Leaf pattern, which was made for Jewel by the Hall China Company. The ware is still being made but will soon be discontinued, and you know what happens with collectibles — once out of production, value soars.

There is a fine little booklet, "The Autumn Leaf Story," written by Jo Cunningham, a mother of seven and grandma of three who has still found time to do a thorough job of researching this china, as well as other Depression-era products. The book is available from Haf–A Productions, 535 E. Normal, Springfield, Mo. 65807. It is priced at $5.95 plus 30 cents postage, and you may also order a price guide for $2 postpaid to help evaluate all the pieces of Autumn Leaf known to be made over its 43-year life. Prices are based on questionnaires sent to collectors, from ads, and from Jo's personal knowledge of transactions.

I WAS SURPRISED to see the number of articles made in Autumn Leaf pattern: bread boxes, step stools, coffee dispensers, complete dinner sets, table cloths, shelf paper, playing cards, clocks, tea towels, silverplate — and many more. I have a long way to go in my collection of Autumn Leaf, for in addition to the previously mentioned bowl, I have one other piece, a coffee dispenser which I found on the wall in my mother's basement when she moved. The colors and arrangement of the pattern varies slightly from piece to piece, but in general the background color is ivory with a flowerette, stems and leaves in gold, light and dark brown.

Mrs. Cunningham notes that one may find similar pieces made by other companies, notably the Crooksville China Company, Ohio. Their line has a definite yellow background, and is somewhat earlier than the Hall products. And although her booklet is quite complete, she admits that you may be lucky enough to find other pieces not listed nor shown. Both her enthusiasm and that of local collector Betty Hurlburt, who aroused my interest in this old pattern china, are definitely contagious. Beware the Autumn Leaf bug!

If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Il. 60006, enclosing self addressed stamped envelope.

Today on TV

Diane Mermigas

News is fair fodder for TV mills

There is nothing like real life to make good television.

No setting can be as dramatic, no characters as unpredictable and no events as shocking.

Take, for example, the front page of most newspapers Tuesday. Terrorists seized a school in the Netherlands and held more than 150 children hostage.

Meanwhile, a meeting was taking place in Washington, D. C. between President Carter and Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, discussing the Middle East situation.

The House of Representatives continued its hearings on child pornography and the Supreme Court refused to reverse the convictions of three of former President Nixon's top aides, all connected with the Watergate scandal.

THE STORIES warranted film coverage on most evening newscasts and prompted headlines and pictures in the newspapers. It was the kind of news that, ultimately, may catch a television producer's fancy.

Real life is what contemporary television is made of. Real life drama first crops up in the news and later in made-for-television specials, movies, and regular series.

Some of the biggest productions and highest-rated shows this past season dealt with historic figures such as Sen. Joseph McCarthy, Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt, Howard Hughes, and John and Robert Kennedy.

Other specials and movies have drawn their inspiration from actual incidents of violence and danger such as "Victory at Entebbe," "Raid on Entebbe," and "Twenty-one Hours at Munich."

It seems television is completely infatuated with the story-lines and potential scripts that await them in each day's news.

IN AN ATTEMPT to make primetime TV more exciting, the powers that be will be tapping the pages of life's most bewildering incidents next season.

Following are some examples of movies and specials inspired by news events to be shown during the 1977-78 television season.

ABC:

- "Ike: The War Years" will be the first installment of a drama that will explore the life and accomplishments of former President Dwight David Eisenhower. The first five-hour segment will focus on the General's role as Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces during World War II. "Ike: The White House Years," will be aired during the 1978-79 season.
- "Washington" will be shown as a 20-hour, 10-part novel, based on John Erlichman's Watergate-related book, "The Company."
- "Mary White" is a drama based on famed journalist William Allen White's moving editorial to his late teen-age daughter.
- "Changing" is the story of actress Liv Ullmann, taken from her autobiography of the same name. It will explore her growth as an actress, her relationship with Swedish director Ingmar Bergman and her attempt to cope with fame. Ms. Ullmann will portray herself.
- "Scarlett, Rhett and a Cast of Thousands" is a drama that will detail the story of the making of "Gone With the Wind."
- "Past Forgetting: My Love Affair with Dwight D. Eisenhower," is Kay Summersby Morgan's recently published book developed into a drama about love and war.
- "Young Joe, the Forgotten Kennedy" will star Peter Strauss in the title role of the movie profiling Joseph Kennedy Jr., the eldest of four Kennedy brothers and the first to meet with premature death.

CLAUDINE LONGET

NBC:

- "Aspen" will combine the Burt Hirschfield novel of the same name and the real-life drama of singer-actress Claudine Longet. The setting for this show is a jet-set ski resort where love, fun and murder mingle.
- "King" is the story of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Starring Paul Winfield in the title role, the show is based on King's career as a black civil rights leader.
- "Wilma" is the 90-minute drama about Wilma Rudolph, the black woman who overcame physical handicaps to become a triple Gold Medal winner in the 1960 Olympics.
- "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan" is a two-hour drama concerning the "right to die" controversy.
- "My Luke and I" is a two-hour drama telling the story of Mrs. Lou Gehrig's life with her husband, the late New York Yankees' baseball great.
- "Ziegfeld" is a profile of the life and times of master showman Flo Ziegfeld.
- "Sergeant Matlovich Versus the U. S. Air Force" will chronicle a homosexual air force sergeant's fight to remain in the service.
- An untitled two-hour special will examine the turbulent relationship between Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and former Teamsters union president Jimmy Hoffa.

TV HIGHLIGHTS

- The Barbara Walters interview with Cuba's Fidel Castro has been rescheduled for June 9 and replaced today with "The Nixon Interviews: Lessons Learned," at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 7, which will examine the David Frost-Richard Nixon interviews.
- "The Lindbergh Kidnaping Case" is rebroadcast at 7 p.m. on Channel 5.
- John Kenneth Galbraith offers the secon of 13 segments of "The Age of Uncertainty" at 8 p.m. on Channel 11.
- An ABC Close-up report at 9 p.m. on Channel 7 deals with the state of mental-health care in America.

THEIR FACES partially covered to prevent identification, young prostitutes wait by the side of a road for customers, Hebrew University criminologist Menahem Amir says police know of about 1,000 prostitutes in Israel, three-quarters of them living in Tel Aviv. Most of them are oriental Jews whose families came to Israel from a Middle Eastern or North African country.

Israeli prostitute's story: discrimination is the cause

STEWART KELLERMAN

TEL AVIV (UPI) — She stood along Hayarkon Street, stockinged feet in spiked heels, hands on the hips and dressed in a sequined gown, looking like a throwback from the heyday of the Times Square tango parlors.

She stared up and down the street, Tel Aviv's seaside hotel strip, looking the passing tourists over from head to toe before making a move.

"You want a friend," she said in a throaty voice as a middle-aged man stepped out of the luxury Dan hotel. She set her lips in a used car salesman's mechanical smile, but he just shook his head and walked by.

IT WAS A SLOW night for Israel's prostitutes.

The Passover crowd was already back in Crown Heights, Golders Green and Riverdale. The first rush of summer tourists wouldn't be arriving for a month and a half.

It didn't take much to talk the woman into leaving her lookout by the Dan and joining a reporter for a drink at one of the honky-tonk bars down the street.

The hooker, a lock of peroxide blonde hair hanging incongruously across an olive-brown forehead, said her name was Sara and she was 20 years old.

She said she got into the business at the age of 17 after walking out on her parents — impoverished immigrants from Morocco with a dozen children.

"I'm not complaining," she said, sipping a scotch and soda between puffs on a soggy cigaret. "I earn a good living. The cops pick me up once in a while, but they let me go after a day or two in Abu Kebir." It is a jail.

Hebrew University criminologist Menahem Amir says police know of about 1,000 prostitutes in Israel, three-quarters of them living in Tel Aviv. He says the average hooker earns up to $10 a trick and $100 a day.

Amir says most of the prostitutes work on their own, making them among the highest-paid Israelis. The 15 to 20 per cent with pimps, however, usually wind up with little of their earnings.

Sara, like most of Israel's prostitutes, is an Oriental Jew — one whose family came to Israel from a Middle Eastern or North African country.

MANY OF THE Oriental Jews say they are discriminated against politically, economically and culturally by the Ashkenazi Jews who came from Europe, creating what has been described as two Israels.

"We're treated like dirt here," Sara said. "We can't get good jobs or good homes or good education. What's left for us to do? Become whores."

Sociologist Abraham Stahl, in his study "Prostitution Among Jews," says many Oriental Jews turn to streetwalking because of their inability to cope with the transition to Israel's relatively Western culture.

Sara said she would have done anything to avoid following in the footsteps of her mother, who works all day as a maid in the homes of the Ashkenazi and all night in her own slum apartment.

PSYCHOLOGIST Yaacov Kellner says many Israeli prostitutes reject traditional family life in reaction to the daily struggle of their mothers in impoverished, crowded tenements.

"It bred in them a negative image of the womanly function," he says. "To be a woman was something not nice, not pleasurable, a form of torment."

Sara said she tried once to break away from her life of prostitution, joining the Israeli army, but she was back on the streets again soon after the end of her two years of military service.

"You just can't get away once you get started," she said. "The cops won't let you even if you want to. Once a whore, always a whore. That's the way they look at it. They pick you up for nothing at all."

"EVERY TIME I'd come home late at night, my mother would scream at me and call me a tramp. And my older brothers would beat me and call me a whore. I guess I showed them they were right."

A social worker whose family also came from Morocco says many Oriental Jews find it impossible to live a straight life in a society dominated by Ashkenazis.

Sara took a long, last drag from her lipstick-smeared cigaret and squashed it out in an overflowing ashtray. She stood up, put her hands on her hips and looked down.

"It's time to get back to work," she said in a voice that sounded as though she had seen too many Lauren Bacall movies. "That is, unless you're interested in something more than talk"

Woman taken from home at night

Story of banishment in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — On Monday, May 16, Mrs. Winnie Mandela was awakened without warning at her home in the black Johannesburg township of Soweto by four carloads of police.

The officers packed up her belongings and took her and her teen-aged daughter to a new home 200 miles away.

Mrs. Mandela — wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, who is serving a life sentence at South Africa's maximum security Robben Island prison — had been banished.

This form of internal exile, under a provision of the Bantu (African) Administration Act which governs black activity in South Africa, was last decreed in 1974. The Institute of Race Relations says at least 18 whites and 95 blacks have been banished in all.

MRS. MANDELA, 40, and her daughter Zindzi must live in a tiny house in a black township near the small town of Brandfort until December, 1981 and, under the order dictated by Police Minister Jimmy Kruger, she will be confined indoors at night and on weekends and cannot be quoted by newspapers.

"I don't like to ban people," Kruger commented.

But, he said, "taking all considerations into account, (the South African government) felt it would be better to have Mrs. Mandela out of Soweto at this time."

Mrs. Mandela's tangles with authorities began in 1968, when she was detained, tried and acquitted of promoting communism.

She was detained several times since, including during the bloody riots which broke out in Soweto on June 16, 1976 in which more than 500 persons died.

UNDER THE TERRORISM act, enacted in 1967, suspects can be held incommunicado and without charges indefinitely.

In 1970 she was served with a banning order which lasted five years. This confined her to her home after dark and on weekends, and forbade her to publish anything or be quoted by newspapers. Even her friendships were subject to official approval.

Shortly after she was released from detention last December, she was served with another banning order, to last another five years.

The banishment to Brandfort only put the seal on her isolation.

SINCE HER mother is not permitted to be quoted, Zindzi described their new situation in a black township which goes by the unofficial name of Phatakahle — an African word meaning "handle with care" — but officially has no name at all.

Brandfort itself has only about 5,200 inhabitants — a far cry from sprawling Soweto, with 1.2 million.

Their house has three rooms, no electricity, no running water and no flush toilet. It's just like the other 725 houses in the district, Zindzi said.

"My mother was taken to the local magistrate. He told her she would receive 100 rand ($115) per month. Rent for the house is 15 rand ($17.50) a month," she said.

Mrs. Mandela was a credit controller with a Johannesburg firm and earned good pay for a black woman in South Africa — $402.50 a month.

"There's little chance of Mom getting work here," Zindzi said, adding that apartheid was strict in the town.

To heighten the feeling of exile, she said, most blacks in the area speak Sotho and the whites speak Afrikaans.

"We are Khosa-speaking," she said, "and we do not speak Afrikaans."

U.S. political, economic conditions feed the KKK

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Thomas Albert Tarrants III, onetime Ku Klux Klan terrorist turned born-again Christian, says the KKK is not dead and political, social and economic conditions in the nation are conducive to the growth of the organization.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the Klan is still alive," Tarrants said. A lot of the political, social and economic factors that are operating in society today render conditions conducive to the Klan's development, he said.

He was recently granted an early release after serving eight years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary for an attempted firebombing at a Jewish businessman's home. Tarrants is now attending college.

"THEY (THE KLAN) are trying to present a respectable middle class image, a nonviolent approach, in order to reshape their public image and gain greater support by trying to tap into the middle class," he said.

Tarrants, 30, who is in his first semester at the University of Mississippi said the KKK seems to be growing.

"There are a lot of issues they can exploit today to win over the average middle class American and they seem to be gaining in strength," he said.

Tarrants, one-time prize pupil of the KKK, said the Klan has distorted the Bible to justify its own ends.

"THEY HAVE MISSED the whole message of the Bible — which is the love of God and love for your fellow man.

"I don't want to appear to be trying to condemn them. I did the same thing. I was using the Bible to prove and substantiate my prejudices."

While in maximum security Tarrants said he was "born-again" and decided to dedicate his life to God. He repudiated the KKK as an "organization of hate."

A two-year effort by Tarrants to gain an early release from Parchman prison to attend college was finally successful in December 1976.

The KKK, Tarrants said, has made no effort to contact him since he was released from prison.

"I think I am an embarrassment to the Klan. It is very embarrassing for them to have reports that Eldridge Cleaver, Charles Colson, Harold Hughes and I are together praising the Lord," he said. "This, coupled with the fact that I have repudiated KKK ideology, is most embarrassing to them."

Deaths elsewhere

MARGARET DeWALD, 83, of Bell Gardens, Calif., and the mother of Dr. William DeWald, O.D. of Des Plaines, died Monday in Downey, Calif.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, with burial in Montrose Cemetery, Chicago. Visitation will be from 7 to 9:30 p.m. today in Oehler Funeral Home.

Feasting in the Great Outdoors

This Memorial Day weekend will kick off a summer of fun in the Great Outdoors. All kinds of recreational, athletic and cultural activities will be taking place. Camping, picnics, cycling trips and concerts under the stars are reasons for families to pack up the kids and plenty of provisions and leave the house for a while.

Refueling oneself while outdoors is important especially if one is getting lots of physical exercise. It takes planning to put together an outdoor menu that is practical, nourishing and appealing. Lightweight portable camp stoves solve the problem of cooking food outdoors without having to build a fire.

OUTDOOR ITEMS

- To chase a chill, sip hot tea blended with orange juice concentrate and carried in an insulated container.
- You want to catch a weeknight outdoor musicale but what about dinner? Bring it along. Prepare and pack in advance and heat the meal over a handy, lightweight camping stove.
- Juicy, thirst-quenching oranges make excellent snacks on the hiking trail. Carry a few in your backpack. No need to be concerned with non-biodegradable papers or wrappers with this natural pick-me-up.
- For safety's sake, and for convenience, carry all knives, can openers, skewers and sharp edged utensils in a covered plastic container or wrapped in a towel.
- Tuck a small whisk broom into your outdoor meal kit. It makes a handy clean-up of picnic table or eating surfaces before and after the meal. Lightweight, roll-up placemats are another bright idea.

CHILI FONDUE

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 1½ cups water
- ⅓ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 4 teaspoon chili powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans, drained
- ¼ pound Monterey Jack or mild Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1 loaf French bread, cut into 1-inch cubes

In saucepan on camp stove with canned heat, brown ground beef. Add remaining ingredients except cheese and bread and simmer, uncovered, for ½ hour. Sprinkle with shredded Jack cheese. Serve with cubes of French bread. Serves 4 to 6.

GRAPEFRUIT CHEESE FONDUE

- 3 cups (¾ pound) shredded Swiss cheese
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1½ cups grapefruit juice
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Cubes of French bread, cherry tomatoes, cauliflowerets, green pepper squares

Toss shredded cheese with flour in large bowl until flour is absorbed. Pour grapefruit juice into saucepan, place on camp stove with canned heat and bring to a boil. Gradually add cheese, a small amount at a time, stirring constantly with fork until cheese has melted before adding more cheese. When all cheese has been added, stir in Worcestershire sauce, onion, salt, dry mustard and pepper. Serve with French bread cubes and vegetables. Serves 4.

ORANGE-GRAPEFRUIT SANGRIA

- Juice of 2 grapefruits
- Juice of 2 oranges
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 bottles (4/5 quart each) dry white wine
- 1 orange and 1 grapefruit, cut in ½-inch slices and quartered
- ¼ cup sliced strawberries

Combine grapefruit juice, orange juice and sugar in large pitcher; stir until sugar is dissolved. Add chilled wine, citrus slices and strawberries. Chill at least 1 hour. Makes 10 cups.

BAGNA CAUDA

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup olive oil
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 can (2 ounces) anchovies, drained and finely chopped

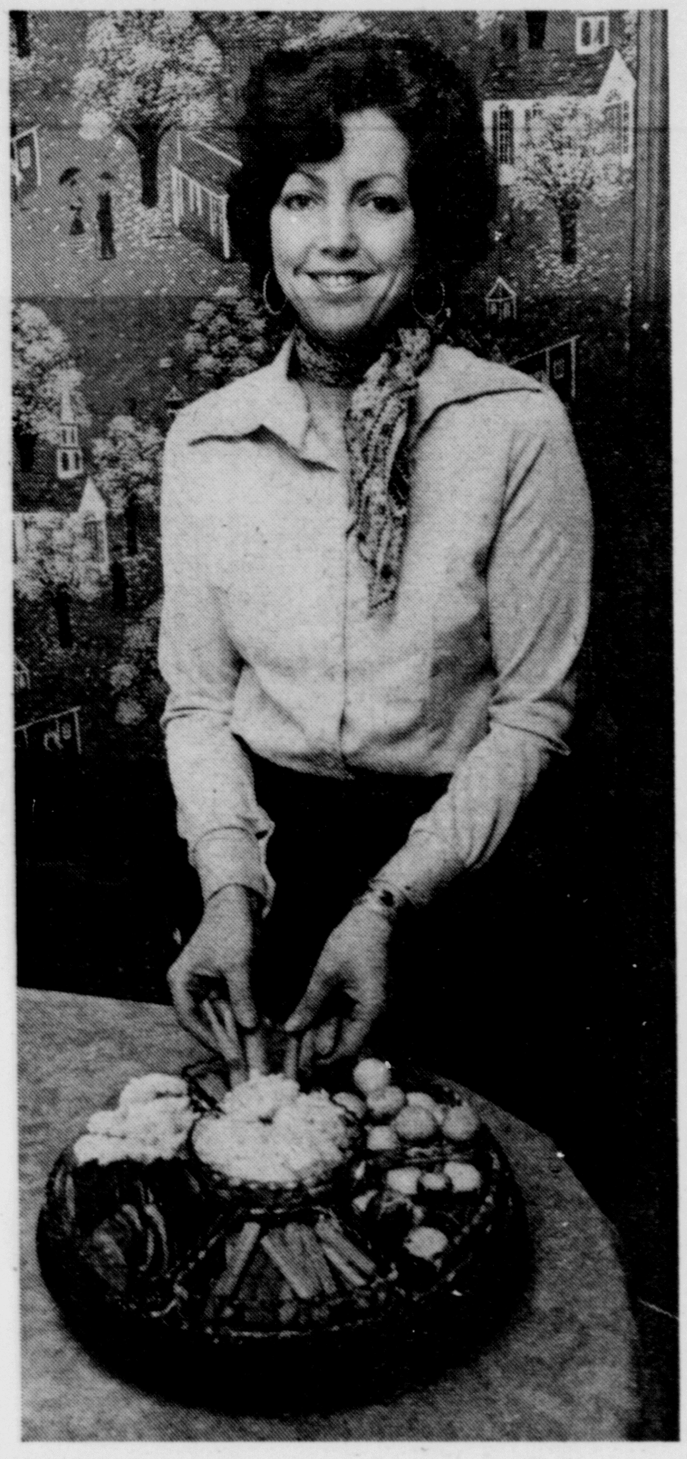
Assorted raw vegetables: sliced zucchini, sliced pared carrots, celery pieces, sliced mushrooms

Melt butter in saucepan on camp stove with canned heat. Add olive oil, garlic and anchovies. Heat. Serve as dip with raw vegetables. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

CHOCOLATE-ORANGE FONDUE

- 1 package (12 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup orange juice
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind

Combine all ingredients in small saucepan on camp stove with canned heat. Heat until chocolate melts, stirring constantly. Spear cubes of poundcake or pieces of fruit and dip in fondue. Makes 1¾ cups.



MEMORIAL DAY weekend is the perfect time to serve Sandie Anderson's Roka cheese dip with fresh vegetables.

Indoors or out, beef and beans make tasty menu

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

Memorial Day weekend heralds the beginning of the season for picnics and patio parties. It can be an "iffy" proposition as far as the weather is concerned, but the menu featured today will lend itself beautifully to festivities held indoors or out.

It is a favorite of Sandie Anderson of Arlington Heights, who finds it adaptable to any time of the year. It features Barbecued Beef and Baked Beans, both spicy in flavor with popular appeal.

Sandie served on a committee that prepared this beef for a dinner at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She liked the recipe so much that she quickly adopted it for her own use and has used it countless times since.

"It is excellent for a large group, as the recipe can easily be doubled and made ahead," Sandie explained.

ANY TYPE of beef roast can be used for this recipe, but Sandie prefers a sirloin tip. She simmers it in water seasoned with onion, bay leaf, cloves and garlic until tender, then cools it in the liquid overnight. The next day it is sliced and baked in a barbecue sauce, which gives the meat a savory and delicious flavor.

For a dinner at home, Sandie serves the meat as is, but it may be heaped onto buns for picnic fare. She always likes to have a theme for a party, and her beef served with beans is a delightful Western-style meal.

Easy to prepare, the baked beans can be made with any inexpensive variety of canned beans, as they are doctored up with brown sugar, catsup, dry mustand and bacon. An onion covered with whole cloves is baked with the beans, and both flavors permeate the casserole, giving it an exceptionally good taste. It has proven to be so popular that Sandie has given out this recipe more often than any other in her collection.

FOR A BUFFET at home, Sandie

suggests a leafy salad, gelatin mold and homemade whole wheat bread as accompaniments. She recommends serving a Roka Cheese Dip and Spread with fresh vegetables prior to the meal. This can be served as a substitute for a salad if the beef and beans are taken on a picnic, as all will travel well.

Being conscious of good nutrition, Sandie finds that a cheese dip makes fresh vegetables more appetizing, and she often prepares it for her family, which includes her husband, Fred, and two children. The recipe makes a sizeable amount, and the longer it sits, the better it tastes. Sandie serves it with cauliflowerettes, celery, broccoli, carrots, zucchini and green pepper, and it may be used as a spread for crackers, if desired.

When the meal is served at home, Sandie suggests an ice cream dessert that tastes light and smooth after the spicy beef and beans. Any combination of three different ice creams may be used, but she prefers chocolate, vanilla and orange sherbet.

FIRST SHE sprinkles a fairly thick layer of cookie crumbs in the bottom of a spring-form pan. Sandie likes the coconut flavor of macaroons, but any cookie may be used.

Then the ice cream which has been softened slightly, is mounded in, one scoop at a time, alternating the colors. A small container of whipped topping is spread on top and sprinkled with additional cookie crumbs. After being covered with foil, the dessert is frozen until served.

"You can let your imagination run wild with a variety of flavors," Sandie said. "The rainbow colors look beautiful when the dessert is sliced, and it is especially refreshing during the summer months."

Formerly a stewardess, Sandie still loves to travel and works part-time for a wholesale travel organization. Active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, she is a member of the Relief Society and a counselor in the presidency of the Primary organization. Sandie also is a Cadette Girl Scout leader, and in her spare time does gold leafing as a hobby.

BARBECUED BEEF

1 6 to 7 pound boneless beef roast
1 large onion
1 bay leaf
16 whole cloves
1 clove garlic

Place all ingredients into a pot and cover with water. Simmer about 4 hours or until tender. Cool in liquid several hours, or preferably overnight in the refrigerator.

The next day, remove roast from water, trim off fat and slice thin. Place slices on edge in a pan, overlapping each other. Prepare the following sauce:

2 cups catsup
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons dry mustard

Mix ingredients together and pour sauce over meat. Heat for 40 minutes in a 350-degree oven, basting occasionally. Serves 8 to 10.

BAKED BEANS

2 cans (16 to 18 ounces each) pork and beans
¾ cup brown sugar
½ cup catsup
1 teaspoon dry mustard
6 slices raw bacon, diced
1 whole onion, covered with whole cloves

Mix together the beans, brown sugar, catsup and mustard. Pour into a greased bean pot or casserole. Sprinkle diced bacon over the top. Push onion down inside the center of the beans. Sprinkle about ¼ cup additional brown sugar on top. Bake 2½ hours at 325 degrees. Remove onion before serving. Serves 8 to 10.

ROKA CHEESE DIP AND SPREAD

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
2 small glasses Kraft Roka Cheese Spread
1 small glass Kraft Old English Cheese Spread
1 garlic clove, minced fine or pressed
2 tablespoons chopped onion

Let ingredients warm to room temperature. Mix together with a spoon until blended. Store in refrigerator. Make at least a day ahead for flavors to blend; the longer it sits, the better. Use as a dip for fresh vegetables or a spread for crackers.

Gardeners find casserole handy

When spring arrives, everyone likes to get outdoors, especially the gardeners. It's not always easy to tend a vegetable or flower garden when there are meals to plan, cook and serve, as well as clean-up chores around the kitchen.

A delicious, nutritious casserole that's also easy and economical seems almost too good to be true — but it's for real. Quick 'n Easy Seafood Supper takes only a short time to combine and bake. Serve with a green salad or a cole slaw even better when it's from your garden. Then, after the pleasing meal, it takes mere minutes to clean up the kitchen.

QUICK 'N' EASY SEAFOOD SUPPER

- 1 package (1 pound) frozen cod, haddock or other fish fillets
- 1 cup sliced onion
- 2 tablespoons melted margarine or cooking oil
- 1 can (11 ounce) condensed Cheddar cheese soup
- ¼ cup water
- 1 can (1 pound) whole Irish potatoes, drained and sliced (2 cups sliced)
- 1 package (9 ounces) frozen cross-cut green beans, thawed
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 cup shredded process American cheese
- ¾ cup dry bread crumbs mixed with 2 tablespoons melted margarine or cooking oil or fine cornflake crumbs

Thaw frozen fish; cut into 1½-inch chunks. Cook onion in margarine or cooking oil until tender, but not brown. Add soup, water, potatoes, beans, salt, pepper and mustard; mix well. Heat until bubbly. Fold in fish and half of the cheese. Spoon into shallow 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle remaining cheese over top of fish mixture and cover with bread crumbs. Bake in 350-degree oven until hot and bubbly, 25 to 30 minutes. Serves 6.

This barbecued brunch a delicious eye-opener

When you get up on weekend mornings and the sun is warm and shining, you won't want to miss a minute of the day. Well, don't — get out and cook up a delicious Texas breakfast on the barbecue.

A charcoal-grilled brunch is quick and easy, even for sleepyheads. This man-sized meal revolves around foods such as grapefruit, brown-and-serve rolls and steak filet, but the extra things you do make these basics really special. To clinch it, the foods will soak up that incomparable charcoal taste as they cook over the briquets.

The most important part of this plan is getting the charcoal ready, because once the fire is going and the coals start glowing, the rest is easy. The first thing to know is that many factors affect the number of briquets you need: type and amount of food you're cooking, size and thickness of meat, amount of fat on meat, time of year and the size of fire bowl. Usually, one layer of briquets is all you'll need. As you're grilling, if you find you need more briquets, simply add them around the outside of the briquet fire.

Build the fire by stacking the briquets in a pyramid and let the air circulate around; this way, the coals burn easily and evenly. You can use a cone-shaped firebug lighter to help the charcoal briquets catch on fire fast. Add some liquid, jelly or solid charcoal lighter or use an electric starter to make the whole project a snap. Then don't be impatient — give the coals a good 20 to 40 minutes to really work up to the perfect heat. An easy way to tell when they're ready is to look for a covering of light grey ash.

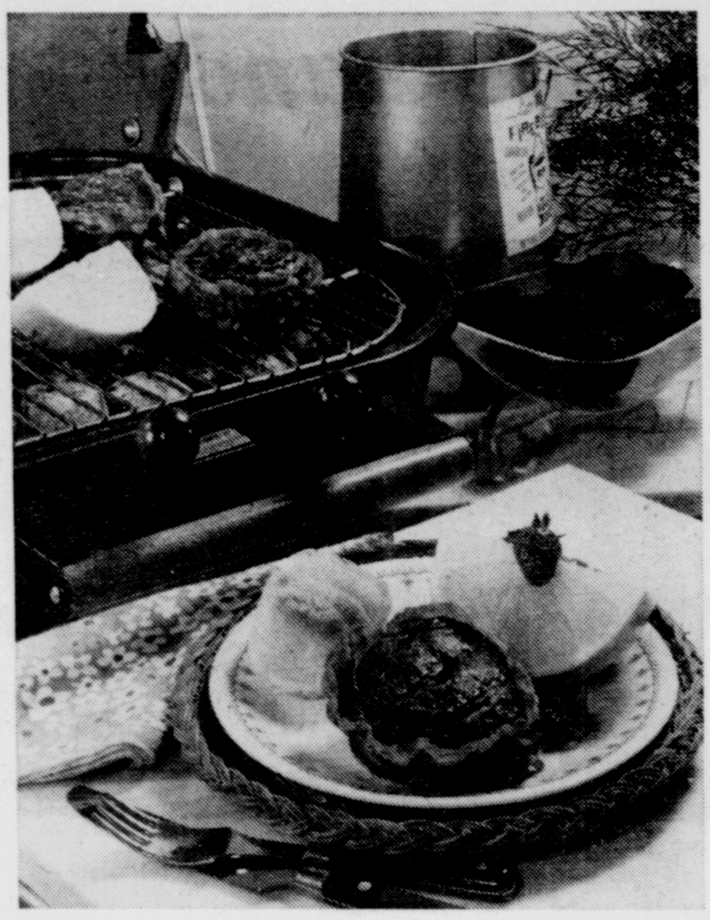
And after you've enjoyed your barbecued brunch, you'll find you're left with virtually no clean-up chores because your grill did most of the work — and you cleverly lined it with heavy-duty tin foil, shiny side up, before adding the briquets.



Brunch 'round the grill

GRAPEFRUIT SUPEREME

3 grapefruit, cut into quarters
2 tablespoons kirsch
½ cup apricot brandy
¼ cup melted butter or margarine

Brush grapefruit wedges with mixture of kirsch, apricot brandy and butter. Place on grill 8 inches above medium hot briquets placing one cut surface on grill. Broil 10 minutes, turning grapefruit wedges to other cut surface after golden brown. Brush grapefruit several times during cooking with brandy mixture. Serve grapefruit hot with remaining heated brandy mixture spooned over wedges. Serves 6.

MORNING GLORY STEAK

6 skirt steak rolls or 1 large flank steak
Instant meat tenderizer
Salt and pepper
1 clove garlic, chopped
½ cup olive oil
1½ cups dry red wine (burgundy or chianti)
1 teaspoon Italian herb blend
12 bacon slices (about ½ pound)

Remove wooden sticks from steak rolls and replace with heatproof skewers. If using flank steak, roll up steak like a jelly roll. Cut roll into 6 crosswise slices and spear each roll on heatproof skewers.

Sprinkle beef with meat tenderizer, salt and pepper. Place steak rolls side by side in a shallow glass dish. Combine remaining ingredients except bacon and pour over steaks. Let stand at room temperature for 1 hour, turning steaks occasionally to marinate evenly. Marinate in refrigerator for at least 4 hours, turning rolls occasionally.

Remove steaks from marinade and wrap each steak in two slices of bacon. Place on grill 8 inches above medium hot charcoal briquets. Broil from 5 to 10 minutes on each side, depending on degree of doneness desired. Brush with marinade every few minutes during cooking. Cook until bacon is brown. Keep a sprinkler bottle of water handh, for bacon fat will cause occasional flareups. Serves 6.

SUPER SWEET BREAD

Brush brown-and-serve rolls with melted butter; sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar. Wrap in foil; grill over medium hot coals until hot.

Rum sauce enhances spareribs

Rum is considered the most versatile of social drinks. The ease with which it can be mixed with fruit, fruit juices and liqueurs has made it a particularly popular summer refresher.

Rum has a romantic history. It conjures up images of pirates, the Spanish explorers, the British navy and Americans during colonial and revolutionary times. One story, probably apocryphal, reports that Paul Revere started out on his famous ride in silence and that he did not begin to shout "the British are coming" until he stopped for two drafts of rum.

Long considered appropriate only for exotic drinks such as the Daiquiri and Pina Colada, rum is not very fashionable in such popular drinks as the martini or with leading mixers such as tonic and orange juice.

And rum can be an asset in cooking as a flavoring ingredient for certain dishes. Here's a main dish you might like to try.

RUM-GLAZE SPARERIBS TAHITI

Allow 1 pound of spareribs per portion. Cut in sections of 5 ribs each. Season with salt, pepper and a dash of chili powder. Make a mixture of 1 cup melted fruit jelly, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and 3 tablespoon rum. Broil ribs under medium flame, brushing frequently with mixture.

Keep it hot, keep it cold, keep it safe

If you plan to celebrate summer with a picnic or barbecue this weekend, be sure not to invite food poisoning.

Remember to keep hot foods hot (above 140 degrees) and cold foods cold (below 40 degrees). Food may not be safe to eat if it has been held between 60 and 125 degrees for more than two or three hours, including preparation and serving time.

For picnics, plan meals with less perishable foods. Be sure to carry meat, poultry, fish, cold cuts, desserts with cream or custard fillings and salads with egg dressings in a coller with ice, dry ice or reusable cold packs. Don't depend on insulated bags to keep food cold.

When preparing food for a barbecue, thaw frozen meat in the refrigerator to prevent bacterial growth. Cook hamburgers and hot dogs in batches small enough to be used quickly. Cleanliness is especially important when preparing hamburgers, and a food preparer should wash his or her hands thoroughly before and after handling raw meat. Keep cole slaw and other salads chilled. Refrigerate leftovers promptly.

INSIGHT will open your eyes.

Summer sippers revive spirits

Had a hot, hard day at work or play, or just need an afternoon pick-me-up? Cold summer sippers will help restore your vigor.

For best results, use pre-chilled glasses, if possible. To frost, dip the glass rims in lemon juice, then in sugar, before chilling. Start with cold ingredients and follow the order given for the most satisfactory blend. Always serve immediately.

RASPBERRY FROSTY

1 package (10 ounces) raspberries frozen in syrup, thawed
1 pint raspberry sherbet
2 cups cold milk

Beat raspberries and sherbet with a mixer or a blender. Add milk. Beat until just foamy. Serves 3.

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT MILK SHAKE

1/3 cup chocolate flavor milk mix
2 cups cold milk
Dash peppermint extract
Vanilla ice cream
Crushed peppermint stick candy

Beat ice cream and chocolate mix with a mixer or a blender until smooth. Add milk and extract. Whip until just foamy. Top each serving with a scoop of ice cream and sprinkle with candy, if desired. Serves 4.

PARTY PUNCH

Sherbet ring:
1 pint lemon sherbet
1 pint lime sherbet
Punch:
1 can (1 quart 14 ounces) orange-grapefruit juice, chilled
1 can (1 quart 14 ounces) pineapple juice, chilled
1 can (12 ounces) apricot nectar, chilled
¼ cup sugar
1 quart ginger ale, chilled

For sherbet ring, alternate scoops of lemon and lime sherbet in a 4½-cup ring mold; pack lightly. Freeze until firm. To unmold, dip mold in warm water just to the rim for a few seconds. Invert onto a flat plate.

For punch, combine orange-grapefruit juice, pineapple juice, apricot nectar and sugar in a punch bowl. Add ginger ale. Unmold sherbet ring into punch. Makes 1 gallon.

Micro-cooking revives your refrigerated rice

Eileen Kelly
Let's learn to micro-cook

Rice. It is almost embarrassing to devote a whole column to a dish that sits so unobtrusively on the dinner table and has such a simple name! Yet rice is a dish to command serious attention. It can be served plain or fancy. It accompanies meat, fish and poultry, and even sneaks into rice pudding as a delicious dessert.

Rice isn't difficult to prepare on a conventional range, and when done in the microwave oven it follows the same basic steps. You save little or no time by cooking rice in the microwave oven, since you are really just rehydrating it. By now you are probably wondering why we've even brought the subject up!

I like the fact that I can cook and serve the rice in the same dish. I love the way rice reheats in the microwave oven. It always tastes freshly cooked. Because of the way it reheats, you can cook rice whenever it is convenient and refrigerate it until you need some. To reheat two to three cups of cold cooked rice in a covered casserole, just put it in the oven on high for about three minutes and stir a couple of times during the cooking period.

Directions for cooking rice vary ever so slightly from recipe to recipe and I have tried all the variations with good results every time. I offer you a basic recipe for long grain white rice.

LONG GRAIN WHITE RICE

2¼ cups water
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vegetable oil or butter

Boil the water in a 2-quart glass covered casserole. This takes about 8 minutes on high. If you start with hot tap water the time required for boiling will decrease of course. Stir in the rice, salt and oil or butter. Cover and microwave on defrost for 20 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before fluffing with a fork and serve.

Rice can be cooked successfully in ovens with only 1 setting. Use the same recipe as above but cook on high for 10 minutes and then let stand for 10 minutes. The theory is that rice cooked on the lower temperature will be lighter and fluffier, but you really should try both ways and then make your own decision.

If you have suggestions for future topics, write to Eileen Kelly Klehr in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60002.

Memorial Day will soon be here — and that calls for some special celebrating. And whether it's a backyard barbecue or a picnic in the woods, you're going to want the foods you serve to be the very finest possible. That's a good reason to visit your neighborhood Jewel. There you'll find everything you'll need for a holiday feast you'll really enjoy!

Why, just look at the values featured on these pages and you'll see what we mean. At Jewel this weekend, you'll find savings on tempting Badge of Honor steaks, fresh Farm Stand® fruits and vegetables, and a wide variety of other fun picnic foods. So when it's time to pack your picnic basket, remember the folks at Jewel. They've got what it takes for some memorable holiday menus!

PRICES EFFECTIVE, UNLESS OTHERWISE INDECATED, WED., MAY25 THRU MON., MAY 30, 1977, AT ALL JEWEL STORES IN COOK, LAKE, DUPAGE AND MC HENRY COUNTIES (EXCLUDING RIVER OAKS AND ELGIN).

FRESH MEAT AVAILABLE WHENEVER YOUR JEWEL STORE IS OPEN EXCLUDING SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS.
